POUNDS IS OUT FOR FUSION

Great Crowd in Brooklyn's Academy of Music Cheers His Pledge to Mitchel.

Opening his campaign at Cooper Union last night before a crowd that jammed the hall and yelled itself hoarse for him, Mayor Mitchel made a bitter attack upon William R. Hearst and Tammany Hall, and linked the names with that of the Hohenzollerns and the Hapsburgs. The crowd rose to wild enthusiasm when the Mayor declared that Murphy and Hearst were the joint candidates for Mayor against him, and when he charged that Murphy had remained silent on his close association with Justice Cohalan, Jeremiah O'Leary, and Hearst because these forces, he said, do not want a City Government that will back up President Wilson and the National Government in its conduct of the war.

During his speech there were shouts of "Hang Cohalan," and "Hang Hearst." Later on, in his speech before a crowd that filled the Academy of Music in Brooklyn, the Mayor was vigorously cheered when he said:

"Mr. Hearst puts the Star-Spangled Banner on the front page and tries to stab his country in the back in his editorial columns."

The crowd at Cooper Union was more orderly than the usual political gathering there and gave the Mayor close attention when for half an hour he outlined what had been accomplished by his administration and what he hoped to do if re-elected. The Mayor devoted much of his speech to answering a statement made by Charles F. Murphy earlier in the day. He did this, he said, because he couldn't find out what Judge Hylan stood for, and because Murphy was the influence behind Hylan.

Every reference the Mayor made to the war and to Americanism being the prominent issue of the campaign was received with shouts of approval, handclapping and the waving of small American flags. The war issue was forced to the front even before the Mayor entered the hall. Job E. Hedges, onetime Republican candidate for Governor, presided at the meeting, and in waiting for the Mayor's arrival he urged all Republicans, regardless of party regularity, to support the Mayor. At one point Mr. Hedges mentioned the name of Morris Hillquit, the Socialist candidate for Mayor. Immediately a yell for Hillquit went up from the rear of the hall. Mr. Hedges looked disconcerted for a moment, but advancing to the edge of the platform he waited for the applause to die down, and then he said:

"Our friend, Mr. Hillquit, says that he is going to run on the proposition that we should not have gone to war and, having gone to war, we should stop it. Therefore, I take it that some of this applause —."

Waved American Flags.

"They are a lot of traitors," shouted a man in the rear of the hall. There were yells of approval all over the hall, and several stood up and waved American flags. Some one cried "Throw them out!" and Mr. Hedges continued:

"There is no reason why they should not applaud, because that is all they do on behalf of good government." There was continued applause at this, and Mr. Hedges followed up with:

"A man who is unwilling to serve his nation is not fit to support his city. A man who would give aid and support to the enemies of his nation would steal the honor of his city. And the time has come in this great municipality when, whatever a man's extraction or his belief on any other topic, from worship of the Almighty to worship of the almighty dollar, has to show that he is either for his country or against it, and those who are not for it are against it, that's all."

The applause that followed from all over the hall showed that the audience was apparently in the same frame of mind. Immediately after the Mayor came in and was given a rousing welcome. In all the Mayor spoke for more than an hour, and there were no more cheers for Hillquit. After the Mayor had finished other candidates on the Fusion ticket, including Controller Prendergast, Robert Adamson, candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen; Borough President Marcus M. Marks, and Judge Ransom, candidate for District Attorney, spoke. Upon leaving the hall the Mayor went at once to the Academy of Music in Brooklyn, where a huge crowd, which had already heard the other candidates, awaited him.

The Mayor was in excellent voice and spoke with great earnestness. When he mentioned Hearst and Murphy he pounded his fist on the table or shook it at the audience. Again and again the applause interrupted him, and he found it difficult to proceed. He began by saying:

"I esteem it an honor to be here tonight, and I am glad to open this campaign and again face my fellow-citizens and discuss with them the record of this administration and its proposals for the future, and meet with them, face to face, every question that has been raised or that may be raised in the course of this campaign. I esteem it an honor to be here, and I come here tonight not as Mayor of the city, not as an administrator, not as one seeking a public office, but as one who has been commissioned to carry the banner of this cause by a group of red-blooded American citizens of honest minds and of undivided allegiance to our common country."

People on Their Feet.

That brought the people to their feet and there was prolonged applause. The Mayor went on:

"This call, my friends, has come from these men who have come in broad daylight to the steps of the seat of

Expressions of Peace Hopes Mark Hindenburg Birthday

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 2.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg's seventieth birthday was celebrated throughout Germany today as a national fête. The Emperor and all the Imperial Family sent greetings to the Field Marshal, expressing the hope that an early end of the war would crown his work.

Various cities bestowed their freedom on him and special celebrations were held by the schools, coupled with collections for the war loan.

Dr. Richard von Kühlmann, the Foreign Secretary, in a congratulatory telegram, said:

"Glorious deeds of imperishable greatness make this a national fête day. The German nation looks with unshakable confidence to your powerful protection of the Imperial frontiers, with the hope for Germany's happy future."

The recipient of these demonstrations spent the day at headquarters. He was reported to be slightly indisposed.

PERKINS REJECTED; MITCHELL CHOSEN

BITTER CHARGES IN DEBATE

Unanimous Approval Greets the Eleventh-Hour Nomination of Ex-Labor Leader.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 2.—After an acrimonious debate the Senate today rejected the nomination of George W. Perkins as head of the new State Food Control Commission, and John Mitchell, Chairman of the State Industrial Commission and former President of the United Mine Workers, whose name had been substituted at the eleventh hour by Governor Whitman, was confirmed for the post by unanimous vote. Without a dissenting voice the appointment of Jacob Gould Schurman, President of Cornell University, was confirmed, and only one vote was recorded against Charles A. Wieting of Cobleskill, as the other members of the commission.

Senator Ross Graves, Republican, representing a Buffalo, district, charged that a combination had been formed between Tammany Hall and the Republican Old Guard to humiliate Governor Whitman through the defeat of his nominee and at the same time cater to the food speculators. This charge was resented in many bitter speeches. Senator Theodore Douglas Robinson of Herkimer, former Progressive State Chairman, declared that Mr. Perkins "has invested a good deal of money and has a first mortgage on a great many people by investing in their primary campaigns." When pressed to elaborate this charge, he said he understood Mr. Perkins had spent $45,000 for a "White Book" which Governor Whitman used in his primary campaign last year.

After defeating the nomination of Mr. Perkins, the Senate received a special message from Governor Whitman urging favorable action on a bill, already passed by the Assembly, which would make it possible for Mr. Perkins to accept from Mayor Mitchel the place at the head of the New York City Market Commission without surrendering his Presidency of the Palisades Interstate Park Commission. Embodied in the message was a letter from Mayor Mitchel, urging that this legislation be enacted

Kills Whitman-Mitchel Bill.

The Senate War Committee, to which the bill had been referred, went into session at once and, after spending an hour behind closed doors, returned with an adverse report, which the Senate sustained by a vote of 19 to 23.

The vote on the Perkins nomination stood 20 to 25, a gain for Mr. Perkins of two votes since the question was last up before the Senate. The additional votes were furnished by James J. Walker and Edward J. Dowling, two Tammany men, who were absent when the first nomination was under debate. Here is the vote in detail:

For—Republicans: Argetsinger, Monroe; Burlingame, Kings; Carson, Ontario; Gibbs, Erie; Gilchrist, Kings; Graves, Erie; Knight, Wyoming; Lockwood, Kings; Mullan, Monroe; Murphy, Kings; G. F. Thompson Niagara; G. L. Thompson, Nassau; Walters, Onondaga; Wellington, Rensselaer; Whitney, Saratoga; Wicks, Oneida; Yelverton, Schenectady—17.

Total—20.

Democrats: Boylan, New York; Carroll, Kings; Cotillo, New York; Cullen, Kings; Downing, New York; Dunnigan, Bronx; Foley, New York; Heffernan, Kings; Koenig and Wagner, New York—10.

Total—25.

Absentees—A. P. Brown, (Rep.,) Otsego; Daly, (Dem.,) Queens, and Ramsperger, (Dem.,) Erie.

Governor Whitman expressed great regret at Mr. Perkins's defeat.

"I regarded Mr. Perkins as the best man in the State for the position," he said.

"He would have had behind him a driving force that no other man that I know of could possibly command in that position. But I have great confidence in Mr. Mitchell, too, and feel very happy and grateful over his consent to serve as head of the commission."

Debate Over Nomination.

WAR TAX BILL PASSES SENATE AFTER CRITICISM

BRISK DEBATE OF AN HOUR

Munitions and Mail Zone Taxes Are Especially Singled Out for Attack.

CUMMINS IS PESSIMISTIC

But Most of the Senators Accept the Bill as Being 80 Per Cent. Good.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—With only one hour of debate the Senate today without a dissenting vote approved the conference report on the War Revenue bill. The measure will go to the House tomorrow for the signature of the Speaker and back to the Senate to be signed by the Vice President. It will be in the hands of the President tomorrow night.

The Senate accepted the conference report in what might be characterized as a dirge-like spirit. The measure was advocated solely as a means of raising money by direct taxation to pay immediate war expenditures. Criticism of some features, chiefly the war profits tax and the levies upon individuals, was made by every Senator who took the floor during the brief debate.

The aggregate yield of revenue from the bill, Senator Simmons said, would be about $2,535,000,000, which is nearly $200,000,000 lower than that made when the conferees finished their work Saturday.

"The conference agreement is a distinct Senate victory," said Senator Simmons. "The House yielded on 275 out of 320 contested points. While the measure as passed may not meet with the approval of all, and I don't assume to say it is perfect, I do say, unreservedly, that it is a much improved bill, much fairer to the taxpayer and to the Government."

Senator Pomerene of Ohio and Saulsbury and Walcott of Delaware criticised the restoration of the special munitions tax. They felt that munitions manufacturers, having to pay the war profits tax, ought not to be obliged to meet an extra levy. Senator Saulsbury expressed the belief that the munitions tax was a product of pro-German propaganda.

The advance in second-class postage rates was criticised as tending to injure many publications. Senator Simmons defended the tax as necessary. He had read into the record a letter from the Postmaster General, stating that, even with the increase, the Government would lose $40,000,000 a year in handling newspapers and magazines.

Senator Cummins of Iowa attacked the bill as tending to bring industrial ruin to the country. He favored a much higher tax on the country's wealth. Senator Cummins calculated that the expenses of the first year of the war would be approximately $22,000,000,000.

"Of this stupendous amount we propose to raise by increased taxation less than $3,000,000,000 and borrow the remainder," he said. "I protest against that as ruinous to business and a most grievous injustice to those who come after us. It is unwise and inexcusable."

Easy on Unearned Incomes.

Senator Wadsworth attacked the war profits and income taxes.

"Sooner or later," he said, "we must discriminate between earned and unearned incomes. This measure taxes the worker infinitely more than the drones. We still leave uncured and uncorrected the injustices of the income tax. As it now stands it inflicts serious injury upon business and permits those who do not work to escape lightly."

Senator Smoot criticised the bill as not nearly so practical as before it went to conference. He objected to the adding of new legislation by the conferees, and declared his willingness to vote for an amendment to the rules forbidding the practice.

"I know that there are not enough votes to reject this report and send the bill back to conference," said Senator Smoot. "If we had the votes I would move to reject it, if for no other reason than the inclusion of the 'zone system,' which, I believe, means absolute ruin to many publications. We penalize people for having the temerity to live beyond a certain radius. It will cost more to send a magazine to Nebraska than to Siberia."

Senator La Follette attacked the bill as not levying a sufficient tax on wealth.

"I voted against this measure because it violated every principle of a wise and just policy for financing the war," he said. "I do not believe that it is possible for any Government to finance the war on economically sound principles, because wealth will not stand for it, and wealth is always potentially able to control the finances of war. However, it is the duty of legislators to approximate a just policy."

Mr. La Follette said he would defer until some time later "some observations he had intended on the bill and matters connected with it." Many members of Congress have been expecting him to answer the petitions for his expulsion for alleged disloyal utterances and actions.

Examples of Taxation.

Concrete examples of how the bill would operate as to corporations, partnerships, and individuals were given tonight by Representative Fordney of Michigan, ranking Republican member of the Ways and Means Committee and a member of the War Tax Conference Committee His statement follows:

The following table shows the total amount of income, corporation, and excess profits taxes that will be paid (a) by a corporation with a capital of $100,000 and a net income of $50,000; (b) by a partnership of three parties with a capital of $100,000 and a net income of $50,000, and (c) by an individual engaged in business with $100,000 capital and $50,000 of net profits:

BRITISH REPULSE 6 YPRES ASSAULTS

PRESS EMBARGO RAISED

Dispatches from the Front Are Allowed to Pass for First Time Since Friday.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—Six German attacks were made upon the British lines east of Ypres yesterday and last night, all without success except for the capture of the two small outposts near Polygon Wood, reported yesterday. This information is contained in the afternoon official bulletin. Tonight the War Office issued only this meager statement on today's operations:

"Beyond artillery activity on both sides on the battle front there is nothing of special interest to report."

The French War Office reports the repulse of a strong German attack on the Verdun front between Hill 344 and Samogneux, although the Germans retain a foothold in some advanced trenches. There was also marked artillery activity on the Aisne front.

Today, for the first time since last Friday, when notice was given that the sending of press dispatches from Field Headquarters would be suspended, dispatches on the military situation at the British front have been received here by The Associated Press. No explanation of the suspension, however, is made public.

German Night Assaults Smashed.

Telegraphing under today's date, The Associated Press correspondent at the front says:

"Two more counterattacks were attempted by the Germans against the British lines between the northeast corner of Polygon Wood and the Menin road last night; but, as in the case of three heavy assaults made during the day, the enemy was smashed by artillery and rifle fire. Hard local fighting occurred at the place known as Cameron House, where the Germans yesterday forced the British back slightly, but, with the exception of two small posts lost in this area, the British line was intact this morning.

"The Germans also attacked during the night south of the Ypres-Roulers railway in the neighborhood of oZnnebeke, but were repulsed.

"The last twenty-four hours have been bitter ones for the enemy along the Ypres battle front. Not only have the Germans suffered a stinging defeat, but this defeat has been accompanied by grievous losses in men. The tremendous fire to which they were subjected by the artillery, rifles, and machine guns was a revelation even to those accustomed to watching the marvelous work of the great British war machine.

"In the face of the immense strength of the British artillery the Germans in their desperation essayed something which they must have known would result in reverses, unless some wholly unforeseen contingency arose. They gambled against great odds, and they paid for it in lives.

"South of the Menin Road, in the neighborhood of the Tower Hamlets battleground, it was quiet during the night. North of the Ypres-Roulers Railway the German artillery played heavily on the British front areas. The correspondent visited Westhoek Ridge and the region near Zonnebeke, where the artillery activity was intense. British guns of all calibres were keeping up their ceaseless thunder, and for every German shell landed in this zone were hurling back scores.

"There is no doubt that the punishment being dealt out to the Germans is tremendous. Every prisoner taken admits that and appears to be glad to be in the hands of the British.

"German air raiders were active again last night."

A delayed dispatch from the same correspondent, dated Monday, says:

"Once more the Germans have essayed, in a series of counterattacks, to break the new British lines between Polygon Wood and Tower Hamlets, across the open road to the south. Again they have been hurled back with heavy losses. The principal result of three bitter attacks by the enemy between dawn and mid-afternoon has been the merciless shattering of his ranks and a still further advance over the front south of Polygon Wood by the British, who pushed their line forward some hundred yards in depth behind the fleeing Germans.

"The first assault was delivered at 6:15 o'clock this morning. The enemy advanced in three waves toward the British, but immediately met with such a fierce fire of rifles and artillery that he was compelled to retire. It was apparent, however, that the Germans were not through with the attempt, and the big British guns turned loose such an avalanche of shells as is seldom seen along the front.

"At 8:40 o'clock the Germans surged forward once more and, as in the earlier attack were turned back by the intense fire from their opponents. Meanwhile the British artillery was hammering away with drumfire intensity, shaking the country miles back of the lines. The German guns were not silent, and in the midst of the roar of the British artillery could be heard the detonations of heavy enemy shells.

"It seemed impossible that another attempt would be made by the Germans in the face of such a hurricane of steel,

BRITISH REPRISALS FOR LONDON RAIDS ARE NOW LIKELY

IMPORTANT STEPS FORECAST

Cologne and Wilhelmshaven Warn Their Citizens Against Entente Air Raiders.

LONDON, Wednesday, Oct. 3.—Demands for retaliation in kind upon German cities grow with each recurrence of air raids on London, and intimations of a semi-official character were given yesterday that these demands would be heeded.

The Evening Standard yesterday asserted "on the highest authority" that the Government was paying special attention to the question of reprisals, saying:

"There is no qualification about the decision of the Government to undertake very effective reprisals at the earliest moment consistent with the advice of the high military command."

That the Government contemplates new and effective steps to counteract the air raids is borne out in speeches made by Major Gen. Sir Francis Lloyd, Director of the Defenses of London, and Dr. Christopher Addison, former Minister of Munitions, at a meeting called yesterday in the London district to discuss the recent raids. Dr. Addison remarked that the Germans had got the start of humanity in their different forms of ruthlessness, such as sinking unarmed ships with submarines and bombing open towns; but, he added:

"I can tell you this: We have got the mastery of the submarine menace, and I am perfectly confident that before long we shall achieve just as great a supremacy in the air, whether over this country or over their own."

Dr. Addison asked the country to have patience while the military authorities were working out a scheme for stopping the raids. He reminded his audience that it was a colossal business, and declared that the defense of the last week had shown an immense advance in defensive plans. If the people would only be patient, he said, they would defeat the main German idea, which was to destroy the nerve of the civilian population, so as to prevent the armies from hanging on until victory was achieved.

General Lloyd also referred to the improvement in the defenses and asserted that if this gunfire was lacking the first-class machines the Germans now possessed would come loaded with bombs and drop them where they liked.

Regarding the question of reprisals, he said that this did not concern him as a military man, who only acted under orders, but he added:

"If you desire reprisals, you must let the authorities know, and I shall be glad to convey your intentions to the proper quarter."

Reject Official Excuses.

Semi-official explanations that the British cannot spare machines for reciprocal raids are questioned by the Northcliffe newspapers, the Daily Express and others, which point out that the Germans are able to spare aircraft for raiding England and have enough along the battle lines to give the British a continuing fight for supremacy in the air on the fighting front.

It is argued that the Germans have evidently outbuilt the British in aircraft and may be expected to continue building on an increasing scale and to improve the types of their machines, while the British are trying to catch up with them. Predictions that this would be the case were made by some of the newspapers and by experts like Lord Montagu of Beaulieu months ago. Lord Montagu also predicts that the Germans will soon pass the experimental stage of operations and be able to attack London in all kinds of weather, nearly every night.

A dispatch from Geneva says:

"A Swiss painter, who has been copying Dutch masters in the Cologne Museum and has just returned here, says that the Germans are now expecting aerial reprisals and are placing valuable paintings in places of security. The police of Cologne have issued instructions to the populace as to their conduct during raids. Most of the Rhine towns, following this example, are taking precautions."

The Wilhelmshaven Tageblatt publishes advice warning the people of that German naval base against possible air raids by the Entente aviators.

Ten Killed Monday Night.

In Monday night's air raid ten persons were killed and thirty-eight injured.

Just as the guns began to roar an ambulance train with wounded from France arrived at a London station. Red Cross workers rapidly unloaded the train and carried the men to shelter, as glass broken by shrapnel began to fall on the platform.

Several bombs fell in the river in the southwest district, while the roof of a building in which a large number of people sought cover was damaged. No one was injured.

There has been a big influx of people into towns outside of London since the

SHUT OFF FOODS AND ARMS

America Already Has Embargo in Force—Other Allies Are Expected to Follow.

HOLLAND AIDED FOE MUCH

In One Year She Shipped Into Germany Enough Food to Supply 1,200,000 Soldiers.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—The Gazette prints a proclamation prohibiting the exportation to Sweden, Norway, Denmark, and the Netherlands of all articles, except printed matter of all descriptions and personal effects accompanied by their owners.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Concerted action on the part of the allied countries to isolate Germany from the rest of the world and end all possibility of neutral nations of Europe supplying her with food and ammunition, no matter what the consequence may be, is seen here in the proclamation published in London placing an absolute embargo on the exportation of commodities to Sweden, Norway, Denmark, and the Netherlands, known as the northern neutral group.

The United States took the lead in this movement on July 15, when, by Presidential proclamation, it declared an absolute embargo on the exportation of all products to these countries. Since that time not so much as an ounce of food or fodder, or the smallest quantity of any wartime material has gone to the northern neutrals of Europe.

So far as the United States was concerned the British blockade was unnecessary, and the embargo also was a much more effective weapon.

It is considered likely here that France, Italy and the other countries aligned against Germany in the war will follow the lead taken by America and Great Britain, and that a combination thus will be formed which will absolutely prevent materials entering northern neutral territory from these sources unless it is established beyond a doubt that Germany is not profiting.

The situation created by embargo regulations in connection with these neutrals has been rapidly developing to a point where some hold the opinion that certain nations now neutral will find it difficult to remain "on the fence."

It is certain, for one thing, that the United States will not aid in the support of Holland while any such agreement with Germany as that presented in full in THE NEW YORK TIMES on Sunday remains in effect, and neither will the United States send its supplies to Sweden while the Swedes, or at least the pro-German ruling classes there, are pouring foods and materials necessary for the manufacture of ammunition and high explosives into the territory of the Central Powers.

That such a traffic has been going on, it is reported here, has been demonstrated to the satisfaction of officials in charge of the export of American goods. They are in a mood to enforce to the limit the restrictions made possible by President Wilson's proclamation.

Action along the lines taken by the United States, by Great Britain and other allies has not been unexpected here, in view of the revelations concerning the movement of foodstuffs and other essentials into Germany by way of the neutrals since the United States clamped down the lid. The evidence was quick in coming in, and was heralded by vociferous protests from neutral nations of Europe. Officials here were satisfied that there was "fire" where so much smoke appeared, and went about their investigations with thoroughness.

An official here who is conversant with the situation in Europe stated that the war would end in sixty days to six months if Sweden's trade with Germany in materials needed for ammunition and explosives was cut off. Germany has made demands upon Sweden as she did upon Holland for these materials in return for other commodities. Up to the time the American embargo was declared, at least, this traffic was going forward on a scale that was alarming.

The fate of the northern neutral nations of Europe, if other countries allied with the United States join with America and England in declaring a complete embargo, is a moot question here. Obviously they cannot keep up their traffic with Germany on the present scale without outside aid in the shape of foods.

With the allied nations in an "embargo combination," South America will be practically the only field left open to the neutral nations of Europe, and Germany's actions in many directions have left those countries in no spirit to send their commodities to nations which may aid Germany if other more friendly markets can be found.

It is also more than probable that the British blockade will be tightened in the general plan of things to end this traffic, if it is not done so voluntarily by the South American countries. Certainly no ships of the Allies, once the

Pro-German Cabinet Resigns at Stockholm As King Attempts Coalition With Liberals

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 2.—The Swedish Ministry has resigned.

King Gustave has requested the Ministers to retain their portfolios for the present.

It is a custom, if not a law of procedure, in Sweden that the members of the outgoing Cabinet shall retain their portfolios until their successors have at least been designated. It was so when the Hammarskjold Ministry was succeeded by the present one, under Senator Swartz, last March.

On Sept. 27 King Gustave requested Oscar von Sydow, Minister of the Interior, to form a new Government, which he proceeded to attempt by seeking a coalition with Liberals. If the King now asks the Swartz Ministry to continue in office, it probably indicates that the new slate is not complete. Circumstances have rendered its completion difficult.

When on Sept. 8 the United States Government made public the famous "Spurlos versenkt" dispatches of Count von Luxburg, which had been transmitted to Wilhelmstrasse, in German code, through the Swedish Legation at Buenos Aires, Sweden was in the midst of a general election. The election then promised no sensational features, as it was really an indorsement of the Swartz Coalition Ministry.

The Swartz ministry from its beginning aroused grave fears of international complications. Its Foreign Minister was Admiral S. A. A. Lindman, noted for his pro-German sympathies, who had been Prime Minister from 1906 to 1911. The new Minister of War was Colonel Akerman, who had been the Swedish Military Observer with the German Headquarters Staff for two years. With Lindman, Dahlberg, the Minister of Agriculture, was noted for his Anglophobia, if not for his German leanings.

In response to the Luxburg revelations the Swedish Government asserted that as the unneutral dispatches were in the Wilhelmstrasse code they could not be read by the Swedish authorities, and that there was nothing unusual in their transmission. This explanation did not satisfy the Socialists and Liberals, and, although occurring late in the political campaign, the scandal had a perceptible effect upon the vote.

The Branting Socialists returned 86; the extreme Socialists, 12; the Liberals, 62; the Conservatives, 58, and the new peasant factions, 12. It has been stated that the Branting plurality is based solely upon criticism of the Government's foreign policy.

LOAN SALES NEAR HUNDRED MILLION

Opening of Liberty Campaign Here Surpasses All Hopes of Committee.

WHOLE CITY IS ENLISTED

More Accomplished in Two Days Than in Same Number of Weeks in Previous Drive.

Great headway was made yesterday in the campaign for the sale of the second Liberty Loan bonds, which opened Monday, and so pleased were the members of the Liberty Loan Committee of the New York District with the progress of the work of organization requisite for the mobilization of subscriptions that they frankly admitted that more had been accomplished in the two days than in the first two weeks of the previous war loan campaign. Exact figures for subscriptions filed throughout the district were unavailable, but it was roughly estimated that between $80,000,000 and $100,000,000 had been applied for in the two days. Up to 3:15 yesterday afternoon the Federal Reserve Bank had received reports of subscriptions to the amount of about $9,000,000, but this did not include records from up-State, nor did it take into account various subscriptions that had been announced in one form or another, but which were not officially reported to the bank.

The Corn Exchange Bank, the only State bank in this city which is a member of the Reserve system, will file today an initial subscription of $10,000,000. Among the large subscriptions reported yesterday were:

| Prudential Insurance Co. | $7,500,000 |
| Home Insurance Co. | 2,000,000 |
| United States Trust Co. | 2,000,000 |
| German-American Insurance Co. | 1,000,000 |
| Men's Clothing Trades Committee | 600,000 |
| Home Life Insurance Co | 500,000 |
| E. W. Bliss & Co. | 500,000 |
| Jewelry Trade Committee | 326,000 |

The subscription of the Jewelry Trade Committee was collected at its first luncheon.

At the offices of the Liberty Loan Committee there were received subscriptions totaling $252,650, the same representing in most cases individual applications for small amounts.

Railway's Subscription $5,000,000.

Directors of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé Railway Company at their meeting yesterday voted to subscribe $5,000,000. This will be distributed among five of the Federal Reserve Districts through which the road operates, and only a small part, if any, will be placed in New York.

The banks are very desirous of doing everything in their power to aid the public in financing Liberty Loan purchases, and it was learned yesterday that some institutions would fix a special rate of 4 per cent. for loans secured by Liberty Loan bonds as collateral. The bond interest rate is 4 per cent., and a great many banks take the position that the loan rate, while low, should be at least 4½ per cent. A great deal depends on the rate which the Federal Reserve Bank will fix for the discounting of paper secured by the bonds. In view of the fact that in the June campaign it was 3½ per cent., the same as the bond rate, it is assumed in banking circles that the present rate will probably be 4 per cent. No official announcement on the subject has yet been made. Banks agreeing to lend their customers and friends money at 4 per cent., with the view of aiding them in purchasing Government bonds, will do so only on the understanding that the borrower gives his ninety-day note, which is discountable at the Reserve Bank, and that he agrees to pay off part of the loan on maturity when he applies for a renewal.

Banks Give Attention to Loan.

All the banks, trust companies, and investment houses are devoting their time and attention to the Liberty Loan

LIFTS LICENSE BAN ON MANY EXPORTS

NAMES 600 COMMODITIES

But Regulations Barring Exports to Germany and Contiguous Nations Remain.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—The Exports Administrative Board issued today a long list of American commodities which it has been decided may for the present be exported to other nations, with the exception of Germany, her allies, and the neutral countries contiguous to Germany, without obtaining a license. There are about 600 articles in the list.

The decision does not affect wheat and other vital cereals, the more important shipbuilding steel, meats, sugar, raw cotton, concentrated fodder, coal, fuel oils, and other products looked upon as essential to this nation's welfare. Neither does it disturb the complete embargo declared against Holland, Sweden, Norway, and Denmark, the nations which have come directly under the accusation of helping to feed Germany.

Steel and iron plates, demanded in great quantities here for shipbuilding, will be retained except under severe restriction. The only plates which may be exported without license are those less than one-eighth of an inch in thickness. A certain portion of steel bars will be withdrawn from the list of articles which demand export licenses, but not the steel essential to America's part of the war program.

The task of granting licenses for all of America's exports has been one of tremendous scope, and the list issued today was prepared with a view of leaving to the Exports Administrative Board only the problem of restricting, to a certain point, the materials over which control was believed to be absolutely essential. The board, under the terms of the President's proclamations, retains the power to take from the "free" list any article at any time.

The Official Statement.

The official statement follows:

"The Exports Administrative Board has determined that under the President's proclamation of Aug. 27, 1917, the following articles do not require an export license at present except when shipped to Albania, Austria-Hungary, that portion of Belgium occupied by the military forces of Germany, Bulgaria, Denmark, her colonies, possessions or protectorates; Germany, her colonies, possessions, or protectorates; Greece, Lichtenstein, Luxemburg, the Kingdom of the Netherlands, Norway, Spain, her colonies, possessions, or protectorates; Sweden, Switzerland, or Turkey, (excluding any portion of the foregoing occupied by the military forces of the United States or the nations associated with the United States in the war,) or any territory occupied by the military forces of Germany or her allies.

"The board has further determined that if any of the articles are subsequently classified as requiring a license, nevertheless they will in general be allowed to proceed without license when covered by ocean bill of lading or by railroad bill of lading marked 'for export' dated on or before the date classified. There may, of course, be some special instances where for certain reasons the embargo will have to be effective immediately, regardless of when the goods were shipped, but these cases will be rare, and special attention will be called to them at the time publicity is given to the fact that they have been classified as requiring a license. All future classi-embargo is in full force, will be used in this trade.

The United States has endeavored to show the South American countries the extent to which Germany has gone in its "ruthless" warfare. It is understood also that this country, through its embargo powers, is prepared to refuse aid to German capital in South America which is accused of aiding Germany with its earnings by remittance of gold and by paying for the spreading of pro-German propaganda.

Much of the German capital is invested in public utilities of South America which must depend upon American coal. There are some here who are willing to go to the extent to force the South American Governments to take over these interests in order to obtain the American fuels needed.

DUTCH ADMIT GERMAN DEAL.

But Insist Export Ratio Is Based on Before-the-War Division.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Oct. 2.—The Dutch newspapers republish tonight THE NEW YORK TIMES dispatch from Washington, detailing the Dutch agreements regarding the relative quantity of various foodstuffs which were to be exported from Holland to Germany and the Entente countries, and giving the indication that exports from the United States to Holland might be expected to cease until this ratio was changed.

The Nieuwe Rotterdamsche Courant, commenting on the dispatch, says:

"On inquiry in the proper quarter we learn that, as far as the figures are concerned, THE TIMES report is in the main correct. The division of Dutch exports was the result of long and careful consideration with the commercial representatives of both groups of belligerents, the British General Trading Association at London and the Deutsche Handelsstelle at The Hague. There is nothing abnormal in the facts, because the division was based in the main on the ratio of exports before the war."

PIERCE GERMAN LINE ON THE RIGA FRONT

Russian Advanced Detachments Push Forward For Distance of a Mile.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 2.—Russian advanced detachments in the Riga region yesterday broke through the German lines and pushed forward for a distance of one mile, says the official statement issued today by the Russian War Office, which reads:

> In the Riga region, south of the railway in the Kronenberg-Spital-Groundull sector, our vanguard detachments have advanced one mile.
> Caucasus—Nothing of importance has occurred, elsewhere there have been fusillades.
> Two enemy airplanes and one captive balloon have been brought down recently. Two of our airplanes fell in flames, the aviators perishing.

BERLIN, Oct. 2, (via London.)—The following bulletin was issued by the War Office today:

> Eastern Theatre—There has been minor fighting activity, and the position is unchanged.

COALITION IDEA GAINING IN RUSSIA

UKRAINE WANTS AUTONOMY

Also Demands World War Be Stopped—Allies Again Pledge Loyalty to Russia's Interests.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 2.—Confidence is increasing in Government circles that the coalition idea will receive the sanction of the Democratic Congress. There also are indications that the plan for a preliminary Parliament, advocated by certain strong groups in the Congress, will not meet with opposition from the Government, provided the property-owning classes receive a fair representation in it.

The organizations which favor the coalition have held a conference under the Presidency of M. Skobeleff, former Minister of Labor, regarding the admission of Constitutional Democrats. Their participation in the Parliament is approved, provided they are clear of suspicion of connection with the recent attempted revolution headed by General Korniloff.

Velichiko, Deputy for the Ukraine, who is attending the Democratic Congress, delivered a speech today demanding autonomy for the Ukraine and also the cessation of hostilities. He said his demands were made in the name of "three million brave soldiers, who will not stand firm at the front unless autonomy is granted." He said also that the world war should be stopped immediately.

The Government has appointed a special committee, including the Ministers of War and Justice, to arrange details for the election of delegates to the Constituent Assembly which is to determine the future form of government of the country. The preliminary expenses are estimated at 6,000,000 rubles.

The British, French, and Italian Governments, through their representatives here, have again denied categorically the intention attributed to the Entente allied powers of taking advantage of the difficult situation in Russia in order to insure their own interests. The British Ambassador has stated officially that Great Britain would never agree to such a policy.

The French Ambassador recently informed the Government that a personage occupying an important diplomatic post in Germany had made overtures to some French politicians with a view to the discussion of questions of interest to France, but that this German attempt was indignantly rejected.

The Italian Ambassador has informed the Government that Italy will continue her co-operation with Russia in the common cause, and that she has rejected all thoughts of peace negotiations which have neglected Russian interests.

KERENSKY DOMINATES PETROGRAD CONGRESS

Impressions of Russia's Premier at the Opening of the Great Democratic Gathering.

By HAROLD WILLIAMS.

Copyright, 1917, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 28.—Kerensky has come out of the mists that have enshrouded him since the Korniloff affair. That was the central fact in today's opening of the meeting of the Democratic Conference, which outwardly is an assembly not unlike the Moscow conference, but is less imposing, rather more casual and bore more signs of hasty improvision.

The atmosphere of tense anticipation so noticeable in Moscow was lacking. A large number of Moscow delegates were there, but the Right Wing was wholly absent and their places were taken by representatives of various revolutionary organizations, including many Bolsheviks. Out of over a thousand delegates the proportion of Bolsheviks, judging by the response to various speakers, was little over a third. Lenine was not ostentatiously visible, though he may have been present.

When Kerensky rose to speak the applause was loud and long, only the Bolsheviks stubbornly remaining silent. Kerensky, dressed in a creased khaki suit and looking worn and unhealthily stout, came on to the stage, shook hands with all the gentlemen at the green table, and then began to speak. Kerensky's speeches are always a puzzle to me. He is much more agreable in private than on the platform. Personally I dislike his public manner, the rasping voice, an almost mechanical projection of sounds by a succession of forward thrusts of his chin and constant jerking of his right hand, the monotonous declamatory tone, calculated pauses, and painful emotionalism. It all looks like second-rate acting. And yet, if I may speak of my personal impression, though I am irritated by his manner, there is something in the personality of the man. I wish I could analyse my impression to the end. It is something disturbing, at times oppressive. It is not exhilarating or uplifting in any Western sense.

I do not know whether Kerensky is a great or a small man, but there is no other man in Russia at this moment who can take his place, and it was a relief to see that he won the sympathies of the conference today and that the great majority enthusiastically supported him. The Bosheviks, it is true, repeatedly interjected sneering comments, but their interruptions only increased the fervor of the rest of the assembly.

The man who spoke was not the rather pompous Premier who appeared in Moscow. He was a new and harder Kerensky, embittered in his perpetual struggle with chaos. In the combination of his personality with his extraordinary position there is tragedy, and the tragedy of Russia is reflected in his speech. The assembly felt that today the personal estimates of Kerensky yielded to the oppressive sense of the tragedy of Russia, and that the Premier appeared again as a symbol.

That was the net result of today's meeting. There will be trouble and attacks and conflicts during the next few days, but for the present I think it may be said that Kerensky has got his way.

REVOLT IN TURKESTAN AGAINST PETROGRAD

Agitators With Local Troops Seize Tashkent, But Population Rises Against Them.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 2.—A revolutionary movement is in progress in Turkestan. General Cherkess, commander of the district, has been attacked and beaten.

The semi-official news agency issued the following statement today:

"Political agitators, with the support of two local regiments, took over the administration of Tashkent (capital of Russian Turkestan,) and announced that they no longer recognized the Provisional Government. The Mussulman population, which disapproved of the town's masters, rose in revolt and, aided by the pupils of the military academy, occupied the fortress.

"The Government has appointed the commander of the troops at Kazan (eastern European Russia,) General Korovnitchenko, Commissary General of Turkestan and has placed at his disposal sufficient troops to suppress the disorders."

The Minister of the Interior says he is not alarmed, and is confident the disturbances will soon be quelled.

Russian Turkestan is composed of four provinces in Central Asia extending westward to the Caspian Sea. It has an area of 420,000 square miles and a population of about 6,685,000. The major portion of the region is in the form of barren or partly cultivated steppes or deserts.

BIGGEST GUN DUEL OF WAR AT YPRES

DESPAIRING GERMAN NOTE

Officer Records His Escape from a Dugout Where All His Companions Were Killed.

By PHILIP GIBBS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, Monday, Oct 1, (Delayed.)—Since the battle on Sept. 26, when English, Scottish, and Australian troops drew close to Zonnebeke and established themselves beyond Polygon Wood race course, on the southern end of Passchendaele Ridge, there has been a ceaseless artillery battle. It reached great heights of fury on both sides, so that for miles around by day and night there was a steady beat of heavy guns and long thunder rolls of lighter artillery, like a wild sea beating against high rocks.

The enemy has been massing troops again for a counterattack in the Zandwoorde region and northward behind the spurs of the Passchendaele, and each time they have been seen quickly by the British airplanes or have been reported by "S O S" signals from the infantry, and the British guns have smashed those German battalions and added to the great toll of slaughter which must surely give a sense of fear to the German high command.

When I went over the ground of Inverness Copse and Glencorse Wood a few days ago there were more dead than I had ever seen before on one battleground. They were strewn around blockhouses, lying in the foul water of swamps and shellholes, in dugouts broken by the British fire and half buried in the heaved earth. It is like that over a wide stretch of country, and behind that ground which the British have taken and hold there is other ground, miles back, over which the German dead are scattered like Autumn leaves. For the British gunners have no limit to their ammunition now, and their shells go in ceaseless flights over the enemy's lines to smash their human targets.

This morning again the German infantry was assembled three times and sent forward into the shambles—three times for attacks on each side of that Ypres-Menin road which strikes through this country of death. Polygon Heights was their goal, but the men up there are ready and strong for any hostile advance. With machine gun and rifle fire and the pounding of "heavies" these morning attacks have been beaten off.

Imagination fails to picture the scenes out there behind the German lines—the agony of those men who, like the Poles among them, have no desire to fight, and only terror of the fury of shellfire into which they are ordered like poor beasts for slaughter and sacrifice. Lines scribbled in German note-books and found on the battlefield give glimpses of this human anguish and of the blood and filth through which these men move. Here is one such note by an unknown German officer:

"If it were not for the men who have been spared me on this fierce day and are lying around me and looking at me timidly, I should shed hot and bitter tears over the terrors that have menaced me during these hours. On the morning of Sept. 18 a dugout containing seventeen men was shot to pieces over our heads. I am the only one who withstood the maddening bombardment of three days and still survives. You cannot imagine the frightful mental torments I underwent in those few hours. After crawling out through the bleeding remnants of my comrades and the smoke and débris and wandering and fleeing in the midst of raging artillery fire in search of refuge, I am now awaiting death at any moment. You do not know what Flanders means. Flanders means endless endurance; Flanders means blood and scraps of human bodies; Flanders means heroic courage and faithfulness even unto death."

The Germans do not lack courage. The enemy is, it is certain, seriously alarmed by the British position on Polygon Heights and up by Zonnebeke, which threatens the whole of the Passchendaele Ridge, and he is retaliating by tremendous gunfire over a wide stretch of front and in deep belts of sweeping barrage fire is trying to knock out the British batteries, to set dumps alight, to catch bodies of men on the march, and smash communications. It is, I am sure, the greatest artillery battle that has ever been seen in this war; for never on either side has there been such concentration of guns, nor such intense and widespread fire.

The British have to move through this and choose their tracks carefully and dodge shellbursts which fall about them; but the spirit and valor of them all is beyond words of praise, and they are carrying on with the same steady persistence which has already brought them far along many hard roads and through many rough times.

The enemy made a great bid last night, as on many other nights during last week, when the moon has been up, to spread terror and destruction behind the British lines by air raids. It was a wonderful night, with a full moon shining brightly in a sky that was strangely blue for a Flemish night, and with a milky luminance over all the fields. The air raiders came out as soon as the moon was revealed, and made their way across the British lines at many points, searching for camps, railways, and dumps, and dropping bombs haphazard over small villages of no military importance to them.

Germans' Efforts Desperate.

The artillery battle is endless, and on both sides is intense and widespread. It was followed yesterday by five German counterattacks, which did not reach the British lines. In a very desperate way the enemy is trying to push the British lines. In a very desperate way the enemy is trying to push the British back from positions which are essential to the strength of his defenses. All his guns are at work. Is it the last phase of the war? Does the enemy know that he must win or lose all?

Haig's men have that hope in their hearts and fight more grimly and with higher spirit because of it. The success of the last two battles has deepened the hope, and the men come back from the line to the rest billets with the old conviction, newly revived, that at last they have the enemy down and under and very near hopelessness.

In any one billet in Flanders one hears the tale of the battle told by the men who were there, and it is worth while, as yesterday, when I sat down at a table with officers of an English county battalion in a Flemish farm house. They told the tale of the battle, and each of them had some detail to add because that was his part of the show. They spoke as though all the things had happened long ago, and laughed loudly at episodes of gruesome interest, belonging to those humors of war which are not to be written.

There were lots of troops to their right and left in the great battle which I have described before in its broader aspects; but these men only knew their own part in it. There was a thick mist when they went away at dawn, so dense that they could not see the line of the British barrage ahead, though it was a deep belt of bursting shells. They had been told to follow closely, and they were eager to get on. They went too fast—some of them almost incredibly fast.

Caught in Their Own Barrage.

"I was on the last position three-quarters of an hour before the barrage passed," said a young officer. He spoke the words as if telling something rather commonplace, but he knew I knew the meaning of what he said—a frightful and extraordinary thing; for with his platoon he had gone ahead of the storm of fire and had to wait until it reached and then passed them. Some of their losses were because of that, and yet they might have been greater if they had been slower, because the enemy was caught before he could guess they were near.

Some ran toward their own lines with their hands up, shouting: "Kamerad!" believing that they were running toward the British. They were so unready for the attack that the snipers had the safety clips on their rifle barrels, and others were without ammunition.

The way to the last objective was easy, on the whole, and the Germans were on the run with the British after them. The hardest time came afterward, as it nearly always comes, when the ground gained had to be held for three more days and nights without the excitement of attack and under heavy fire. That is when the courage of the men is most tried, as this battalion found. The enemy had time to pull themselves together, the German gunners adapted their range to the new positions and shelled fiercely across the ways of approach and scattered 5.9s everywhere.

It was rifle fire for the British men all the time. They had not troubled to bring up a great many bombs, for the rifle has come into its own again, now that the old trench warfare is gone for a time or for all time. So with rifle fire and machine gun fire they broke down the German counterattacks and caught parties of Germans, who showed themselves on the slopes of Passchendaele Ridge, and sniped incessantly. They used up a prodigious quantity of small arms, ammunition, and the carriers risked their lives every step of the way to get it up to them. They fired 30,000 rounds and then 16,000 more.

There was one officer who spent all his time sniping from a little patch of ground that had once been a garden. He lay behind the heaped ruin and used his fieldglasses to watch the slopes of rising ground on his left where human ants were crawling. Every now and then he fired and picked off an ant until his score reached fifty.

but after a considerable rest they came forward once more. Again they broke, and this time ran, with the British in hot pursuit. The British did not pause until they reached a point 100 yards in advance of their lines, where they rested and at latest reports were holding firmly.

"Hot fighting was still proceeding near Cameron house, just south of the eastern extremity of Polygon Wood, where the Germans succeeded in pushing back the British a little. This was a local fight over a very small patch of ground. Further German attacks are not unexpected.

"Throughout the fight German airplanes were circling low over the British line in an attempt to assist their troops."

Following is the text of the afternoon official statement:

> The latest reports show that yesterday and last night five separate attacks were made or attempted by the enemy with fresh troops upon the portion of our new front between the Ypres-Menin road and the northeast corner of Polygon Wood. Another attack was made without success south of the Ypres-Roulers Railway against the positions at Zonnebeke.
> Except for the loss of the two small advanced posts already reported, all six attacks ended in complete failure. The enemy suffered severely in these attacks and gained no advantage.

Slight German Gain Near Verdun.

PARIS, Oct. 2.—The offcial communication issued by the War Office tonight says:

> In Belgium and at various points along the Aisne front the artillery action was quite violent. On the right bank of the Meuse, after an intense bombardment, reported this morning, the Germans delivered a strong attack between Hill 344 and Samogneux.
> The enemy assaulting detachments, under the violence of our fire, were able to reach our lines only at one point north of Hill 344. After a stubborn combat we recaptured the greater part of the advance elements where the enemy had gained a foothold.
> Last night enemy airplanes bombed the town of Toul, causing several casualties.

The afternoon statement follows:

> There was marked activity of the artillery over the whole Aisne front, especially in the sector of Craonne. Two enemy attacks, one north of Braye-en-Laonnois, the other in the region of Ailles, were without result.
> In the region northwest of Rheims our artillery dispersed enemy concentrations.
> On the right bank of the Meuse (Verdun front) the artillery fighting was very intense during the night from Samogneux as far as Bézonvaux. The Germans made two efforts to recapture our trenches in the Beaumont sector. Our fire checked them each time, inflicting appreciable losses.

Berlin Claims Success Near Ypres.

BERLIN, Oct. 2, (via London.)—Part of the fighting ground at Polygon Wood, on the Flanders front, to a depth of 500 meters, was captured by German troops from the British yesterday, Army Headquarters announced today. The Germans held their gains.

The text of the official statement follows:

> Front of Crown Prince Rupprecht—In the centre of the Flanders front the artillery duel was intense. Between Langemarck and Hollebeke on several occasions it increased to waves of drumfire.
> In the morning our storming troops wrested from the British a portion of the fighting region at Polygon Wood, north of the Menin-Ypres road, some 500 meters deep, and held it against strong and repeated counterattacks. In addition to considerable casualties, the enemy lost prisoners.
> Front of the German Crown Prince: Northeast of Soissons the artillery fighting activity increased. Before Verdun there was a lively firing engagement in connection with a successful enterprise on the eastern bank of the Meuse.
> Near Bézonvaux in the morning shock troops, with pioneers, broke into the rear lines of the French position, destroyed trench establishments, and returned to their own positions with more than 100 prisoners.

An Architectural Triumph

by The Particular Person

By kind permission of The New York Evening Post.

IN speaking of "The Mansions," one cannot help but mention the Gardens, that are enclosed within them like something precious. So they are. Every bit of green is welcome in the stone-paved city. Dwellers in "The Mansions" are to see plants, trees, well-kept lawns from their windows, instead of the usual blank walls. An arcade running through brings added air and light. That is a clever arrangement, is it not, to build about the gardens like that? Every room, you see, is thus made an outside room, with abundant air and light. And every entrance within the Gardens is given the privacy of one's own home—perfectly protected from the public gaze.

Well-Planned Conveniences

Within, one sees the same master building. The architects, Messrs. Warren & Wetmore, have left no detail unplanned. Amid all the impressive elegance of spacious chambers, high ceilings, great fireplaces, inlaid floors, paneled and oil-painted walls, hallways that are galleries, closets that are rooms, one finds all the details that only the housewife can appreciate. Fixtures for chafing dish or percolator, connections for reading lamp and bell, separate sinks for glasses and dishes, a great store room, an individual laundry, separate service entrance in the servants' quarters, away from the living rooms—need one go further? Double floors and hung ceilings insure a quiet rarely found in apartments. Not even a sound will hint of the dancing or concert that is going on above or below. That is unusual, is it not?

Extraordinary Services

Living at "The Mansions," one may have the convenience of its service. By a simple telephone call in advance, one may arrange for a luncheon, a dinner, a banquet, in one's own rooms, or in "The Mansions" restaurant, over which the Ritz-Carlton so ably presides. And you need only call "The Mansions" office to set in motion an immediate, organized effort to supply you with whatever servants you need.

A step, and one is in the very heart of the lively city, with theatres, clubs, hotels, and shops all about just waiting to offer their pleasures. These are "The Mansions"—truly the ideal of comfort, privacy, service and location!

GREY SAYS AMERICA BALKS BERLIN PEACE

Writes of Our Influence in the Preface to London Edition of Wilson Statements.

ALLIES BOUND BY SAME AIM

Germany Dare Not Face Situation Now Existing, the Ex-Foreign Secretary Asserts.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—The Daily News publishes quotations from a preface which Lord Grey of Falloden has written to a collection of statements made by President Wilson on the war which a London publishing firm is issuing in pamphlet form.

The ex-Foreign Secretary says the entry of the United States into the war is a tremendous fact. Potentially the strongest country in the world, she enters the contest when Germany is in an advanced state of exhaustion. America's full strength has not yet been mobilized for war, and her intervention cannot, by military or naval action, be decisive in a short time, but it is now clear that no military or naval success of German arms in Europe can procure a German peace.

"Germany cannot get peace and the economic recovery which she, at least as much as other great European belligerents, needs, except on conditions that the United States may consider essential to their own interests and to the future peace and freedom of the world," Lord Grey writes. "It is impossible to get around this fact, and it is not surprising that Germany dare not face it, and turns her back upon it that she may not face it, for that is what the organized silence and contempt in Germany of the action of the United States really mean."

Lord Grey next discusses "deeper significance and far-reaching consequences" of the reasons and spirit that forced the tremendous national decision of Americans. He says they have a settled and paramount conviction "that this terrible war is a desperate and critical struggle against something evil and intensely dangerous to moral law, to international good faith, to everything that is essential, if different nations are to live together in the world in equal freedom and friendship."

Militarism stands for things that all democracies if they wish to remain free must hate, he says. Holding these convictions, no nation so great and free as the United States could stand aside in this crisis without sacrificing its honor and losing its soul.

Lord Grey points out that though the United States are not a party to the agreements binding the Allies this is of small practical effect "compared with the deep underlying identity of view, principle and feeling." The policy and purpose of all is human liberty and to secure peace. If this purpose is not attained, Lord Grey says, the future lot of mankind will be more desperate than in the darkest and most cruel ages.

To make peace on the basis suggested in Berlin would be gambling upon a chance, he contends. In other words of President Wilson, "a steadfast concert for peace can never be maintained except by partnership of democratic nations and no autocratic Government can be trusted to keep faith within it or observe its convenants." All the great nations of Europe, except Germany, Lord Grey concludes, are now in form and in spirit, and in fact, democratic.

No written agreement, he says, is necessary to draw America and Great Britain together or to keep them in friendship. What is needed is that each should continually see in utterances of representative men and in writings of the press not the eccentricities and and the fringe, but the real stuff of national feeling, not froth and eddies, but the main deep current of public opinion in both countries.

"This," says Lord Grey, "is what we on this side feel about President Wilson's recent announcements. They satisfy and carry conviction. If millions of dear lives that have been given in this war are to have been given not in vain; if there is to be any lasting compensation for the appalling suffering of the last three years, the defeat of the Prussian will to power, however it be brought about, will not by itself be enough. Out of that defeat must come something constructive, some moral change in international relations, and the entry of the United States of America into the war in the spirit and with the principles that have inspired their actions is invaluable and, I trust, a sure and inconquerable guarantee that in the peace and after the peace these hopes will be realized."

recent moon light air raids, and at many places difficulty at first was found in providing accommodations for the visitors. During the first few nights many of the poorer people who emigrated from the metropolis slept in the open, but since then the authorities have made arrangements for sleeping quarters for them in public buildings. The shopkeepers in the towns have done a thriving business, many of them having disposed of all their stocks of provisions.

Most of the people return to London after daybreak each morning, thus causing a big crush on suburban trains.

Bombs Two British Hospitals.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE AND BELGIUM, Oct. 2.—A German airman has dropped bombs on two hospitals behind the British lines. Three British nurses and some wounded soldiers were killed.

RAID FOUR GERMAN CITIES.

PARIS, Oct. 2.—The German cities of Frankfort-on-the-Main, Stuttgart, Treves, and Coblenz were bombarded last night by French aviators in retaliation for German aerial attacks on French cities. More than 15,000 pounds of bombs were dropped on German military establishments in Belgium and back of the fighting front in France.

The following official announcement was given out:

The Germans last night made a new attack on the town of Dunkirk. The bombardment was very violent, causing serious material damage. It is reported there were numerous victims among the civilian population.

"In reprisal for the bombardments carried out by the Germans against Bar-le-Duc and Dunkirk, our aviators last night threw down bombs on the towns of Frankfort-on-the-Main, Coblenz, Treves, and Stuttgart.

"Our bombarding airplanes made numerous expeditions, in the course of which 2,120 kilograms (4,674 pounds) of explosives were thrown on military buildings in Roulers and 6,000 kilograms (13,230 pounds) on the railway stations at Metz-sur-Woippy and Thionville, the airdrome at Chambly, encampments at Spincourt and Tilly, and munition depots at the Longeau Farm, where a violent explosion was observed.

"Two German airplanes were brought down yesterday by our pilots, and four others were compelled to land in a disabled condition."

Report Three U-Boats Sunk.

Three U-boats were sunk on Sept. 14 off the Irish coast in the course of a series of attacks made on a fast-steaming fleet of six convoyed transports, which escaped injury, according to the officers of a British steamship that arrived yesterday at an Atlantic port from England.

The transports were steaming at 14 knots an hour. They were protected by destroyers and a cruiser.

PACIFISTS ARRANGING CONFERENCE AT BERNE

Austria and Hungary Encourage Project to Discuss a League of Nations.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Oct. 2.—Failure to arrange a Socialist Congress at Stockholm seems to have determined leading Austrian and Hungarian pacifists to try to hold an international assembly at Berne. The Austrian and Hungarian Governments have officially announced that they will accord passports to any of their nationals desiring to attend the Congress, which has been fixed provisionally for Oct. 15, and is intended to discuss a league of nations.

On the face of it the Congress will not concern itself with events preceding the conclusion of the present war, but the Austrian and Hungarian Governments may hope that the discussions will further their objective of precipitating peace negotiations. So far the German Government has not guaranteed any passports to delegates.

Among the Hungarians who have announced their intention of being present are Count Michael Karolyi and several prominent publicists and churchmen. The Austrian representatives will include Professor Lamarscs, who is named as a probable member of the next Vienna Cabinet; the chocolate king, Julius Meinl; Professor Redlich, and a leader of the Catholic peace party. Among the Germans who will come if they can do so are Professor Schueckling, Dr. Bernhard Dernburg, George Gothein, Eduard Bernstein, and Professor Quidde, who was sent to prison for comparing the Kaiser to the degenerate and lunatic Caligula."

FEAR GERMAN SPLIT IF TERMS ARE TOLD

CONFUSION IN REICHSTAG

Continental Solidarity Adopted as Keynote of New Foreign Secretary's Declared Aims.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Saturday, Sept. 29, (via London, Oct. 2.)—It is almost impossible to form an accurate judgment of yesterday's proceedings in the Reichstag Main Committee, when Foreign Secretary von Kühlmann made his speech on peace, until further data and the full speech are available. The Socialist Moske's speech, it is known, was not allowed to be published, except a small extract on Alsace-Lorraine. Herr Hoch, another Socialist, accused Chancellor Michaelis of fooling the Reichstag again.

The Frankfurter Zeitung says it is understandable that, as up-to-date America is the only country in arms against Germany which has replied to the Papal peace note, German statesmen should maintain a certain reticence.

"However," adds the Zeitung, "there was every opportunity at yesterday's session of the Reichstag Committee to speak with more clearness and definiteness about things which could only be breathed diplomatically in answer to the Pope. This did not happen, and the speeches in this respect have not fulfilled the most modest hopes. We belong to those who desire a definite, open statement of Germany's attitude regarding Belgium. Von Kühlmann laid great stress on the unity of the country, showing that the need of maintaining domestic unity was the real reason why he did not dare go further in what he said."

Definite statements at the session in approval of the Government's attitude are attributed to Erzberger, who, it appears, expressed through support of the Chancellor's attitude and said that it was perfectly clear and in every sense good, and that only thus was the unity of the German people possible.

The tone of all the speeches shows that German diplomacy is directed, as Bethmann Hollweg intended, to prevent a direct breach between the Right and the Left, but still more that German policy is intended to produce abroad a belief that this threatened breach between the Right and the Left has been successfully avoided. It may be, as one would gather from leading articles in the German papers last night, that the collapse of Russia has actually restored the German's belief in their ability to maintain the military situation as it is now until the Allies are exhausted. That, at any rate, is the impression Germany wishes to propagate.

To one passage in von Kühlmann's speech special attention may be called—his reference to the solidarity of Continental interests. It is significant that this catchword, invented by von Tirpitz and the annexationists, has been adopted as the basis of his policy by the new Foreign Secretary. It will be remembered that this so-called solidarity of Continental interests has always meant German schemes against the British Empire and America. The Amsterdam Telegraaf observes tonight that the answer must be with guns.

WANTS GERMANS PUNISHED.

British Seamen's Union Leader Denounces Teutonic Peace.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—Joseph Havelock Wilson, General Secretary of the National Seamen's Union, in a speech at Middlesbrough last night, said that all wanted peace, "but we're not going to have a German peace. It has been said that it is impossible to have a military victory. Well, if we cannot win the war with such a great weight as that of the United States, we do not deserve to win."

Wilson added that if he could have his way and the seamen asked him "we would deliberately punish the Germans for the crimes they have committed." He enjoined all the seamen "to keep the flag at the masthead, never to surrender, and to go straight on with the determination that we are going to win and bring about peace on satisfactory lines."

The speaker said that some pacifists "who love every country but their own," would make believe that Great Britain was as guilty in this war as the Germans.

"I can only describe them," he said, "as very foolish men."

PERSHING TO RECEIVE FULL GENERAL'S RANK

Baker Plans Revival of Title Held By Washington, Grant, Sheridan and Sherman.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Revival of the grade of full General is planned by the War Department to provide suitable rank for Major Gen. John J. Pershing, commanding the American expeditionary forces in France.

It was learned tonight that Secretary Baker already had submitted the department's program—which includes provision for the title General to be held by the officer serving as Chief of Staff and the making of several Lieutenant Generals to command corps under General Pershing—to the Senate Military Committee, and that legislation carrying it into effect was to be pressed for prompt passage when Congress reconvened in December.

TRUTH

It's surprising how many New York Stores have suddenly discovered that their clothes are Hand-Tailored since Franklin Simon introduced the genuine article to New York Men.

We suppose if we announced that we had discovered the North Pole, many of the stores referred to would claim that they have Resident Buyers there.

They simply cannot resist the temptation to take advantage of other people's opportunities.

But the Truth as to Franklin Simon Hand-Tailored Clothes does not suffer thereby, but rather, as Shakespeare says:

MAYOR OPENS FIRE ON TAMMANY

local government and have asked me, in the name of a public duty, that I recognize, in the name of decency in municipal affairs, in the name of effective and serviceable government for the people of the city, but above all, in the name of loyalty to the country that we, as American citizens, owe, to make this fight against these forces of darkness that are arrayed against America, and against its greatest city.

"Now, there are two kinds of divided allegiance—the divided allegiance that cries 'patriotism' and points to the flag and at the same time insidiously preaches the doctrine of the Hohenzollern; that is one kind of divided allegiance, a kind of divided allegiance that we must stamp out if we would secure the future of America. And the other is the divided allegiance that recognizes or rather accepts public office at the hands of the people of the city, but renders service to a small group of self-seeking forces that stand behind in the darkness. And that divided allegiance must likewise be stamped out if we would protect and insure the future of our city.

"Now, my fellow citizens, we have for years past been engaged in an effort to divorce from municipal business questions of national politics, recognizing that the method of cleaning a street, the method of lighting a highway, the method of supplying pure drinking water for the people of the city, the method of administering the great social services—charities, correction and health—are not affected by the principles of government that guide parties in national affairs. We have been trying to get politics, in the national party sense, out of municipal affairs.

"Let me say that never in the history of the city has there been an opportunity such as that which is offered today to secure an administration for the City of New York that owes its election and its nomination to no political party and to no political group, as this one will if it be re-elected to office. Not, my friends, that we do not invite the support of every party man in the City of New York—Democrat, Republican, Socialist—not that we do not invite their support in the name of effective government, and in the name of loyal government, but that if this administration is returned to office it will owe no debts and no obligations except to the people of the city, from whom it takes its title. Now, one thing I have already noticed in the force of the campaign which has scarcely begun, and that is for the first time in his political career I have compelled Mr. Murphy to come out and declare himself in the open for his own ticket."

The Answer to Murphy.

The Mayor picked up a copy of the statement given out by Mr. Murphy, and went on:

"He did so in a statement that he issued today, in which he said that my charge that the ticket that Tammany has put in the field is not to be associated with those forces that have been working covertly and malignly to break down the effectiveness of a National Government in this war, because the rank and the file of Tammany Hall are loyal to America, because their young men have gone into the service of the nation. Of course they have; of course the rank and file of Tammany Hall are loyal to America. Whoever would undertake to charge that this great group of citizens of this city are in their hearts and minds disloyal to their country?

"But Mr. Murphy did not answer for those who have nominated this ticket, and who control these nominees. He did not discuss with me the loyalty of the man who nominated Hylan, Mr. Hearst. He did not discuss the consistent policy of Mr. Hearst, beginning with the outbreak of this war, preaching the doctrine of the Hohenzollern and the Hapsburg, preaching the doctrine of the conqueror and of the oligarch, that doctrine which began with advocating that this country merely stand by and squeeze all the profit out of the warring nations that it could, until Germany was stopped at the battle of the Marne, and then began to point out the horrors of the war, and to show how it would benefit America to undertake to open negotiations for peace, in order that a peace favorable to the nation that had occupied another's territory might be effected at that time, and how then, as the war went on, that doctrine was continuously preached, pointing out that there were equal equities between the warring nations, and advocating interference here and there in the interest of Germany, and against the interests of certain of the Allies, down to the time that war was declared by the United States in protection of our interests, and for the sacred principles of human liberty involved. And then began to preach the doctrine that this country in this war ought not to send her men over there to fight the battles of democracy and to protect the territory of this country against the future invasion that would follow if we did not.

"That consistent course is one upon which Mr. Murphy has remained silent. Mr. Murphy has not discussed in this statement that he put out the activities of his friend, his close adviser, his intimate, Judge Cohalan."

Hisses for Hearst and Cohalan.

Hisses had greeted every mention of Hearst's name, but when he mentioned Cohalan they spread all over the hall. Raising his voice, the Mayor continued:

"Judge Cohalan we know now has been active even up to the point of the declaration of war in working insidiously against the interests of one of the great allied nations and against the neutrality of the United States. Mr. Murphy said nothing about that note which was discovered among the von Igel documents, von Igel, the German spy."

The Mayor here read the document found among the von Igel papers, which mentioned the name of Justice Cohalan, and went on:

"And this after Germany had sent Americans to the bottom of the Atlantic upon the Lusitania! This is the man closely associated with these forces that stand behind this ticket. On that Mr. Murphy remains silent. Mr. Murphy is not taking us into his confidence in this reply concerning all those forces—O'Leary, Cohalan, Hearst—all of them working insidiously behind this ticket nominated—why? Because, ladies and gentlemen, those forces do not want a government in the City of New York that they know will stand with President Wilson and the Government of the United States in every effort that that Government makes to bring this war to a successful conclusion.

"Mr. Murphy said, talking of loyalty and Americanism, 'Where do you find any better than our county ticket?' I suppose he was referring to the New York County ticket. He could not have been referring to the Bronx County ticket, for that is headed by Henry Bruckner, who voted to keep Americans in cowardly idleness and off our ships when he voted against the McLemore resolution. To keep them off the ships because he was defending the doctrine that if an American went on those ships it was well within the proprieties and the equities for Germany to sink the ship and send him to the bottom of the Atlantic. So Mr. Murphy could not have in mind his candidate for Borough President in the Bronx, for his record upon a question of Americanism is not quite such as to recommend him to the people of this city.

"Then he said, in comment, and, by the way, perhaps I ought to apologize, you may think, for discussing issues with Mr. Murphy, a boss. No, that is not the case, because Mr. Murphy and Mr. Hearst are really the joint candidates for Mayor upon this ticket. And as a candidate for Mayor, Hylan has shown no great disposition to discuss this matter since yesterday, I must discuss it with his principals. So Mr. Murphy says that Theodore Roosevelt and William Howard Taft, who came down to the City Hall, or rather one of them, Mr. Roosevelt, came down to the City Hall, and the other wrote, to urge me to undertake this fight, don't count for much, because they don't vote in the City of New York. That is his standard—vote. Well, I think that Theodore Roosevelt counts for something. I think that ex-President Taft counts for something. And I am willing to stake the result of this election upon a comparison, in point of Americanism, capacity, honesty, anything that you will, between Judge Cohalan and Judge Hughes, and between Hearst and Theodore Roosevelt."

"Hang Hearst!" "Hang Cohalan!"

The mention of Colonel Roosevelt's name brought out a storm of cheering. This was continued when the Mayor mentioned Mr. Hughes. But at the mention of Mr. Hearst's name a man stood up and shouted at the top of his lungs, "Hang Hearst!" There was handclapping, and from another part of the hall another cried, "Hang Cohalan!" The Mayor appeared to be startled, and while he hesitated there came several cries of "Hang all of them!" The Mayor then proceeded:

"While this question, this great and fundamental question that I have been discussing with you affects at every point the city government and therefore must and will be discussed in this campaign, affects it because the services of city government may be called upon at any time to co-operate with the services of the nation.

"Through the Mayor's Committee on National Defense we have co-operated in securing enlistments for army and for navy; we have co-operated in food control; we have co-operated by putting docks and parks and public lands at the disposition of the army and the navy, for the more effective prosecution of this war, and while the question touches the city government at every point and a municipal campaign this year cannot be conducted without regard to that great question, still I am here tonight to discuss with you questions that affect directly the civic life of the City of New York as well."

From then on the Mayor told of the things that had been accomplished during his administration. He launched first into a defense of the so-called Gary school plan. He said Tammany had raised the cry about the public schools and had charged that he had attempted to deliver the schools into the hands of Rockefeller and the foundations. This charge, the Mayor said, was based only upon the fact that Abraham Flexner and Raymond Fosdick had held office in the Board of Education. The Mayor said that Mr. Flexner had been appointed by Mayor Gaynor and Mr. Fosdick by himself, but that he took full responsibility for them. The crowd laughed when he declared:

"Even if these two men had actually represented the Rockefeler interests, the Board of Education is made up of forty-six men, and if we are to argue that these two could override the other forty-four and control the affairs of the Board of Education, we must credit them with almost superhuman intelligence and capacity."

The Mayor said that in attempting to establish the Gary system the administration had simply undertaken to democratize the public schools of the city.

"We have undertaken," he continued, "to bring to the children of all the people, of all the City of New York exactly those special advantages and opportunities that hitherto have been enjoyed only by the children of the rich in expensive, private schools. That is an accurate statement of the result aimed at, and very largely the result attained."

Room for Children.

The Mayor explained that when the Administration took office there were about 120,000 school children either on part time or double session. The city, he said, did not have $50,000,000 with which to put up new school buildings, so a plan was sought to give the children full time for every school day. A plan, he said, had been worked out in Gary, Ind., and this was adopted in order to give a school building its maximum capacity, as follows:

"By supplying classrooms enough for a full school of children, and playgrounds, auditoriums, science rooms, and workshops enough for another full school of children at the same time. While one group are in the classrooms, the others are in the auditorium, science room, workshop, or playground. The plan consisted of alternating so that the school building is used to its maximum capacity for a full school day and for almost twice the number of children that would use the school building under the old plan in the City of New York."

The Mayor explained that play space had to be found in order to take the children off the streets. The work plan in the schools, he said, was not to fit boys and girls to go out into industry or to make artisans of them, but to develop their aptitudes the better to develop their minds. The Mayor added:

"I am convinced that this work, study, and play plan is good. I believe that New York City ought to thoroughly test out the experiment that has been undertaken. We ought to give it a fair trial. If there is something in it for the advantage of the children of New York, we ought to have it. And if, when it has been fairly tested, defects are found, we ought to cure them. That is a matter of administration for the Board of Education."

Taking up other work of the administration the Mayor said:

"There is another thing that Mr. Murphy and his candidates, pulled by the strings that operate them, whether they be in the hands of Untermeyer or of Hearst, are fond of saying, and that is, that this administration has been controlled by malefactors of great wealth, has been inspired against the interests of the ordinary people of the City of New York by big business. Now, let me point out to you a few of the things that this administration has undertaken for the ordinary citizen where the interests of some big business have been involved on the other side."

The Mayor specified the newly established Department of Markets which, he said, had been obtained after a hard fight with the Legislature. He told of the work done by his Committee on Food Supply and the Food Aid Committee. He mentioned what had been done to reach an agreement with the coal dealers and in the settlement of labor disputes, and then took up the work of the Police Department. He said that the former partnership between the police and crime had been broken up and that gunmen no longer terrorized the city. The police today, he said, has new activities, and dwelt upon how the children were made to feel that the policemen were not their enemies but friends to go to in time of trouble and distress. He was applauded when he said:

"We have a police force that knows how to do social work, and we have a police force that knows how to maintain order; that knows how to protect the peace of the people of the city, and that knows how to stop disorder and sedition wherever they may show their heads."

The Mayor took up the work of the Charities Department, both in public and private institutions, and concluded:

"Now, my fellow-citizens, I have discussed with you some of the questions and some of the achievements of the present city administration. The question that is presented to the voters this year is whether they prefer to re-establish profligacy and waste, bad service, dishonesty and inefficiency in the service of the City of New York; whether they want to bring back the days of Tammany and Murphy, Murphy-controlled Tammany in New York, or whether they want the kind of service that I have outlined to you tonight to continue, administered from the seat of government at the City Hall.

"That is the city question, and the other, the broader national question, is whether we shall have in the City Hall a Government inspired by the ideals of America and desiring only to serve the people of the United States in the successful prosecution of this war to a victorious issue, or whether we are to have government inspired by influences that are not friendly to the ideals of America."

The Mayor urged those present to register this year and to vote on Election Day whether for him or his opponents.

Following the Mayor's address, Marcus M. Marks, candidate for re-election as Borough President of Manhattan, was introduced. In accepting the renomination Mr. Marks said he stood squarely behind his four years' record as head of the Borough of Manhattan. He told of some of the problems and difficulties associated with the office, and said that in the twenty-five years he was engaged in active business he never worked harder than in the past four years. Nevertheless, he went on, he felt recompensed in view of the accomplishments of the Fusion administration.

While there had been differences of opinion among the members of the Board of Estimate during the administration, Mr. Marks continued, he believed that the particular differences that developed prevented many serious mistakes and added to the good results of the Mitchel régime. In concluding the Borough President said:

"I have always been frank and outspoken according to the dictates of my judgment and my conscience, and it is only right for me to say here and now that I shall continue to stand openly and strongly for my principles and policies. I have been and shall be no man's man. I heartily believe in an unmuzzled government. No boss has in the slightest degree dictated to or controlled me, or the other Fusion members of the Board of Estimate, nor will any boss control us in the future. It is this faith in the independence of Fusion that has always made me heart and soul for nonpartisanship in city government."

William H. Ransom, candidate for District Attorney, the next speaker, renewed his attack on District Attorney Edward Swann. He told of the challenge, as yet unanswered, which he had sent to Mr. Swann urging him to debate before the public the manner in which the office of the District Attotrney was being conducted. He proposed, he said, to tell the public of the state of affairs which existed under Mr. Swann and his assistants who, he asserted, had been selected by Leader Murphy. Mr. Ransom's assertion that recent events demanded the defeat of the present incumbent of the District Attorney's office was greeted with much applause.

"I have a conception of the kind of office which you would have there," he said. "I have a conception of an office which treats men fairly and justly and decently and humanly; an office which gives to the young men of this town a square deal, an office which does not make up its mind as to whether a man should be railroaded through or not, and then start to get those it has been determined to put through.

"I have a conception of an office which, as your Chairman has said, tries its cases, 'man fashion,' in the courts, and does not use the slime or the slur as a method of political manipulation; an office which is a law office and not a partisan tool, an office which is run as a law office should be, and is not run as a partisan press bureau; an office which is a great human instrumentality for justice and fair play in the community, a justice which means the confidence of our people in their laws, and a confidence of the people in their freedom from molestation at the hands of those who use public office for political purpose.

Adamson Attacks Tammany.

Fire Commissioner Robert Adamson, the next speaker, attacked the record of Tammany during the last twenty years, during which, he said, that organization elected three Mayors and two Governors. He indirectly referred to Tammany's Bureau of City Inquiry, which he characterized as "a paid slander bureau to blacken members of the present city administration."

"Three times in twenty years," he said, "Tammany Hall has elected Mayors in this city, and in every instance the man elected has either gone out denounced by the public or denouncing Tammany Hall. The first was Van Wyck, whose administration, with its red light, its Ramapo, its Ice Trust, and its Devery scandals, so humiliated the sense of decency of this city that it was overwhelmingly voted out of power at the end of his term.

"The second was McClellan, who, during his first term, attempted the impossible feat of keeping on good terms with Tammany Hall and in the good esteem of the public, and he, realizing the impossibility of that task, at the very beginning of his second administration repudiated Tammany Hall, and throughout his second administration was at war with them.

"And the third was Gaynor. Elected not because Tammany wanted him elected, not because he was the type of man that they desired to have in office, but elected because the exigencies of the situation, they thought, demanded it, and because he was a Mayor, because he would not turn over the office and the patronage of the city to Tammany Hall, he, at the end of his term, was coolly and contemptuously rejected for renomination."

In view of past performances, Mr. Adamson asked, could Judge Hylan expect to carry out the "beautiful program" which Tammany had presented. Whatever Judge Hylan's intentions might be, the speaker said, he was the candidate of a system which has never controlled the City Government without scandal and without disgrace.

Controller William A. Prendergast made a vigorous appeal for the re-election of Mayor Mitchel, whose Americanism, he asserted, was of the highest type.

"I am for him because during these nearly four years he has been rightly called a genuine American Mayor," the Controller said. "People have said to me within the last few days, do not push so hard on this American business; we are all patriots. Every one thinks just as strongly of his country as Mr. Mitchel's friends. Are they? Well, if so, let them act like patriots. We judge men by their actions not by their words, and some of them have not spoken enough words yet to determine whether they have got any ideas on Americanism or not. I said this had been a genuinely American administration. The public has no idea because it is not necessary, nor possibly would it be wise—no, it would be unwise for the City Government to disclose the work which it has been doing maintaining order, helping the United States Government, acting as its strong right arm, since this great war commenced."

In closing Controller Prendergast said that the recent refusal of Judge Hylan to ask a simple question based on that candidate's attitude on the McLemore resolution he had had four hours in which to make a reply was proof that he was afraid to make a statement unless authorized by Murphy.

ITALY PREPARING GREAT NEW DRIVE

AUSTRIA TAKES ALARM

Withdraws Nearly Whole of Her Forces from Eastern Fronts to Meet the New Peril.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Semi-official advices from Rome, reaching Washington today, indicate that the Italian offensive on the Austrian front is now entering the second and most important stage of the battle on the Bainsizza Plateau and both sides are making extraordinary preparations for the contest. General Cadorna, who has been in Rome for a conference with the Council of Ministers, has been consolidating his positions on the Bainsizza Plateau with the view to flanking Monte San Daniele and undertaking a new offensive toward Lubiano, (Laibach).

Meanwhile the French and British have sent additional warships to the northern waters of the Adriatic, and Italian troops may soon strike at Trieste in a combined land and sea offensive, aided by Entente naval forces.

The cablegram reads:

"The battle on the Bainsizza Plateau is not to be considered as finished. It is only the first phase of the battle which is over, with this result, that the strategic advantage is now on the Italian side. New operations are in preparation and the activity of the artillery is intensified every day From the Austrian press we learn that following the last visit of the Austrian Emperor along the Isonzo front considerable changes in the disposition of the forces have been made.

"The Austrian troops in Galicia and Bukowina have been withdrawn and transferred to the Italian front. Also from the Russian front most of the Austrian troops have been withdrawn and massed along the Isonzo front in new lines of fortifications as a preparation against a new offensive.

"General Cadorna has arrived in Rome, where he has taken part in the Council of Ministers, explaining extensively the latest military operations.

"The King of Italy has just returned from an extensive visit to the French front, where he saw the French lines in Alsace, and afterward went to Rheims, Soissons, Artois, and Verdun."

ROME, Oct. 2.—"There has been moderate artillery activity along the whole front," says today's announcement from the War Office. "On the Bainsizza plateau local attacks which were attempted were at once checked by our fire. On the Carso our patrols have been very active both in the southern and northern sectors. By a surprise attack we gained some ground."

ITALIAN FORCES LINKED BY BAINSIZZA VICTORY

Communication Established Between Troops on Plateau and Those in Gargaro Pit.

By PERCEVAL GIBBON.

Copyright, 1917, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE ITALIAN ARMY, Sept. 30.—There has been a lull in the fighting, but the Second Army—the army which stormed the Bainsizza Plateau, the army commanded by General Capello—knows no lulls. For this army the war is unceasing.

Now, in these quiet days, when an occasional action explodes like an unexpected shell, I have memory of Capello in his headquarters, pointing toward the heights plainly visible from the verandas of his villa, with a stout stick with which he walks, saying, in utter confidence, "Today I shall take that summit." I saw him so when Monte Santo hung in the balance. Now he had in forty-eight hours a double task to achieve, and carried both to a triumphant conclusion. The first was to maintain his holdings on the slopes of Monte San Gabriele; the second was to perfect and make permanently tenable his line on the other side of that deep pit among the mountains which is called the Concha di Gargaro, where the plateau of Bainsizza slopes in a steep staircase of ledges to the valley of Chiapovano.

The second of the above problems was brilliantly solved yesterday by deft organization of a movement local in extent, but of far-reaching strategic importance, which shoved back that portion of the new Austrian positions which impeded Italian connection between the forces on the Bainsizza highlands and that mobile force which occupies the Concha di Gargaro. Here, as already explained, the highlands descend in steep terraces to the great valley of Chiapovano, which is to the Austrians further south the main artery of supplies and the final channel of retreat in the event of disaster.

When, in August, Italian cavalry moved against the mouth of the valley, they were stopped by masses of wire, and the epic heroism of that day has still to be recounted. Yesterday's attack shifted the storm centre of action toward a point further north along the valley, threatening that stretched throat lower down, so to speak, and it succeeded brilliantly. The brigades employed were those of Venice, consisting of the Eighty-third and Eighty-fourth Regiments of Infantry, and of Tortona, consisting of the 257th and 258th Regiments, veteran formations whose part in the war has included a share in almost all the late actions across the Isonzo. To them was added a company of those weird heroes, the Arditi, who belong to no brigade, but were apportioned to attack by the Second Army—choice fighting spirits, volunteers every one, including the best and worst elements of Italy.

Their attack was preceded by two hours of bombardment, which opened at 6 o'clock in the morning. It was not such a bombardment as recently poured 40,000 shells a day on the granite forehead of San Gabriele, but it sufficed, and under shelter of it the Arditi raced up on the Austrian line, the bombers leading and the bayonet men following on. The Austrians, as always, were in dugouts. The Arditi, ripe for slaughter, were on them before they had recovered from the shelling.

Speaking humanly, for the moment my sympathy is with those Austrians. They were mostly Poles and Lithuanians, the latter speaking German, fresh from the peaceful resort of the front in the east, where they had hardly heard a shot fired in anger for five months. They had been fetched across the continent of Europe in four days from Galicia with all their artillery, and forthwith shoved into the line upon San Gabriele, of all places on earth. There they had been shelled and bombed and bayoneted, and generally bedeviled for nine days, after which what remained of them was withdrawn and sent to the Bainsizza Plateau, where but for the Second Army they would be yet. Something over 1,400 of them, however, are better off. They are prisoners, including about fifty officers, and these were the poor beggars who looked up from their shallow and unfinished dugouts to see the Arditi, bombs in both hands and avid for fight, come spouting in among them.

The Italian losses were grotesquely small. I have heard an estimate of twelve dead and twenty-three wounded. The Austrian losses, besides prisoners, in this small affair might be reckoned at nearly ten times those figures. They are certainly much more if one includes those who were slaughtered last evening, when they gathered their reserves together and made their half-dozen futile counterattacks, each one of which was cut down as it approached. The ground taken is firmly held.

TAMMANY'S CHOICE OF NEWSPAPERS

Hearst Publications and Staats-Zeitung Among Those Named for Election Advertising.

Of the $150,000 which the law sets aside for election advertising in New York City, $60,000 has been distributed by the Democratic element of the Board of Elections, which has the distribution of half of the election advertising expenditures. Four of the papers chosen by the Democrats are: The New York American, The Evening Journal, the Staats-Zeitung, and the Warheit. They, with The Morning Telegraph, have awards of $15,000 each.

Edward F. Boyle, President of the Board of Elections, a Tammany man, was one of those who had to do with the choosing of the newspapers for the Democratic allotment. James Kane, also a Tammany man, aided him. Victor F. Ridder, Vice President and Treasurer of the Staats-Zeitung, was recently forced to resign from the Mayor's Committee on National Defense.

Saks' Suits for Men—Fall 1917

are masterpieces of tailoring—who can improve upon a masterpiece?

¶ Every man in Manhattan owes it to himself to see the Saks' selections in Suits for Fall. We have always been proud of our productions, but to be able to show the variations in models, the almost limitless variety in patterns, and original color combinations in which Saks' suits for Fall have been developed, would make the most modest individual swell up like a Pouter pigeon with pride.

Woolen mills have been against the introduction of new patterns which made it still more difficult to accomplish that which we have achieved, but no matter what color or pattern you may lean toward, you'll find it here. And what is more the style of the suit you select will be fully in keeping with the marked individuality of the weave in which it has been developed. From every viewpoint our productions for Fall are masterpieces.

MURPHY IS AROUSED BY PATRIOTISM ISSUE

"Tammany Will Not Support Any Man Who Isn't Loyal," Says the Leader.

HAS MANY MEN IN SERVICE

Calls Alton B. Parker "That Boob from Esopus" and Pledges Organization to President.

While Judge John F. Hylan, Tammany candidate for Mayor, remained silent yesterday on the issues of the campaign as well as upon the demonstration given to Mayor Mitchel at the City Hall on Monday when the Mayor announced himself as an independent candidate for renomination, Charles F. Murphy, leader of the Fourteenth Street organization, gave out his longest interview since he has been leader. Mr. Murphy was bluntly outspoken, and said he meant it when he referred to former Judge Alton B. Parker of the Court of Appeals and Democratic candidate for President in 1914, as "that boob from Esopus." The interview began when Mr. Murphy was asked if he had any comment to make upon Mayor Mitchel's campaign. This is what he said:

"Yes, I noticed that some well-known out-of-town residents nominated a candidate for Mayor yesterday. There was Colonel Roosevelt, from Oyster Bay, and ex-President Taft of New Haven sent a letter, and that boob from Esopus—oh, he wasn't there, but he was listed to make a speech. Charles E. Hughes was there, and that shows he is grateful. Mayor Mitchel was for Hughes for President last year, and now Hughes is for Mitchel. Nothing wrong about that.

"Just put it in the paper that we up here at Tammany Hall are not afraid of that Americanism issue, and that patriotic issue which Mayor Mitchel and his friends are trying so hard to raise. Tammany Hall will not support any man who isn't loyal. There's no pussyfooting about that, is there? Every man on the New York County ticket was born right here in this city. On Gettysburg battlefield the biggest monument is to the men of the Forty-second New York Volunteers, and if anybody wants to know the battles in which that regiment distinguished itself, there's a tablet on which they are all carved, right here in the hall. Al Smith's father was killed in the civil war in which Mayor Mitchel's father fought on the Confederate side.

"And as for what Tammany Hall is doing today, why, Johnny O'Neill, one of our three stenographers here, tried five times to get in the service, and finally was fixed up somehow (physically) and now he is in the selective draft contingent that goes off on Thursday. So, with our other two boys here—our stenographers—they go off Thursday. They are Tom Doran and Alfred Baulz.

"There must be thirty Tammany boys from my district, the Twelfth Assembly, in the Sixty-ninth Regiment, and next Thursday there must be fifty Tammany boys and sons of Tammany men going off with the draft contingent. Jimmy Hagen has three sons in the military service, Hayes has a son in the service, and Judge Moss has two boys in the service. My nephew, William H. Murphy, is in the Sixty-ninth Regiment, and Charles Culkins has two boys in the service. I could go on and name a hundred Tammany men who are in the United States fighting service.

"The people know it all. I don't have to say all this. The people know whether Tammany Hall is loyal or not. The people know just how much weight there is to Mayor Mitchel's issue of patriotism and Americanism. We are not afaid of that issue.

"There will be no hesitation in meeting that issue. A letter has just been sent to the Speakers' Bureau and to every candidate reminding them they are to advocate the buying of Liberty bonds in every speech. Tammany is always ready to uphold President Wilson's acts, and to vote for him, too. All Tammany men in Congress have supported his war measures. I challenge anybody to question Tammany in any degree on its patriotism and its Americanism. Two years before this war you will find that we adopted resolutions urging a larger army and navy. We were for preparedness. Tammany clubs have all adopted resolutions offering their building to the Federal Government for any service, and they are open, ready, and free for patriotic meetings."

POUNDS COMES OUT IN SUPPORT OF MAYOR

Announcement Arouses Great Enthusiasm in Brooklyn Meeting—Cheers for Mitchel.

More than 3,000 persons received Mayor Mitchel and the other Fusion candidates with great enthusiasm at a meeting in the Brooklyn Academy of Music last night, following the meeting held in Cooper Union. When the Mayor, who was the chief speaker, entered the hall the audience got to its feet and cheered for five minutes.

Those who spoke besides Mayor Mitchel were Borough President Lewis H. Pounds, Republican nominee for reelection, who flatly announced that he would support the candidacy of Mayor Mitchel and all the other Fusion candidates, Robert Adamson, candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen, and Controller Prendergast.

The crowd took great interest in the speech of Mr. Pounds, because it was not known until he had made his public announcement last night whether he would support Mr. Mitchel or Mr. Bennett. He kept his audience waiting for the announcement through a long speech, and the crowd finally became impatient and loud cries for him to assert whom he would support came from all parts of the hall. Finally, a man with a loud voice in one of the galleries kept shouting at intervals:

"Who are you going to support for Mayor? Who are you going to support for Mayor?"

"I have taken a great pride in being a part of the administration of the past four years," said Mr. Pounds. "I cannot tonight do aught else than support the men I have worked with. If I did not support them I would be admitting that they did wrong, which I shall not do under any circumstances. I purpose to do all that I can to re-elect them."

The Mayor was cheered when he opened his speech with an attack on Hearst, saying:

"Divided allegiance is represented by Mr. Hearst, who puts the Star-Spangled Banner on the front page and tries to stab his country in the back in his editorial columns. The divided allegiance has led that man, the most sinister influence in public life in America, to preach the doctrine of the Hohenzollerns from the day the war in Europe broke out down to the present moment."

He devoted most of his speech to the charges of District Attorney Swann regarding the land deals with the city, in which ex-Senator Reynolds was interested, and attacked the District Attorney bitterly for misrepresentations.

Mayor Mitchel said that the proposal to acquire Rockaway Point for a city park came first from a local committee at Jamaica, which, in 1904, urged that the city should buy the property. Two years later, after some agitation of the project, he said that the State Legislature authorized the city to spend up to $2,500,000 for property on the seashore for park or hospital purposes.

One of the leading proponents of the purchase of the Rockaway Park site at that time, Mayor Mitchel said, was President Dowling of the Board of Aldermen, one of the leaders of Tammany Hall. Another influence in favor of the project, he said, came from charitable and philanthropic societies and institutions who were supporting in the movement Jacob Riis, an ardent advocate of the acquisition of the point for a city park. He said:

"The District Attorney's office, which has respect neither for the living or the dead, has not hesitated in this connection to cast a contemptible slur on the memory of Jacob Riis."

Mayor Mitchel quoted from Board of Estimate records to show that Controller Metz had twice reported favorably on the project of purchasing the Rockaway Point site and to show that the Tammany Board of Estimate of 1907 had sought to acquire the property at a private sale, without condemnation proceedings, but that the owners of the property would not agree to it. During this period, he said, the project was opposed by Bird S. Coler on the ground that the title to the property was not clear, but later this difficulty was removed by a complete investigation by the Corporation Counsel who reported that the flaw in the title had been removed by an agreement between the owners and the United States Government. Most of the difficulties in the way of the purchase had been swept away by this time, Mayor Mitchel said, but the panic in 1917 caused the entire project to be dropped.

This was the condition, he said, in 1909, when the plan was recommended anew to the Board of Estimate, of which Mayor Gaynor, Controller Prendergast, Borough President McAneny, and Mr. Mitchel himself, then President of the Board of Aldermen, were members. The first step toward reopening the project, he said, was a letter from Dr. J. W. Brannan of Bellevue Hospital, urging the purchase of the property as a site for a hospital for sufferers from bone tuberculosis.

The other speakers talked from the notes they had used at the Cooper Union meeting, although there were some digressions when they paused to answer the questions of persons in the audience.

BAGS 47 HUN FLIERS, ALL IN FIVE MONTHS

Boy Aviator with Victoria Cross Stirs Enthusiasm of Canadian Club Diners.

DESCRIBES NEW METHODS

Armies at the Front Delighted That America Recognizes Value of Air Supremacy.

A boy, looking not all of his 23 years and weighing not much more than [illegible] pounds, stood before 800 members and guests of the Canadian Club at a dinner in his honor last night at the Biltmore and told how in 110 fights in five months he brought down forty-seven German airplanes. He was Major W. A. Bishop of Canada, member of the Royal Flying Corps, who left the front two weeks ago, bringing back the Victoria Cross and a string of other decorations and the reputation of having bagged more Hun fliers than any other British aviator.

There was nothing dramatic about the way Major Bishop told his story. He said he was just telling what he had come back from the front to tell fellow-Canadians who are going over to help back the Germans over the Rhine. He surprised his hearers when he said that of late days most of the fighting was done at altitudes of 22,000 feet and more. "Then," he said, "there is always danger of being attacked from above."

"Bombing is an interesting part of our work," he explained. "First all the bombing was done from about 12,000 feet. In the battle of the Somme one great airman missed a bridge with two of his three bombs at 12,000 feet. Then he flew down to about 200 feet and blew up the bridge with his last bomb. Now we all do it."

Telling of the work against the enemy's lines during an infantry attack, he said: "As soon as the soldiers go over the top, we dive down on the Hun trenches. Actual damage we do is little, but the moral effect is great. The Germans get scared to death, and our men cheer like mad, for they think we are killing thousands of Huns."

Major Bishop said the air fighting had reached the stage where the allied airmen were keeping all of the fighting on the other side of the line.

"The greatest thing to teach the new men," he said, "is how to shoot. A machine may be riddled and get back safe. Some of the motors will take fifty bullets and not go dead. The safest and only way is to get the aviator. Get him in the head if possible or in the upper part of the body. And don't trust to one bullet. One bullet is never certain to kill a Hun. Get groups of them into him, hunks of them into his head—that's what I tell 'em. When you can bring them down in flames—that is the nicest way. But one can't be sure of doing that. I shot six bullets into one petrol tank—incendiary bullets—and the thing wouldn't burn.

"One evening I was climbing through a cloud bank about 10,000 feet up, thinking only of getting through that cloud and going five or six miles behind the German lines, when I heard the rattle of machine guns. There they were, three of them, coming at me, straight on. Well, I started firing at 300 yards—so did they. When the first fellow was 100 yards away I was letting him have it. Then he swerved. He passed me at about ten yards in flames. I went at the second machine and let him have it. He fell, and the reports showed that the action was so quick that the two machines fell 100 yards apart.

"And," added the young aviator, "in the excitement the third machine escaped."

FUSION GOES AFTER REPUBLICAN VOTES

Elated over the success of the demonstration at the City Hall on Monday, when Mayor Mitchell agreed to run as an independent candidate for re-election, the Fusion campaign managers laid their plans yesterday to bring over to the Mayor the support of the bulk of the Republican strength in the city. The Mayor's supporters hope to convince the organization Republicans who are inclined to remain "regular" by supporting William M. Bennett that the Mayor's candidacy has been lifted out of party lines and become a national issue through the indorsement of such Republicans as William H. Taft, Charles E. Hughes, Colonel Roosevelt and Oscar Straus.

From many sources Emory R. Buckner, manager of the Fusion campaign, yesterday received offers of support for the Mayor from organization Republicans. Bennett, it is expected, will be deserted by his organization in Mitchel's favor. The Fusion managers expect that the question of the Republican organizations of all boroughs indorsing Mitchel will be settled in a few days when the County Committees meet. The New York County Committee will meet at Bryant Hall on Thursday night. It is almost certain, it was said last night, that a resolution indorsing Mr. Mitchel's candidacy will be introduced. That the Bennett supporters in the committee will make a vigorous protest is expected.

The "Big Brother" of the people

Policeman—Friend or Enemy?

THERE is a story told of an immigrant from Russia who landed in New York and proceeded to walk up Fifth Avenue to his destination, somewhere in the Fifties.

He carried a trunk on his back and was followed by his wife.

They were both very ignorant, very foreign, very rustic. They wanted to cross the Avenue. A long line of automobiles was rolling by.

Suddenly the traffic policeman spied the two pitiful figures. He put up his hand and the stream of splendid vehicles halted. He motioned to the man and woman and they safely crossed the street. And when they landed on the opposite sidewalk, the woman, choking with tears, said to her man:

"Ah, Pachom! this surely must be a land of equality! For did you not see the soldier stop all the Magnificences in their carriages and help us to cross the street?"

This woman, coming from a land where those in uniform were the oppressors of the people, realized that she had found a city where the police were the friends and protectors of the people.

That is the spirit of the Mitchel administration. That is the mind of Police Commissioner Woods. It is to make the poor, the weak, the friendless man and woman, realize that the policeman is their servant, their friend, set in his place and dressed in his uniform to Help, and not to Hurt.

His business is to befriend and protect New York's citizens.

It is not to club, and abuse, and arrest, except as these things are necessary in order to insure protection for those who need it.

The policeman is my big brother, and yours, with the power of the Great City behind him, to keep us all in our ways.

Few realize how the policeman has been transformed from Bugaboo to Big Brother by the Wood's idea.

He still chases thieves, arrests rowdies, clubs the roughs, and is a terror to evil-doers, but he is doing a lot of other things these days.

He lectures the children in the schools about street accidents. He drills the boys in the Junior Police.

He gives the boys and girls presents from a grand Christmas Tree at the station house.

In other days when a criminal had finished his term in prison he was hounded by the police; now the police have an employment bureau for these unfortunates, and have helped 800 of them to get jobs and make a fresh start.

Today the New York policeman is the People's Friend and Protector.

They respect him, he respects himself, and we are all proud of the force.

If you want to maintain this standard of efficiency and preserve the finest police force in the world for the finest city in the world—

DESIGN NEW MOTOR TO OUTSPEED U-BOAT

American Invention Develops 400 Horse Power and Speed of 41 Miles an Hour.

EXPERTS OF ALLIES TEST IT

Chasers Equipped with This Engine Expected to Aid in Solving Submarine Peril.

Representatives of the United States, British, French, and Russian Governments have for some time been watching the performances of a fifty-three-foot motor boat equipped with a gasoline engine of new design invented by an American which it is hoped will aid in solving the problem of putting power enough in submarine chasers to make them cope in speed with the swiftest German submarines. The motor has a capacity of 400 horsepower, and in a run on the Sound yesterday it drove the boat at forty-one miles an hour. On board was Commander Constantin A. de Veyher, a naval architect in the Russian Navy. Nearly every day the boat, which has an anchorage at the Larchmont Yacht Club, has taken some Government representative out on a trial trip.

The inventor is C. D. Holmes, who designed the motor now widely used in the United States Life Saving Service. He started to work on the motor soon after the war began in Europe, with the aim of a design specially suited to the submarine chaser.

Gives Three Times the Power.

With this engine three times as much power can be placed in a submarine chaser in the same space, and at practically the same weight, as is possible with any engine in present use, according to the inventor. At present, according to reports from Europe, the newest German submarines have a speed several miles an hour faster than submarine chasers, so that the addition of five miles in speed to the chasers would be a great advantage in the campaign against enemy submarines. Saving of space is also a prime item, as every foot available is needed for living room and ammunition. The new engine can also be adapted for airplanes and armored tanks.

The engine is of the twin six V-type, and is the first application of this design to this kind of motor. It weighs 3,400 pounds, is eight feet four inches long and three feet ten inches in height. The test boat is equipped with two of the engines.

"A distinctive feature of our design," said Mr. Holmes, "is the taller crankcase, which not only greatly increases the accessibility to parts, but also adds to the rigidity and strength of the mechanism. All working parts are inclosed, yet every part is accessible by covered hand holes, through which the working parts can be taken out without removing the motor from its base. The use of the twin-six design, with its practically continuous impulse, reduces vibration to a minimum.

Greater Steadiness Required

"We have speed, but that has not been the chief aim, as there are other demands of equal importance. One is steadiness, an engine that will go all day and is not capable merely of short spurts. The need of this quality in hunting submarines is readily seen, as is also that of getting at the parts quickly if anything goes wrong. At 1,000 revolutions per minute this engine will turn off 300-horse power, without any strain whatever, and it can be speeded up to 1,400 revolutions, producing 400-horse power, with very little evidence of extra effort. We think a 110-foot submarine chaser, the type now used by us, would make a speed of something like twenty-five miles an hour equipped with our engines, that is two on a shaft. We produce a horsepower to every nine pounds of engine, while the ratio of those now in use is about one to twenty."

The maximum speed of submarine chasers now in use in European waters is about twenty or twenty-one miles an hour, according to the figures given out by American manufacturers of the craft, while the surface speed of a submarine has been variously given as between fifteen and twenty miles an hour. American-made chasers that were said to be capable of making twenty knots an hour were equipped with two gasoline engines of 250-horsepower each, and making 450 revolutions a minute. There has been much controversy over the seaworthiness of the chasers, although the speed has not been considered sufficient. Most of the chasers now used are 80 feet in length.

COL. HOUSE STUDYING AFTER-WAR TRADE PLAN

President Wilson Annoyed by Reports that a Peace Move is Being Considered.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—For the first time authoritative information from a high quarter was obtained today with reference to the reported undertaking of Colonel E. M. House of New York, President Wilson's friend and adviser, to gather material for use as a basis of American participation in the peace negotiations that will follow the cessation of hostilities.

President Wilson is greatly annoyed, it was learned, over the interpretation placed on the work of Colonel House that it is in line with a peace move by the United States. The President was never more determined to go forward with the war. Those close to him testify that he is firm in the intention to keep the United States in the fight until the objects for which this Government and its allies are at war are obtained.

The President has laid down the dictum that the United States will have no dealings with the German Government until the German people have a greater part in the determination of policies, a part sufficient to enable them to furnish adequate peace guarantees. The Entente Powers have accepted this attitude of the President as their own. No doubt exists in the minds of those best acquainted with the President's disposition that, much as he would like to see the war ended, he would never consent to a cessation of hostilities until he saw in prospect the realization of his fixed purpose to make the world safe for democracy.

It was denied explicitly and emphatically today in the authoritative quarter mentioned that Colonel House was engaged in preparations that contemplated any peace move by the United States. The explanation was offered that about two years ago reports began to come to this Government from its agencies in Europe with reference to conditions that would confront the trade of the world after the war, and these reports, which continue to be received, are being collated and studied by Colonel House with a view to utilizing them in a practical way when trade conditions must be adjusted after the great conflict is over.

In the course of these two years many men have come to America with knowledge as to probable trade problems growing out of the war, and the President has asked these men to lay their information and views before Colonel House.

That Colonel House has called upon Justice Brandeis of the United States Supreme Court to assist him in the work he has undertaken for the President has not been made known to the President, and it is not believed by the highest officials of the Administration.

The indignation expressed today in authoritative quarters over the effort to make it appear that President Wilson was preparing for a peace move left the impression of sincerity.

COMMENDS HOUSE'S TASK.

Paris Temps Says President Wilson Governs by Foreseeing.

PARIS, Oct. 2.—The Temps, commenting on the mission given to Colonel E. M. House by President Wilson, says:

"President Wilson thinks it is impossible to govern without foreseeing and that one cannot foresee without studying. While the United States is still engaged in building its powerful war machine, its President creates an instrument that will serve later to prepare for peace. This department of study is confided to Colonel House, a sagacious man who keeps himself outside of politics.

"Thus the knowledge of all the specialists may be centralized and elaborated in accord with the national interest and placed in the hands of the Government. Happy organizers are they who will build the future."

Are A War-Time Necessity

New York's 121,000 horses devour 665,500 tons of hay and 21,780,000 bushels of oats. Horse fuel, plus "keep," to the tune of $39,659,500 annually.

Approximately $9,680,000 worth of electricity per year would drive the 24,200 electric trucks necessary to supplant these animals, thus saving $29,979,500 in "fuel" alone each year. Horses represent bread. Gas is precious. Night-made "juice" is practically a by-product.

Gasoline trucks can take the place of Electrics as well as city horses but in this case 24,000 gas trucks would require 36,300,000 gallons of gasoline per year, more expert drivers, and more repair work. Keep your gas trucks for the long hauls.

G. V. Electric Trucks are a war-time necessity in city trucking.

They are conserving millions of dollars worth of grain and gasoline. They represent millions saved in street cleaning as well as in city trucking. They speed up deliveries; reduce garage and repair costs; and return, through their ten-year durability, welcome sums in dividends.

Get acquainted with the G. V. Electric line of six models and learn why the man with an electric truck fleet will shortly be envied not only for the money he is saving but for the peculiar war-time advantages of the Electric.

MEXICO PROTESTS AGAINST DRAFT LAW

Ambassador Makes Formal Representations to the State Department.

CONSUL GENERAL DEFIANT

Says if Local New York Board Examines Martinez It Must "Come and Get Him."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—The Mexican Ambassador, Ignacio Bonillas, has made formal representations to the State Department against the drafting of Mexicans into the national army, particularly in the border States. In some cases where it is shown that Mexicans have been taken through irregular practice of the exemption boards, the State Department has had the men released.

Other cases are complicated because of the difference in the Constitutions of the two countries. Mexico holds that a man born abroad of Mexican parents is a Mexican unless he voluntarily forfeits his citizenship. The United States holds that a person born here is an American citizen.

Juan T. Burns, Mexican Consul General in New York, who in a statement given out on Monday denounced the American selective draft law and compared the members of the 189 local exemption boards in New York to the "savage hordes of Villa," is still defiant, and Jesus Martinez, the Mexican Vice Consul, whose call for examination by Board 145 made Señor Burns angry, was still unexamined late yesterday afternoon. Burns in a letter to the board, which letter has been forwarded to Secretary of State Lansing, informed the board that he had instructed Martinez to ignore the law, and added that if the board examined Martinez it "will have to come and get him."

Mr. Burns would not add to his statement made on Monday, and Vice Consul Martinez said he had been forbidden by Mr. Burns to say anything. Mr. Martinez did not appear angry about being called, and a friend of his said he was willing to comply with the law if the Consul General would permit him to do so.

Mr. Martinez will receive a notification from Board 145 today instructing him to appear for examination at the headquarters in City College at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. The letter will inform him that under the law he must be examined and that as soon as he files the proper papers which prove him to be a citizen of Mexico he will be exempted from liability. He will also be informed that if he fails to comply with the law the matter will be turned over to the Department of Justice for such action as the case may demand.

Sixty-six men who failed to respond when called to the colors, and whose places had to be taken by alternates, were sent under guard to Camp Upton yesterday. There are still more than 400 missing, and orders have gone out to the police and the Department of Justice to round them up without delay, and turn them over to the military authorities.

It was stated yesterday that there are now more than 100 members of the New York Police Department in the military and naval services of the country, many of them soldiers of the national army.

The first indictments returned under the criminal section of the Espionage act were handed down by the Federal Grand Jury yesterday against Louis C. Fraina and Ralph Cheney, the latter a son of a professor in the University of Pennsylvania. The indictments charge that at a recent meeting in this city the defendants willfully attempted "to cause insubordination, disloyalty, and mutiny and refusal to perform service in the military and naval forces of the United States." Both Fraina and Cheney style themselves conscientious objectors.

In a letter to THE TIMES, received yesterday, a friend of George P. Eller, reported by Local Draft Board 20, the Bronx, as having failed to report for duty when called, said that Mr. Eller had enlisted in the Tenth Engineers some time ago, and was either in France or on the way.

MEN OF OLD SEVENTH FIVE POUNDS LIGHTER

And Work at Spartanburg Camp Has Made Them 60 Per Cent. Harder.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP WADSWORTH, SPARTANBURG, S. C., Oct. 2.—A thorough physical examination was made of all the men and officers in the 107th Regiment (the old Seventh, N. G. N. Y.) this afternoon by Lieutenant Bancel, M. R. C. This showed that each man had lost an average of five pounds since arrival at camp from New York. This Lieutenant Bancel attributed to the working off of surplus fat. In his report he stated that the men were 60 per cent. harder than they were when they marched in the send-off parade. The severest case of illness which has developed in the regiment since the intensive training started lasted two hours and was due to the consumption of half a watermelon and five apple pies.

Tomorrow, however, the entire 107th and the Third will be "invalids," for the first thing scheduled for the morning is "typhoiding." As the men's arms will be sore and slightly swollen for a couple of days, only the lightest sort of drill is programmed.

With the arrival today of the Twenty-third and Seventy-fourth Regiments the only infantry unit still to get in is the Fourteenth, which is due Thursday. The trips of both regiments arriving today were accomplished without mishap. The Twenty-third was assigned to quarters alongside the Second, while the Buffalo unit was stationed next the First.

Detective Names State Senator as Man 'Higher Up' in Bringing Gunmen to Philadelphia.

PROMISED $1,000 AND GOT IT

Samuel G. Maloney of O'Farrell Agency Gives Startling Testimony—Mayor Also Accused.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2.—State Senator Edwin H. Vare was named today as the man higher up who was to furnish the money to bring gunmen from New York for election work in the Fifth Ward here on primary day, Sept. 19, when a policeman was killed. Congressman William S. Vare, the Senator's brother, was named as giving assurance that the money would be forthcoming from Isaac Deutsch, the man who is alleged to have engaged the gangsters.

The Vare brothers, who have made millions in city contracts, were brought into the case through the sensational testimony by Samuel G. Maloney at a hearing given to Mayor Thomas B. Smith and eight others charged with conspiracy to murder and other crimes in the connection with the Fifth Ward killing. Altogether seventeen men are under arrest here and in New York in connection with the political feud.

Maloney, a former Republican factional leader in the Fifth Ward and now head of the local branch of the Val O'Farrell Detective Agency of New York, was the star witness at the hearing.

Tonight Senator Vare, who is a Republican factional leader here, gave out a statement in which he said that everything Maloney swore to, so far as it concerned the Vares, was an "absolute lie" and was only part of a general frame-up which he warned the people of Philadelphia about in a public statement two days ago.

Warned Mayor Smith.

Prior to Maloney's appearance on the witness stand, Isadore Stern, a member of the Legislature from the Fifth Ward, told how he had warned Mayor Smith on the night before the primary on the long-distance telephone of possible bloodshed; how he had engaged a special train to bring the Mayor from Atlantic City to restore order, and how the Mayor replied that Stern could not "put any stuff like that over on him."

James A. Carey, the McNichol leader in the Fifth Ward, who was a candidate for renomination to the City Council, and was opposed by Isaac Deutsch, the Vare candidate, appeared on the witness stand with his head swathed in bandages as a result of the blackjacking he received in the fight in which Policeman George A. Eppley was killed. Carey told of an interview with Mayor Smith, in which he said the Mayor told him he was against him and would "go the limit" to beat Carey, because he, the Mayor, wanted a council favorable to him. Carey described the assault upon himself and the action of the negro policeman in arresting him instead of apprehending the man who blackjacked him.

Virtually all of Stern's testimony concerned Mayor Smith's political activity and his alleged failure to stop "strong arm" work in the Fifth Ward, and the action of certain policemen in helping Deutsch.

Maloney testified that Deutsch came to his office and wanted to engage eighteen "husky" men for work in the Fifth Ward. Deutsch, according to Maloney, said a gang of men was coming from the Tenth Ward to "rough things," and he wanted to protect himself and his followers. The Tenth Ward is the home ward of State Senator McNichol.

Maloney said Deutsch informed him that Senator Vare would furnish the money, and when he went to Vare's office he saw Congressman Vare, who told him, the witness said, that Deutsch was well supplied with funds and everything would be all right. Maloney testified that William E. Finley, chief lieutenant of the Vares and Executive Director of the Republican City Committee, who was in Vare's office at the time, told him the same thing.

Maloney also said he met Senator Vare on the street and was told by him to see Captain Tate of the City Detective Bureau and arrange to have detectives sent to the ward on primary day. Tate, according to the witness, sent a man to see Maloney and asked him what detectives he should send into the ward.

The witness, after telling of the events of primary day, described his efforts to get the alleged gunmen out of the city and to obtain money to pay the expenses of bringing them here. He saw Finley in a hotel late on primary day and also the next day. Maloney said he wanted $1,000 to pay the expenses, but Finley did not have it. Two days after the primary, Maloney said, he received a special delivery letter containing a $1,000 bill.

Maloney said after talking with O'Farrell he told all he knew about the affair to Mr. Gordon and District Attorney Rotan without any promise of immunity.

Baker Declares Nothing Should Be Undertaken That Is Not Fundamental to Victory.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—New enterprises, "not fundamental to the efficient operation of the country's necessary activities" in winning the war should not be undertaken now, in the opinion of the Council of National Defense.

In a letter to the Indiana State Council of Defense, signed by Secretary Baker as Chairman, and made public tonight, the council says such a policy will not result adversely upon business or conditions of employment "because every man and every resource will be needed during the war." Transmitting the council's opinion on a question raised by the Indiana Council, Secretary Baker wrote:

"Every effort that this country is capable of making should be applied to bring the war to a speedy and successful conclusion. The resources of the country in a general way may be said to consist of men, money, and material, and during the period of the war any new enterprise or undertaking should be tried and justified by the test: Will the men, money, and material so applied best contribute in this way to the winning of the war?

"New enterprises which are not fundamental to the efficient operation of the country's necessary activities should not be undertaken. This will not result adversely upon business or conditions of employment because every man and every resource will be needed during the war. All effort should be centred to help win the war."

TRADE MARK REG.U.S.PAT.OFF.

GIVING women the proper style in footwear is something that the Walk-Over Boot Shop is specially prepared to do. The style in Walk-Over Shoes for women comes from Paris. In that city, a style-expert from the Walk-Over factory not only studies the prevailing modes, but collects information from the makers of women's gowns. This last is a direct clue to what the coming shoe-styles are to be, because shoe-styles always follow close upon the styles of dress.

As a bit of interesting fashion news, we will advise our customers that the trend of fashion seems to point to another year of tan and brown shoe popularity for both men and women. The large number of men, and women too, who are wearing khaki, together with the tendency toward the military colors in all clothes, are increasing the vogue for tan and brown leathers.

We offer our customers in Walk-Over shoes, styles that are correct, in shoes that are designed by experts to afford the utmost ease and comfort, while conforming naturally to the lines and movements of the feet.

PERKINS REJECTED; MITCHELL CHOSEN

offered," he said, "and that everything has been done to put Perkins, toward whom I personally feel a deep distrust, in this place. It is remarkable that the Senators have withstood it. The Governor is in the position of Santa Claus, and has made the most of it. He has sugar plums in one hand and a whip in the other. The Senate has said that Perkins is unfit. I trust that from now on it will continue to show a little self-respect."

Senator Graves of Buffalo, who followed Senator Sage, referred to the delays in getting action on food control.

"The members of this Senate have known for months of the hardships the people have endured, and yet we find the majority leader of this body conspiring with Tammany to defeat the effort of a Republican Governor to protect the people from the extortions of the food speculator, and in many cases doubtless from starvation," he said. "Such conduct cannot be justified.

"Calm and liberal reflection satisfies me that there are two motives impelling and supporting this dispute. One is the selfish expression of well-known political rivalry. The other is deliberate attempt to bedevil the Food Control Board and defeat its purposes. It has been a campaign of sham and hypocrisy. There was not a single argument presented here that would convince a man around this circle. The only thing that had even a suggestion of plausibility was said by Senator Sage, whose poetic soul revolted at the extravagant use of money. But his own people had taken the sting out of that criticism by using the same dirty money on the other side of the question."

This reference to money spent by Mr. Perkins to pay for advertising directed against himself, brought Senator Sage to his feet.

"May I ask what the Senator means by that?" he demanded.

"The Senator said that one of his chief objections was the promiscuous use of money by Mr. Perkins's advertising. Now, I am not afraid of the man who will advertise in the public press. It is the secret use of money that the State and the public have to fear."

"I did not say anything about the money used for advertising," retorted Senator Sage.

"The use I objected to was the use of money by Mr. Perkins in buying people, and that is what I stated."

"Does the Senator think he bought anybody in this Senate?" asked Senator Graves.

"The Senator knows well that I did not," was the reply.

Senator Robinson, who not long ago was closely related with Mr. Perkins in the management of the Progressive Party in this State, broke into the debate at this point.

"Perhaps Senator Sage does not mean he actually bought anybody, but he has invested a good deal of money and has a first mortgage on a good many people by investing in their primary campaigns," he said.

"I would like the Senator to give a bill of particulars," exclaimed Senator George F. Thompson of Niagara, head of the late committee that investigated the Public Service Commissions. "These charges are beginning to get serious. Who is it he has an option or first mortgage on? Is it on me?"

"I understand Mr. Perkins paid $45,000 to publish the White Book," said Senator Robinson.

It was stated at the Executive Chamber tonight that Mr. Mitchell would continue as a member of the Industrial Commission, the Food Control law making specific provision to enable its members to hold other public offices. As head of the Food Control Commission he will draw no salary.

Final adjournment of the extraordinary session of the Legislature was taken immediately after the confirmation of the Mitchell nomination.

PERKINS CHARGES BETRAYAL.

Says His Opponents Acted in Interest of Dairymen's League.

George W. Perkins, whose appointment as head of the new State Food Commission was rejected by the State Senate yesterday, said that the men who voted against him had betrayed their constituents in this city and had aided the Dairymen's League, to whose methods he was opposed. Mr. Perkins issued a statement, reading in part:

"Twelve up-State Republicans, three New York City Republicans and ten Tammany Democrats from this city voted against my confirmation as Chairman of the State Food Commission. The upstate Republicans said they were against me because the farmers and the Dairymen's League were opposed to me. If that be true, it would be interesting to know on what grounds the New York City Republicans and the Tammany Senators based their objections; for their constituents are consumers, and if the producers are against me, the consumers should be for me.

"The bi-partisan combination at Albany represents the very worst element in the food traffic in this State. The sole reason for these Republican and Democratic Senators being against me is that they know I would have enforced the law to the limit. Their real constituents up-State and down-State are not the actual producers and consumers, but the gambler, the speculator, and the hoarder of foodstuffs."

CUTTING EXPENSE without sacrificing mileage

The Efficiency Standards of the Franklin Car

THERE has never been, and there likely never will be, a complaint against the motorist using his car freely for business and health. The criticism is against waste.

Before the war, in this country of plenty, waste was rather an unconscious habit. But the needs of war are correcting it and the lessons we are now learning will undoubtedly govern buying for personal requirements, as well as curtail the extravagance on necessities, for years to come.

During these days when every man, woman and child is cooperating with the call for National Thrift, it is hard—mighty hard—for a motorist to justify the extravagance of the car that gives but 10 or 12 miles to the gallon of gasoline and 5000 to 6000 miles to the set of tires.

The motorist who used to be indifferent about excessive gasoline and tire bills is now looking for the way to maintain his mileage at about half his present cost. But it means less taking of claims for granted, and more investigation of facts that stand ready to be demonstrated any time.

An Interesting Demonstration for Thinking Motorists

Let the car owner, or the man about to select a car, ponder a minute over the significance of the Franklin National Efficiency Demonstration held July 13. Here 179 Franklin Stock Cars, scattered all over the United States, established the remarkable average of 40.3 miles on a single gallon of gasoline.

There's a significant message in this national performance.

It proves once more how waste ends when scientific light weight enters.

How Franklin Direct Air Cooling, by the elimination of the regular 177 complicated water cooling parts, curtails fuel waste and, incidentally, avoids all cooling troubles.

How Franklin scientific construction brings to a negligible minimum all gasoline consuming friction and drag, with its wear and tear—responsible for the heavy annual depreciation in the average car. The Franklin is the easiest-rolling car in America.

How fine materials and fine workmanship mean all-around economy in the long run.

The Reasons for Franklin Efficiency are built into the Car

Franklin Economy does not stop at gasoline. It begins there.

Take tires. Over ten thousand miles to the set, over a five-year period, is the actual experience of Franklin car owners—according to their own reports.

And the long life of the Franklin is best demonstrated by the absence of the Franklin in the volumes of used-car advertisements in daily newspapers.

Is any other car efficient enough to travel 1046 miles on a single gallon of oil, as the Franklin did last year on its run from New York to Chicago?

There's nothing vague about motor car thrift. It is as tangible as any other quality of the car.

Economy is with us to stay. You can't get it by accepting claims. Real economy is the result of efficient performance. Such performance is the reason, and the only reason, for Franklin Thrift.

To the motorist interested in cutting expense without sacrificing mileage, right now is the time to investigate the Franklin Car.

At this time of the year, when motorists turn their thoughts toward Enclosed Cars, it is well worth to bear in mind that every Franklin fundamental applies equally to the Franklin Enclosed Models.

STOCK VOTE TO PASS ON DU PONT DISPUTE

Shareholders to Say Whether Company or Present Owners Shall Control $56,000,000.

COURT ORDERS MEETING

T. Coleman du Pont Declares That He Never Offered His Stock to the Company.

A special stockholders' meeting of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., makers of munitions, will be held at Wilmington, Del., next Wednesday, at which the future control of stocks and bonds, worth, it has been estimated, approximately $56,000,000, will be determined. By their vote upon a resolution which will be presented at the meeting, the stockholders may secure for the corporation control of this huge block of securities, or they may confirm the present holders in its ownership. The stock and bonds are held at present by the du Pont Securities Company, which was organized by eighteen Directors and stockholders of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. as a holding company and depositary for the stock and bonds which will be contended for at the meeting on Oct. 10.

The special meeting will be held under a decision by the United States District Court for the District of Delaware and will be presided over by Daniel O. Hastings, appointed Special Master by the Court. The form of the resolution to be voted on has been prescribed by the Federal Court, as has the form of proxies and of procedure at the meeting. When the meeting is held it will have had its absorbing prelude in the Federal Court, and there is every reason to believe that there will be a postlude, too, for both the contending factions of du Ponts and their kin involved in the fight over the stock have taken steps to retain eminent counsel and take their fight again into the courts, in the event that the decision at the stockholders' meeting on Oct. 10 should go against them.

The stock and bonds in dispute represent the former holdings of T. Coleman du Pont. Until March 13, 1915, when he was succeeded by Pierre S. du Pont, a cousin, T. Coleman du Pont was President of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. and its biggest stockholder.

The block of securities includes 63,314 shares of common and 14,599 shares of preferred stock of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Powder Company, which has been absorbed by E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. Under the resolution, framed by the court for presentation at the stockholders' meeting, there will also come before those entitled to vote the question whether the du Pont Securities Company should not be required to turn over to E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. as well 126,628 shares of its common stock received as dividends on the stock of the powder company by the persons controlling the securities company, together with such other stock and bond dividends and cash as have been realized by them on the big block of stock acquired from T. Coleman du Pont.

The stock was purchased from T. Coleman du Pont by Pierre S. Du Pont before the latter became President of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., but while he was Chairman of the Finance Committee of its Board of Directors. In the court proceedings leading up to the special stockholders' meeting which were brought by Philip F. du Pont as a stockholder with other stockholders, of whom a majority bore the name du Pont, joining in, the plaintiffs claimed that the stock of T. Coleman du Pont had been secured by Pierre S. du Pont as the result of a betrayal of his trust to the company, that he had secured for himself and the others who joined in the formation of the du Pont Securities Company these securities which the plaintiffs claimed should have been acquired for the stockholders of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., by using the knowledge he had acquired of the company's affairs and prospects as one of its principal officers, as well as its credit. In these views, the plaintiffs were sustained by the court.

This charge grew out of the allegation that T. Coleman du Pont, who while the negotiations for the stock were in progress was in Minnesota recovering from an operation, had offered to sell to the company for distribution among some of its more important employes 20,700 shares of his holdings of common stock. The Finance Committee, of which A. I. du Pont, who, it is contended, inspired the court proceedings, was a member, turned this offer down on the ground that the price asked by T. Coleman du Pont, $160 a share, was too high to justify the investment of the company's surplus in the securities.

Pierre S. du Pont, as Chairman of the Finance Committee, was instructed to convey the information to T. Coleman du Pont, but testimony was adduced before Judge Thompson to show that, while he communicated to him the fact that the offer had been rejected, he never informed him that it was on account of the price of the stock being fixed at such a high figure. On the other hand, T. Coleman du Pont has said over his signature that Pierre left unreported no material fact in regard to the rejection of the proposition. The plaintiffs in the case claimed that the purchased by Pierre S. du Pont and his associates in the du Pont Securities Company was the direct result of the earlier negotiations and that Mr. du Pont had turned an offer made to the company of a limited amount of the stock into an opportunity to enrich himself and the other men in the securities company at the expense of the other stockholders. The court so held, although the defendants in the proceedings contended that this claim was not justified.

The whole question as to the propriety of the acquisition by Pierre S. du Pont of the T. Coleman du Pont holdings, according to the contention of the defendants, hinged on whether the opportunity of acquiring the stock would have been open to the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Company as well as to Pierre S. du Pont and his associates. They caused T. Coleman du Pont to be summoned as a witness, and while he was on the stand he was asked: "Did you at any time make an offer to sell this stock to the company?" To this he answered: "I did not." He was then asked whether he would have been willing to sell out to the company instead of to his cousin and the latter's associates who later formed the du Pont Securities Company. At this point his testimony was shut off by an objection from the counsel for the plaintiffs, which the court sustained.

Coleman du Pont Acquits Pierre.

In the canvass for proxies for the special stockholders' meeting, which has been in progress ever since it was ordered, both factions have sent letters to the stockholders presenting their side of the case. Attached to a letter sent out by the defendants in the proceedings was a communication to Pierre S. du Pont by T. Coleman du Pont, directed to the stockholders of the company. This communication follows:

Wilmington, Del., May 11, 1917.

To the Directors of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co.

Gentlemen: In view of the decision of the United States Court in the suit of Philip F. du Pont et al. vs. Pierre S. du Pont et al., I think it proper that your stockholders should be advised of the following facts:

In December, 1914, I proposed a plan of interesting those in responsible positions in E. I. du Pont de Nemours Powder Company as stockholders, and suggested that the company advance money from its treasury to help carry the stock for those men. Under this plan I offered 20,700 shares of common stock of E. I. du Pont de Nemours Powder Company for distribution.

When this proposition was discussed by the Finance Committee of the company I was absent from Wilmington, and during my absence it was reported to me that the Finance Committee of the company had not accepted the proposition.

Mr. Pierre S. du Pont, then Vice President of the company, wrote me fully of the affairs of the company during my absence, and, on again reading his letters, I find that he left unreported no material fact in regard to the proposition made by me nor to its non-acceptance by the Finance Committee. On Jan. 17, 1915, I finally withdrew the proposition in a telegram to Pierre S. du Pont. I confirmed this withdrawal in my letter of Jan. 19, 1915.

About this time I authorized Mr. L. L. Dunham (his counsel) to sell from twenty to forty thousand shares of my common stock of E. I. du Pont de Nemours Powder Company at $200 per share. I also expressed my willingness to sell stock of E. I. du Pont de Nemours Powder Company to Mr. P. S. du Pont for distribution among men in responsible positions, arranging for a financing of the transaction through bankers.

On Feb. 20, 1915, I received a proposition from P. S. du Pont personally offering to purchase my holdings of stock. I was fully aware at this time that the purpose was for his personal account and his associates. I agreed to sell my entire holdings to him.

At no time did I offer more than 20,700 shares of common stock to E. I. du Pont de Nemours Powder Company or its Finance Committee, and that offer was with the sole purpose of resale to the principal employes of the company, and the proposition so stated. I never offered to sell or expressed willingness to sell more than forty thousand shares to anybody until receipt of Mr. Pierre S. du Pont's offer to purchase these shares. I never sold any stock to anybody if I did not sell to Mr. P. S. du Pont.

These statements put forth by the attorneys for the plaintiffs in the above case, in which they claim that Pierre S. du Pont deceived me in the transactions relating to the purchase of my stock, are entirely unwarranted and are untrue in every particular.

I think it fair that the stockholders should know directly from me that I believe that they have no right or interest whatever in the stock which I formerly owned, and that, if for any reason the sale to Mr. Pierre S. du Pont was not effective, then title to stock is properly mine. Yours very truly,

(Signed) COLEMAN DU PONT.

For the entire T. Coleman du Pont holdings, with their earnings to date, estimated at about $56,000,000, Pierre S. du Pont and his associates paid $13,903,715. There were interest charges, according to the estimate made by the court, of $1,805,165.66, a total of principal and interest of $15,708,880.66.

In the opinion filed by the court it was held as a foregone conclusion that the acquisition of the stock would be of enormous profit to the company, but that to determine that question was properly a function of the stockholders and not of the court, as it was a matter of business policy.

Pierre S. du Pont and those associated with him in the deal for the T. Coleman du Pont stock—and they include the men who have been in active control of the affairs of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. during its years of highest efficiency and greatest prosperity—have urged upon the stockholders that serious business consequences might follow a vote resulting in the acquisition by the company itself of the stock now controlled by the eighteen Directors and stockholders who participated in the benefits from the T. Coleman du Pont transaction. While the control of the corporation, with its assets of $250,000,000, is not directly involved in the contest, a vote to take over the stock and possibly retire it, or place it in the company's treasury, would not only, in their opinion, weaken control, but reflect a lack of confidence in the present management that might react against the company in a manner far outweighing any gains the stockholders could derive from taking the stock for the company.

Testimony for the Defendants.

Certain portions of the testimony taken at the trial and not hitherto published in THE TIMES, it is contended, on behalf of the defendants, put them in a much better light than that thrown upon them by the court's decision. Two extracts from this testimony follow:

From the testimony of Pierre S. du Pont, President of the company, relative to the dismissal of Alfred I. du Pont from the Vice Presidency.—I had felt from about the Summer or the Autumn of 1914, that the company was not getting co-operation from * * * Alfred I. du Pont; * * * in the case of Alfred I. du Pont it dated prior to that, I believe—I know. The question of the purchase of this stock raised grave suspicions in my mind. The plan of campaign was not one which was open and above board, not one which a Director honestly interested in the company's affairs, would have taken. The news of this purchase was published in the papers, but no action was taken with reference to bringing the matter before the Board of Directors or in any official way until I myself acted. After that whole question had been settled by the board, I learned indirectly that Alfred du Pont was not acting openly and aboveboard. I was told by one of the Directors of the company that he had made serious charges against the principal men in the company which I felt positive—which I know were not true, and that he had also made similar statements to other men, though they did not tell me that directly—one man only told me of those charges. Alfred I du Pont some time prior to that had made serious charges, and very unwarranted charges, against T. C. du Pont, who was then President of the company, to which I immediately took exception, and to which he never made proper retraction.

I learned later on that Alfred du Pont had, in pursuance of a plan to keep this trouble going, tried to interest the Department of Justice in Washington, at least the Department of Justice had been solicited by somebody, and they refused to state whether or not it was Alfred I. du Pont, but I had every reason to believe that it was.

Mr. du Point added that later he heard that Alfred I. du Pont and another Director were acting against the company's interests, and, after warning them, advocated their defeat for reelection to the board, and they were defeated.

From the testimony of John J. Raskob, Treasurer of the company, on cross-examination concerning the removal of Alfred I. du Pont from the Vice Presidency.—It was due to his lack of co-operation. We had heard many tales, a great many of which we had very good reason to believe, about his calling men to office, important men in the company, and making statements to them that were entirely out of line with any harmonious co-operation with the officials of the company, and I remember one of these statement made to one of the men, as I was told it, was that Alfred I. du Pont had said to him that Pierre du Pont was just squandering the company's money, that a few carpenters at one of our plants had struck, and Pierre du Pont immediately got panicstricken and increased the wages of all our employes 20 per cent., whereas the fact of the matter is that the heads of different operative departments, in order to gain the full co-operation of all of the men and allow them to participate in some of the earnings of the company if we were successful in carrying out what we had undertaken to carry out, had granted those men, from common laborers up, a horizontal increase of 20 per cent. Following that, the Executive Committee of the company increased the salaries of all of the employes of the company up to but not including members of the Executive Committee, 20 per cent., so that Mr. du Pont's statement that Pierre du Pont was panicstricken and had increased wages was absolutely false, although Mr. du Pont did fully concur with the heads of operating departments and with the Executive Committee in the belief that it was for the best interest of the company to take that action. * * * I joined in voting to depose Alfred du Pont as Vice President and member of the Finance Committee, for his thorough lack of co-operation with the company and creating dissension, which was I felt being felt among the men at a time when we could absolutely not afford to have anything but the whole-hearted co-operation of all our employes.

The story of the Russian immigrant in America, the prologue and first act of which Mary Antin told in semi-novelistic form in "The Land of Promise," has been dramatized in a prologue and three acts by Fannie Hurst and Harriet Ford. Where Miss Antin left her heroine just emerging from what is sometimes called the Ghetto, "The Land of the Free" develops a love story, a marriage, and the subsequent conflict between the families of the Russian bride and the American bridegroom. And it brings this conflict to an ostensibly happy ending.

The result leaves something to be desired as drama, being the sketchy and disconnected product which our forefathers knew as chronicle history; but it is interesting none the less, and it affords Florence Nash an opportunity to develop talents of which her most fervent admirers have scarcely thought her possessed. Hitherto she has been mainly identified with Broadway types, accentuated with racy, laughable slang and vivid, hoydenish vitality. Her slang is now replaced by a broken English, no less racy and amusing; but her hoydenish vitality has been enlarged and transfigured into the sphere of elemental, peasant passions. It needed only a more consistent and sustained dramatic background to lift the performance to a very high plane of creative art.

Of the likelihood of the play, especially in the later scenes, it would be easy to make light. This Sonya, arriving in New York, finds her sister the mistress of a sweatshop proprietor. Being befriended altruistically by a young novelist and social worker of aristocratic family, she throws herself at his head; announces her engagement to him publicly before he has so much as hinted a proposal; marries him, and takes her erring sister to live with him in his rooms in Washington Square, and finally lands her peasant mother also upon his neck. And she gets away with it. His mother, at first glacially snobbish, ends by accepting the whole fam-damily.

These are the literal facts, as they appear in the theatre. If they seem preposterous, it is probably the fault of the telescopic nature of the play—telescopic in the sense of being collapsed to one-third of its proper extension. In a play that was truly telescopic, seeing the far end clearly, it is not unlikely that it might all be made convincing. A character such as Miss Nash's Sonya can accomplish wonders. Be that as it may, the two later acts had best be left out of any sympathetic reckoning.

The scene of Sonya's arrival in her sister's flat is quite another matter. Her struggle to get past Ellis Island, vividly seen in its aftermath of excitement; her joy in the bigness and splendor of New York; her childish delight in the luxury of the sister's lace curtains—all these are revealed in a slang of the Bowery as vivid and picturesque as the Broadway slang to which Miss Nash has been addicted.

And then comes the scene in which she realizes the truth as to her sister's life. Flashed upon a background of Jewish morality and family affection, it develops a tragic intensity, a mingling of horror and sisterly love, superlatively true and fine. And Miss Nash rose to her opportunities with an art as inerrant and strong as it was simple. For a moment her performance was on the heights.

To the last, in fact, her performance seemed limited only by the inadequacy of the scenes she had to work with. Quick to anger, she was a "hell-cat" in defense of righteousness. Quick to love, she wooed her "friend husband" with a charm that made his omission of a proposal seem the gravest delinquincy. Her struggles to speak pure English, tempered always by her racy delight in Bowery idiom, were a never-failing source of joy. "I can only talk it like I hear it," she laments, "and look it like I see it." Even in the last act, where she conquers everything else, she despairs of her speech. "English like you speak it," she says to her husband, "is in the blood, not in the grammar."

The numerous company were on the whole very capable. As Sonya's errant sister, Alice Lindahl was emotionally sincere and affecting. Giorgio Majeroni and Richard Tabor did excellent character work as two Bowery sweatshop criminals. Leslie Austin made an almost credible person of the colorless young novelist husband.

MAYOR TAKES HAND IN MILK INQUIRY

Appoints Committee of Experts to Learn the Cause of Advance in Prices.

The investigation into the high price of milk in this city and the responsibility of the Dairymen's League was broadened yesterday when Mayor Mitchel appointed a committee to conduct an inquiry into the subject at "the earliest possible moment." At the same time Alderman John J. Ryan of the Coney Island district offered a resolution before the Board of Aldermen proposing that there be an Aldermanic inquiry into milk prices.

The inquiry which Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith is conducting to ascertain whether the Dairymen's League, through its officers, violated the Donnelly anti-trust law in fixing prices in restraint of trade, had reached a point yesterday when it was intimated that the facts brought out justified the placing of evidence before the Grand Jury. Several milk dealers were interrogated, and the New York Milk Conference Board, the organization of the dealers, furnished the District Attorney with information tending to show that it had been a case with the dealers of either buying at the prices asked by the league or going out of business.

The request for the Mayor to start an inquiry into the milk subject came to the Mayor from Dr. Haven Emerson, Commissioner of Health, who suggested as the committee on inquiry Dr. Charles E. North, Secretary of the National Commission of Milk Standards; George W. Love, Chairman of the Committee on Foods of the Merchants' Association; E. B. Lewis, member of the Advisory Committee of the Department of Health; Bailey B. Burritt, General Director of the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, and Hugh Frayne, of the American Federation of Labor.

REACH AGREEMENT ON COAL PROBLEM

Bituminous Operators Consent to Reduced Demands of the Miners for Higher Wages.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Operators and miners in the central competitive bituminous coal district reached a compromise tonight in connection with demands for increased wages, and, it is understood, will now present the question to Fuel Administrator Garfield. The operators, it was said, were willing to grant a substantial increase in wages, but both parties agreed that it could not be done without shutting down a large number of mines and thus decreasing production, unless the Government granted higher rates than those named by President Wilson for coal at the mines.

The miners demanded an additional 15 cents a ton for the men who mined the coal, but received only 10 cents. A demand for $1.90 a day more for "day labor" was reduced to $1.50. Operators and miners agreed to the 20 per cent. increase for "dead work" and yardage. The only point left unsettled was the period for which the contract should run, the miners seeking a two years' agreement, while the operators voted for a contract to hold until sixty days after the war.

GOVERNMENT SENDS COHALAN EVIDENCE

Governor Informed It Is on the Way, and May, if Necessary, Call Extraordinary Session.

SENATE ASKS FOR FACTS

Adopts Wellington Resolution Unanimously—Similar Motion Blocked in Assembly by Goldstein.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Oct. 2.—Soon after the opening gavel fell in the Senate today that body adopted the Wellington resolution, introduced last night, to pave the way for a legislative inquiry into the conduct of Supreme Court Justice Daniel F. Cohalan of New York City.

The resolution calls upon the Federal Government to supply to the Governor and the Senate any evidence in its possession to sustain the allegation that Justice Cohalan gave advice to agents of the German Government which was helpful to them in fomenting rebellion in Ireland, that he urged the commission of acts in violation of international law, and in other ways conducted himself so as "to render him an unfit person to continue to be a Justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York."

Fragmentary information on the subject from official sources in Washington has already been given to the public.

This evening Governor Whitman received word that the desired information, transmitted by United States Attorney General Gregory, was already on its way to Albany. When this information reached the Governor the Legislature had adjourned sine die. There was a hurried conference between the Governor and Senator J. Henry Walters, Chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, which would be in charge of any investigation of Justice Cohalan that might result from the Senate action today.

After the conference it was learned that should the Governor find the information transmitted of sufficiently grave importance to justify such a course, the Legislature would be called back into extraordinary session again without delay. If not it is likely that legislative action will be deferred until after election. The Governor expects to receive the information sent from Washington tomorrow, and may decide upon the course to follow then.

The Senate acted on the Wellington resolution by unanimous vote.

In the Assembly, Perry M. Armstrong, a Democrat, representing the Nineteenth New York district, offered a resolution following in a general way the language used in the resolution adopted by the Senate. There were only seven members present. Assemblyman Jacob Goldstein, (Dem.,) representing the Thirty-first New York district, jumped to his feet and interposed an objection on the ground that there was no quorum. Speaker Sweet pleaded with him in vain to withdraw his objection, and the Armstrong resolution was returned to the introducer.

"I should think," said Mr. Armstrong in offering his resolution, "that Justice Cohalan would be the first to ask for a full investigation rather than remain under a cloud. In any event, the people have a right to know whether these charges are true or false. At all times, but especially now, the people have a right to know where every one stands with relation to patriotism, and that applies with double force to a person holding public office, and peculiarly to our judiciary."

"Well," said Assemblyman Goldstein, "a matter of such grave importance should not be taken up for consideration except when there is a full attendance of members. I object to the introduction of this resolution."

In the Senate the resolution was the subject of very little debate. Senator George B. Wellington of Troy, sponsor for the measure, moved its adoption soon after the session began.

"In terms of legal conclusion," he observed, "it has been said that a Justice of the Supreme Court has seriously advocated the commission of the crimes of murder and arson. We should be derelict in our duty if we did not inquire into it."

The only other speech was made by Senator George F. Thompson of Niagara, who said he was in accord with the resolution, because there was an inference that the State Department at Washington had evidence of facts that had been withheld, and he believed that if they tend to prove the conclusion set forth in them should hear the case.

The resolution was adopted by a viva voce vote.

RUSSIANS ARRESTED IN EXPLOSION INQUIRY

Suspected of Being Involved in Blowing Up of Eddystone Ammunition Plant.

Special to The New York Times.

CHESTER, Penn., Oct. 2.—With the arrest this afternoon of two Russian Socialists at Media while a trial of other Socialists was in progress, a solution of the mysterious Eddystone Ammunition Corporation explosion of April 10, which cost 123 lives, may develop. Mitchell Lagoda, formerly of this city, and Nicholas Kleckner of Thirty-fourth and Spruce Streets, Philadelphia, former shell inspectors at the plant, were the men arrested. They were charged with murder by Sheriff Heyburn and were committed without bail to the county jail.

Kleckner is reputed to be one of the I. W. W. leaders in this country. At the time of the inquest on the explosion victims he was the star witness in relating the gross carelessness of allowing I. W. W. members to hold inspectors' posts at the powder plant.

Assistant District Attorney J. Borton Weeks, who investigated the explosion with W. A. Hajek, a Department of Justice agent, has been shadowing the two accused men, and decided today to take them into custody.

Attorneys Ernest L. Green of Media and Henry J. Nelson of Philadelphia were retained as counsel for the accused men, and asked for a habeas corpus hearing on Saturday. It is likely the Federal authorities will take charge of the two Russians.

On Sunday afternoon, April 1, a Socialistic meeting was held in this city, at which the principal speaker was William Derman of 3,407 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, and the Chairman was Lagoda. Sheriff Heyburn attended the meeting with an interpreter, and when Derman had launched a bitter arraignment of the capitalists of the country, and advocated an uprising of the laboring classes, the Sheriff broke up the meeting and arrested Lagoda and Derman.

Ten days later the Eddystone explosion occurred. Lagoda and Derman were employed at the plant as inspectors, receiving their commissions as inspectors from the Russian officials sent here. They were not at the plant at the time of the explosion.

Their cases were set for trial on Monday of this week, but were postponed until this afternoon. Since Monday Hajek has been in Media keeping watch on them.

After the arrest of the two men, Hajek requested that a house in Chicago be raided in connection with the case. It is believed that I. W. W. Russians here at the time of the explosion are wanted at that address.

The Tax on Professions.

Every professional person in the United States will be subject to the excess profits tax if his income is more than $6,000 a year. Two paragraphs inserted by the conferees and agreed to by Senate and House cover the subject. The act will levy an 8 per cent. tax on the incomes of professional men in excess of $6,000. A doctor, for instance, with an income of $10,000, will be subject to the regular income tax on $10,000, and also to an 8 per cent. tax on $4,000.

One of the paragraphs covering this new feature is found in Section 200: "The terms 'trade' and 'business' include professions and occupations." The other paragraph, in Section 200, reads:

"That in the case of a trade or business having no invested capital or not more than a nominal capital there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid, in addition to the taxes under existing law and under this act, in lieu of the tax imposed by Section 201, a tax equivalent to 8 per cent. of the net income of such trade or business, in excess of the following deductions: In the case of a domestic corporation, $3,000; and in the case of a domestic partnership, or a citizen or a resident of the United States, $6,000; in the case of all other trades or business, no deduction."

Representative J. Hampton Moore of Pennsylvania, a member of the conference committee, said:

"In addition to lawyers, doctors, and other professional people, an excess profits tax will be levied on certain middlemen and speculators in foodstuffs not otherwise included. Farmers making excess profits were cut out of the House bill, and professional men making excess profits were cut out of the Senate bill, but both classes have been included by the conference.

"The individual cotton planter or farmer making profits in excess of $6,000 is now taxable, as is the professional man. If the corporations think they are hard hit, they have the satisfaction of knowing that individuals are to share the burden."

Under the bill, as construed by members of Congress, the 8 per cent. excess profits tax will apply to the salary of members, which is $7,500. They will pay 8 per cent. on $1,500.

NEW YORK'S PROSPERITY.

It seems like the good old times to welcome back an increase of taxable real estate values for this borough and the greater city. If any one thinks that this is a singular sentiment, it is only necessary to look back a year and recall the dismay with which the decrease of taxable values was received. The decrease then was in Manhattan, and only the increases in the outer boroughs prevented an actual decrease for the entire city. The increase of $1,718,171 was the smallest in the history of the greater city, and perhaps marked the turning point in the period of depression of real estate due to general trade depression and the shifting of values resulting from the construction of the dual subway. Low as last year's valuations were, the receipts of owners were lower. This year the reverse is true. High as the valuations are, the receipts are higher, and the owners will have something left after paying the rates on the increased valuation. This year's increase in Manhattan is $39,990,100, against last year's decrease of $41,486,226. Brooklyn is the only borough which shows a larger increase this year, $43,614,506. Queens increases more than the Bronx, and even Richmond shares the general growth of values. All have thrived, but Manhattan more than the others.

The present figures are approximate only, pending revision on the complaint of those who think themselves aggrieved. It is safe to say that there will be fewer complaints this year of the increase for the entire city of $137,369,758 than last year's failure to show the accustomed improvement. Just as last year's assessment showed that Manhattan was carrying the burden for the greater city, so this year's well-distributed growth shows that the outer boroughs are taking up their share of the benefit and the burden of the chief cause of the general prosperity. No doubt the activity of war trade has helped, but the greater cause is the approaching completion of the dual subway. There is no nook or corner of the greater city which does not feel the stimulus of the distribution of population, whose congestion was driving population away. At the same time, business realty was suffering from difficulty of access by workers.

It is almost too trite to remark, but there is necessity for remarking that the subways run both ways. They enable workers to reach cheap homes of improving values, and they also enable them to reach their work in office building districts with a facility never before known, and still showing improvement with every traffic return. Every one who walks or rides about the city knows that this is so. Broadway is "coming back," and will recoup from the new subways what it lost by its opposition to the first of them. The Seventh Avenue district is improving tardily from the neglect not to give access sooner to the Pennsylvania Terminal. The outer boroughs are turning potato fields into residential districts. Landlords and rent payers alike know that the increased valuations reflect conditions and are not arbitrary for the sake of enlarging the city's debt limit or reducing the tax rate.

This is all the more remarkable because it occurs amid marked depression in the building industry. Just as the city had been overbuilt, so now it is approaching an underbuilt condition. The building trade is low throughout the country, and perhaps is lower in this city than at any time since consolidation. The simple explanation is the cost of materials and labor. Owners know that whoever builds just now is at a disadvantage of fixed costs in any future depression. Nevertheless, there are those who think that present conditions are so fortified that those who have cheap land can better afford to proceed with their building plans than await cheaper building conditions. The loss of income now offering is a considerable offset to increased costs.

The candor with which our efficient tax department recognizes these changes is the best protection against our larger values necessitating undue payments on account of direct State tax. The increase shows that our valuations are full, and fair play requires that up-State valuations also shall be full. Prosperity is not confined to this city. The farmers are getting prices they never dreamed of, and the value of their land reflects—or should reflect—the commodity markets as surely as our valuations reflect the renting market.

DESERVED PUNISHMENT.

Whatever course the United States Senate may pursue in regard to the pernicious utterances of LA FOLLETTE, it is an assured fact that the violence of the reaction against not only the Wisconsin mischief-maker but nearly all the Senators who have gained unenviable distinction by opposing the nation's preparations for war has put them in an exceedingly painful position. Petitions have now been received for the expulsion from the Senate not only of LA FOLLETTE but of STONE of Missouri and GRONNA of North Dakota as well, while the names of Senators HARDWICK, REED, and VARDAMAN are joined with theirs in resolutions "condemning in unmeasured terms" the obstruction of essential war legislation.

If any human being enjoys this sort of publicity, we are quite sure that he is not a man who has had reason to believe, in the past, that he was regarded as a safe and patriotic leader by some part of the community. The stain upon the repute of these men they placed there themselves. The petitioners are only deepening it. The Senators cannot possibly find the process agreeable. They know that the widespread revolt against them is in every case inspired by loyal feeling, that the patriotic citizens have been roused by a realization of the enormous evil that has already been accomplished by the open and secret opposition to the extension and equipment of the army and navy, by the obviously dangerous effect in Europe of this sort of conduct in an American legislative body. The stigma thus placed on the name and fame of every legislator involved will not easily be removed.

THE EXPULSIONS AT COLUMBIA.

The Trustees of Columbia University, concurring with the university Faculties, have done their duty to the university and its good fame by expelling two members of the Faculty who have fomented disloyalty. To one of these extruded persons long tolerance has been shown. There is a curious class of professors that covers itself with the threadbare cloak of "academic freedom," and thereby seeks protection for public utterances whose cumulative effect is injurious to the reputation of the college. Almost every considerable institution of learning has in its Faculty men who have a gift, often, it would seem, a malicious pleasure in using it, of mischievous, unreasonable, and dangerous speech, a specious radicalism that tends to mislead the young. They practice insubordination. They glory in sensation. Their folly rejoices the disbelievers in "college education," and saddens or disgusts the graduates and friends of their college, creates a little group of sympathizers among the undergraduates, light-hearted resisters of authority, easily attracted, in the generosity of youth, to unsound, perilous theories, finding unpopularity a merit.

The esprit de corps of the Faculty, sometimes the personal qualities of the errant professor, plead in his favor. The Trustees are afraid of the howls of violated "academic freedom." It is hard work to get rid of a professor. What a rage there was when the University of Pennsylvania dropped an instructor of this type a year or two ago! Its judgment has been signally vindicated since. The unruly instructor has turned up this year as a pacifist and seditionary.

The largest tolerance of professorial opinion must stop at professorial opinion that opposes and seeks to undermine the primary obligations of the citizen, the security, the existence of the nation. The fantasies of "academic freedom" may protect an agnostic professor in a theological seminary. They cannot protect a professor who counsels resistance to the laws and speaks, writes, disseminates treason. That a teacher of youth should teach sedition and treason, that he should infect, or seek to infect, youthful minds with ideas fatal to their duty to the country, is intolerable. The elder of the two expelled professors has a son, formerly a Columbia student, who has lost his citizenship for acting on his father's teachings. That mournful illustration of the effects of treasonable teaching suffices.

A professor who uses the letterhead of the university to urge members of Congress to "support a measure "against sending conscripts to Europe "against their will" has ended his "academic usefulness," as the Columbia authorities say. He had warnings repeated, the final warning in President BUTLER's Commencement Day speech last June, that Columbia would keep no place on its Faculties or among its students for opposers or counselors of opposition to the laws, traitors or emitters of treason. "Academic freedom" is a pitiful thing by the side of the freedom of the United States, of democracy. This professor was ripe for dismissal long ago. His dismissal was proposed last Spring. He has been treated with singular patience.

The evicted assistant professor, in spite of ample warning, has been active in anti-patriotic organizations such as the People's Council. An assistant professor of Columbia, roaming about the country with other representatives of that sodality of sedition, was a public injury to the good name of the university. It is painful to see a grandson of the author of "The Building of the Ship" and "Paul Revere's Ride," a grandson also of the author of "Two Years Before the Mast," a man in whose blood the taint of treason should have been impossible, brought by socialism and pacifism to such base company.

A great historical institution, Columbia has had its sons in the country's wars for more than a hundred and fifty years. Its graduates and undergraduates continue, with greater numbers and as great a patriotism, the heroic tradition. The Columbia soldiers in the war of freedom are to be shamed no longer, Columbians everywhere are no longer to be shamed, by voices of treason at Morningside.

JAPAN'S POLICY IN CHINA.

Viscount ISHII's frank and candid statement of Japan's attitude toward China should remove from American minds any anxiety which misunderstanding or misrepresentation may have caused. With equal frankness it may be said that we in this country have not always understood Japan's purposes in respect to China, and we were particularly in the dark at the time certain specific demands were made upon China some two years ago. Our distinguished Japanese visitor not only illuminates the subject by his statement of Japan's purposes, but the assurances he gives are in their very nature calculated to allay any uneasiness that may have existed.

In explaining that the policy and principle of Japan in her relations with China as "voluntarily outlined and pledged" by him are not a Monroe Doctrine, that the term Monroe Doctrine is inapplicable since it is inaccurate, Viscount ISHII indicates points of difference which certainly do not impair the value of the Japanese commitment in regard to China. In his remarks on Monday evening the special Ambassador said:

> There is this fundamental difference between the Monroe Doctrine of the United States as to Central and South America and the enunciation of Japan's attitude toward China: In the first there is on the part of the United States no engagement or promise, while in the other Japan voluntarily announces that Japan will herself engage not to violate the political or territorial integrity of her neighbor, and to observe the principle of the open door and equal opportunity, asking at the same time other nations to respect these principles.

Let us say at the outset that in Japan's purpose to ask other nations to respect the political and territorial integrity of China and the principle of the open door there will never be a cause of difference between the Japanese Government and our own. It is scarcely necessary to point out the identity of Japan's present policy toward China with the policy declared by Secretary HAY, to which he secured the assent of the leading nations. We have not, we never had, any purpose to impair in the slightest degree China's sovereignty or to possess ourselves of any of her territory, and we are heartily in accord with Japan in this policy.

It is true, as Viscount ISHII remarks, that in the Monroe Doctrine as originally proclaimed there is no express engagement or promise not to molest our neighbors, but that engagement is implied in the circumstances which led to the declaration of President MONROE, and it inheres in the very spirit of the Doctrine itself, insomuch that any breach of it would be an inexcusable fault, for which we may be sure we should promptly be called to account. Therefore, when Viscount ISHII declares that the absence of the express pledge from the Monroe Doctrine is a "fundamental difference" between that Doctrine and the declared policy of Japan toward China, he enhances, it may be unconsciously, the binding force of her engagement to seek no territorial advantage over her neighbor. Our engagement not to molest our sister republics in this hemisphere was sufficiently clear and inviolable, even if not expressly given. If, in comparison, Japan's commitment gains greater force through expression, it must be very strong indeed. At least it is gratifying to us that it has been given in this clear manner, and there is further cause for satisfaction in the feeling that Viscount ISHII's words have removed, we hope permanently, all chance that differences might arise between the United States and Japan out of the development of her policy toward China.

A LINCOLN FOR LONDON.

OLIVER CROMWELL has been variously portrayed in English picture and story, as bigoted and vengeful and treacherous and cruel, as forbidding of aspect. But, when the time came to set up in front of St. Stephen's a statue of CROMWELL, the patriot, the liberator of English thought, was depicted by an enlightened sculptor in his true historical aspect. The Cromwell at the Parliament Buildings is the true Cromwell of clarified history. The Beaconsfield, near by, depicts the great political leader, the powerful upbuilder of a great Empire, not the egotistical and attitudinizing "Dizzy" some of his contemporaries liked to caricature. The Lincoln which should stand in proximity to these imperishable effigies of famous Englishmen should faithfully and sympathetically depict the ideal of the Emancipator, the heroic, self-sacrificing American leader who bore so bravely the great burden of his nation's troubles.

The humble origin of the man, the uncouthness his enemies found in his personality, need not be suggested in a statue intended to personify for all time the triumph of the democratic principle. Mr. GEORGE GREY BARNARD has been at pains to denote the ungainliness of his Lincoln, to present him in an ugly pose, to exaggerate, probably for some comprehensible artistic effect, certain physical defects. This is, therefore, not an appropriate statue of President LINCOLN to put in that place to represent to generations to come of Englishmen the true spirit of America. We have a few public statues of LINCOLN much better suited to the purpose.

As a matter of fact, LINCOLN was a man of splendid stature. He faced his troubles erect, not bowed with his hands clasped in front of his body in an attitude of humility and despair. Mr. BARNARD has evolved a Lincoln which just suits the fancy of Mr. BARNARD and his friends. We should not care to deprive them of the aesthetic enjoyment they derive from contemplation of it. But let us set up in London a statue of LINCOLN which faithfully represents the great public and historic side of the author of the Gettysburg address and the second inaugural speech, the powerful, unshrinking, heroic, and triumphant LINCOLN.

A BLOW AT AUSTRIA'S HEART.

If General CADORNA's latest move contemplates isolating Monte San Gabriele and passing on, it is no wonder that the Austrians are frantically rushing troops from France, Galicia, and Bukowina to stop him at all costs to the other fronts. For such a move on his part would mean nothing less than an intention to smash the Austrian Army before the Winter weather begins. Heretofore, alarmed as the Austrians were by his successes, they have doubtless been confident that he could do no more than master the Bainsizza Plateau before cold weather. That would be bad enough, but the Austrian Army would be in no positive danger before next Spring, and many things might happen in the Winter. The peace incantations that are now being so skillfully organized by Austria and Germany, not for the purpose of bringing about peace so much as for the purpose of confusing the Allies and building a pacifist backfire on them, might be calculated on by Teuton optimists to be working havoc with CADORNA's plans by April.

But if CADORNA means to isolate Monte San Gabriele, it means that he intends to be in the Chiapovano Valley while there is still good fighting weather. The Bainsizza Plateau is the last obstacle to that valley. Once he gets into it, he can turn and crush the Austrians to the south or the north, he can drive a wedge between the two wings that will place them at his mercy. That done, he could drive them toward Vienna. His entrance into the Chiapovano Valley would mean that his arm was raised for a blow at the heart of Austria-Hungary.

The Austrians, though they have seen his object well enough for the last two months, counted on the Bainsizza Plateau to keep him busy until cold weather. He has got most of it in his possession, but he has still to make his way over the remainder and down over the side of the plateau into the valley. The whole Austrian effort has been concentrated on holding what is left of the plateau, so as to keep him out of the fatal valley until Spring. Monte San Gabriele has been the greatest obstacle.

But now CADORNA is manifesting a disposition to leave the mountain behind him instead of taking it. Since he could doubtless take it if he were willing to spend enough time in the enterprise, this apparent intention can mean only that time is important to him; in other words, that he means to get into the valley at once, regardless of Monte San Gabriele. That means that his contemplated effort to destroy the Austrian Army is scheduled not for next Spring, but for this Fall. Germany and Austria are "alarmed," the dispatches say. They would be excusable if they were panic-stricken.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

One-tenth of All Bars Closed.

With October's first day the Brown amendments to the State liquor tax laws came into effect, with the result that renewal of license had to be—and, therefore, presumably was—refused to something more than 2,000 of the something more than 20,000 dispensatories of intoxicants which till then had been more or less gladly and generously supported by the State's inhabitants. No general or vehement protest against this restriction of a privilege hitherto enjoyed has yet been audible, so it can be assumed with safety that again legislative interference with the working to its perfect end of the sacred law of supply and demand has been successfully achieved, or, as the world's people say, put across.

The docility displayed by a population once easily aroused by any assault upon, or infringement of, its "personal freedom" might be explained in any of several ways, each about as plausible as another.

It could be said, for instance, that we are no longer what we were—that fast following reforms, so-called, have worn out our powers of resistance, and that now we quietly submit to deprivation of one-tenth of the saloons seemingly only numerous enough to meet our needs, and as tamely endure the hardships incidental to having the average distance to the nearest ginmill increased to an extent easily computable by any competent arithmetician. That means, in a State as large and populous as this one, the wearing out of no inconsiderable amount of leather every year, and sympathetic economists will shed bitter tears over the waste.

On the other hand, there is consolation in the thought that the longer the walk the greater the thirst and the greater the satisfaction in the assuaging thereof.

Some will not have to lighten the cloud by this reflection. They will remember that even when a tenth is taken from 20,000 a good many remain, and that while the average remoteness of remedies for drought has been increased, in individual cases next to innumerable there will be no change of habit required.

Lastly, there are the queer people who are so obsessed by what they consider knowledge of the close relation between alcohol and crime, insanity, pauperism, and half a dozen other social annoyances that they will actually welcome the new régime and lament, not the loss of the tenth, but the perpetuation of the remainder. For their position, too, there is perhaps something to be said.

Of Course His Rage Is Double.

Mexico's Consul General here seems to combine in temper, as he does in name, the dislike of gringos and gringo methods characteristic of a part of the people he officially represents and the peculiar readiness to be in the opposition—to be "agin the Government"—that used to be ascribed to the islanders of whom his father may have been a far-wandering son. It is not really hard to understand, therefore, either why a Juan Burns should have involved himself once in the troubles arising from the smuggling of arms across our southern border, or why now he should be in a towering anger because one of his subordinates, like other resident foreigners, was asked by the draft authorities to make clear his alien status by writing it out for them on a piece of paper.

It was, indeed, entirely natural that a Burns who is also Juan, and a Juan who is also Burns, should inflate this little formality into a large, bitter grievance, or that, when it had been inflated, he should describe it as an outrageous attempt to compel a Mexican subject to risk his life as a member of the United States Army. What is natural, however, is not always pleasant, or even tolerable, and as Señor JUAN—or Mr. BURNS—has seen fit to express his resentment against our constituted authorities in the manner peculiar to Latin courtesy when it curdles into opprobrious epithet and earnest objurgation, perhaps the time is near, or even is already come, for taking up the question whether, as a persona, he is or is not grata.

He has forgotten, apparently, that along with the sub-species of diplomatic immunity which undoubtedly is his, and extends more or less to his official family, there go certain risks and perils from which the ordinary foreigner is exempt. Among these risks and perils are some arising from the fact that his departure from the country, if deemed desirable, can be brought about with speed and ease by a mere request to his superiors for his recall. No explanation of such a demand need be given, and he cannot invoke the delaying complexities and inadequacies of our immigration laws, as could almost any other stranger within what by ancient metaphor is called our gates.

They Defend Germans from Germans.

There was a certain magnanimity, rising at least a little higher than strict justice, in the fact that from the headquarters of the Canadian troops in France there came yesterday a dispatch which added to the statement that German prisoners complain that their perils are not shared by their officers the explanation that though this was true it was not due to fear on the part of those officers.

That Germans of any rank lack courage to confront the perils of battle, no matter how terrible, has, indeed, been disproved a thousand times since the war began, but an ungenerous foe, or even one not notably generous, might well have been content to disclose that the German privates were complaining that their officers are keeping well back of the firing line and permit who would to find excuses for this behavior. The Canadians preferred to have it explained that not fear of death, but obedience to orders from above, had caused the change of habit.

To be sure, the Canadians gave the further explanation that the new orders were issued because trained leaders are becoming scarce in the German armies and have to be used with a dangerous economy which the Allies are not compelled to practice, and from that, of course, they want us to draw the deduction that German strength is approaching its end. But that was more than permissible and far beyond the reach of criticism.

A Bit of French Geography.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Let the dear boys on their way over learn this bit of French geography by heart. It will open their eyes, and they will comprehend why the grasping hands of Wilhelm II. hold firmly to the Department of the Aisne, and they will know their duty.

> Il y a peu de rivières que l'on puisse comparer à l'Aisne pour l'agrément, la variété des sites et la fertilité du sol qu'elle arrose. La surface de ce département offre une suite continuelle de pleines ondulées, entrecoupées çà et là de collines et de vallons. C'est un des départements les plus importants de la France sous le rapport du commerce.

My hearty "Au revoir" goes with them.

Senator Breckinridge.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When John C. Breckinridge remained in the United States Senate until the eleventh hour, he did it to prevent the disruption of the Union that he loved and that his ancestors had helped to establish. Failing in that, he cast in his lot with the South. At this time, when our country should be united, one of the most honored and beloved men of the South, whose descendants are in the army and navy of the United States, is held before his country as a traitor. After the civil war and five years of exile, General Breckinridge returned to Kentucky an unpardoned Confederate and a disfranchised man, but the idol of his people, whose hearts he held in the hollow of his hand. He accepted the loss of all things with the noble simplicity and courage that characterized his whole life. After a few brief years he died and Republicans and Democrats alike united to raise a statue to his memory, for no man could know him and be his foe.

Enemies Are Listening.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Some months after the war began it was found necessary in France to post in tramcars, railroad cars, and other public places this placard: "Taisez vous, mefiez vous, les oreilles ennemies vous ecoutent," to warn the people against talking in public of any military affairs.

My belief in the necessity of such a warning constantly exhibited to our own people was confirmed this morning, when I overheard a young woman telling her companion of the early sailing of a mutual friend, giving the date, place, and the name of the ship. Although from the circumstances I believe her information was not correct, it may have been. Ought we not to be frequently warned by some such words as these: Be silent, be cautious, your enemies are listening.

The Soldier Spirit.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

My son (my only child) left for Camp Upton on Saturday as an ordinary private, and yesterday morning I received a special delivery letter from him. I desire to quote a few of the remarks which he makes in that letter:

> Dear Mother and Father: Please don't worry. I am very delighted and happy to undergo this interesting and honorable experience. An occasion to serve so usefully does not arrive every day nor every generation. I was fitted for my wonderful uniform. The system is marvelous, &c.

I send you this so that you can show your readers how my son feels, and it will no doubt make others feel the same way.

Volunteers Feel Slighted.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Quite a few of the boys mention the fact that all the cheers and good wishes are going with the national army. We do not begrudge it, but what about the volunteers who enlisted in the regular army? Why don't we get a "hand" once in a while—or are we forgotten in the millions?

Ugarte in Central America.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Manuel Ugarte, professional anti-American agitator, continues to denounce the United States, now in Central America. The South Americans have been very patient with such men as Ugarte. The professional anti-American in South America is either a monomaniac or paid for his services. Ugarte has never shown signs of insanity.

THE CHURCH.

I wandered in,
As so did many others,
The billboards calling them.
(This was in Montreal.) . . .
The movie was about—
Somebody's daughter had a wicked father
And somebody's sweetheart was—well, sworn to duty.
A soldier sat by me
In the broken pose of the wounded.
Then, without seeming reason, ghosts began to chant:
Adeste fideles, venite adoremus. . . .
The screen was framed under an architrave.
Over my head were beams set missionwise,
And a swinging candelabrum
Where once the chancel was.
Some idiot played fitfully upon a poor piano,
And the hero took the heroine in his arms,
The while I heard the chanting distantly:
Kyrie eleison, Christe eleison. . . .
The soldier at my elbow stirred and said,
"This must 'a' bin a church."
The while the villain had the drop on both.
"It's kinda queer," the wounded soldier said.
"It is," was the reply I made (I think).
And then we both went out. . . .
Yet still I heard it,
Under the architrave, behind the screen.

Patrons Here Accept Plan to Conserve Food Without Protest.

New York City had its first beefless Tuesday yesterday, when all of the hotels dropped beef in every shape and form from its menus. This plan was adopted voluntarily by the hotel managers, in their efforts to help the Food Administration in its plan to conserve food. Although started without previous notice, there was little, if any, confusion and no protests.

Reports received by John McE. Bowman, member of the Federal Food Administration, and Thomas D. Green, Chairman of the Food Administration Committee for New York, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey, showed that the New England States, Atlantic City, and San Francisco had also started the beefless Tuesday yesterday. According to both officials, practically every hotel and restaurant in the United States will put the plan in force, so that next Tuesday will be generally a beefless day throughout the country.

The first notification the diners in the hotels had that there was a change in the menu was at luncheon, when the cards were placed before them. At the top of each was printed:

"The United States Food Administration wishes to discourage the use of beef on Tuesdays. This appeal to patriotism has our support, for which reason we do not offer our patrons beef in any form on today's menu."

A perusal of the menu showed that beef in any form had been eliminated and preference seemed to have been given to fish and other sea food, eggs, chicken, mutton, and lamb. In some of the high-class hotels pork and beans figured for the first time prominently featured on the cards.

In some cases where the patrons ordered beef steaks or filet of beef, without having looked at the menu, the headwaiter called attention to the fact that this was a beefless day. In not a single case was there reported any objection on the part of the guest, or a case where he or she did not willingly change the order. One of the specific cases was in the Park Avenue Hotel where a woman diner who had ordered filet of beef, learning of the change, went to the proprietor, George C. Brown, and complimented the hotel upon setting an example in patriotism. She said she would advise her cook to make Tuesdays in her home also beefless days.

Thomas D. Green, President of the Hotel Association, said that the plan had met with even greater enthusiasm than even the hotel men had expected.

"The action of the hotel men of this city was voluntary," he said. "They were anxious to do what they could to help the Government in its campaign to conserve the nation's food supply. Beef was one of the things which it was reported was becoming scarce, and efforts were being made to stop the grave shrinkage. We felt that a beefless Tuesday would not only put a punch in the conservation plan, but would also call the attention at the same time of the general public to what the Food Administration was doing.

"The way the patrons of our hotels have taken to the idea is splendid. There was not one complaint registered, but instead the proprietors report that they received many compliments and offers of support. The diners of New York are just as patriotic as any other class in this city, and I am glad to be able to say that the stories that they would order beef just to be contrary were absolutely unfounded."

One of the questions which puzzled the hotel men was what would happen at formal dinners given on a beefless Tuesday, and this was answered when the Rotary Club at its first monthly dinner in the ballroom of the McAlpin, learning of the adoption of the beefless Tuesday, had chicken substituted for beef.

Yesterday also found the dining cars of all the railroad lines observing their first beefless Tuesday. The Lehigh Valley served no meat whatever.

John J. Cavanagh, President of the Society of Restaurateurs, telegraphed Mr. Bowman that the restaurants of this city would start their beefless days this coming Tuesday.

DENIAL BY ROOSEVELT.

Never Advocated German State in South Brazil, He Says.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 2.—In connection with Theodore Roosevelt's recent speech at a luncheon in Chicago, in which he related for the first time the details of secret conferences in 1902 between himself and the German Ambassador in connection with Germany's proposed occupation of Venezuela, the Frankfurter Zeitung publishes what it asserts is the German Foreign Office record of a conversation on the South American situation on Feb. 18, 1903, between President Roosevelt and the late Baron Speck von Sternburg, the German Ambassador.

In this conversation President Roosevelt is quoted as having said that he thought the best guarantee for the amelioration of South American conditions would be the establishment of a German State in South Brazil.

Colonel Roosevelt at Oyster Bay last night, when asked about the assertions of the Frankfurter Zeitung, said:

"There is not the least truth in that statement."

In his luncheon speech at Chicago the Colonel said that in 1902, when Germany proposed a "temporary" occupation of Venezuela, he sent for the German Ambassador and told him that "this Venezuela business has been going on long enough, and I cannot afford to let it get to a point where it will cause trouble for this country." He asked the Ambassador what Germany meant by temporary possession, and on the Ambassador replying that he did not feel at liberty to discuss such an important question, he delivered the following ultimatum: "Tell your Government that in ten days it must arbitrate the matter or I will send Dewey down there."

The German Ambassador, according to Colonel Roosevelt, said he could not send such a message, saying he did not think the President knew what it would mean. President Roosevelt replied that if it meant war, Germany had chosen the one spot where she could not fight the United States. The President then ordered Admiral Dewey to be ready to sail on an hour's notice.

The Ambassador again visited President Roosevelt a week later, and said he had not dared send the message, and the President told him that he had ordered Dewey to sail within forty-eight hours. The Ambassador said this would be an awful thing for the United States, but President Roosevelt retorted that it would be more awful for Germany. Within thirty-six hours the Ambassador again returned to the President and informed him Germany would arbitrate.

OUSTED PROFESSORS SILENT

Columbia Secretary Says the Affair Is a Closed Incident.

If Professor James McK. Cattell and Professor H. W. L. Dana, who were dismissed from the Faculty of Columbia University on Monday because of their activity in opposing America's war plans, had any complaint to make, they did not voice it yesterday. Professor Dana, when asked by a reporter for THE TIMES to comment upon the action of the trustees of Columbia, replied:

"I will not discuss that matter with newspaper men."

Professor Cattell could not be found at Columbia yesterday. It was said he was at his home in Garrison, N. Y. On Monday night he had said he was sorry but not surprised at the trustees' action.

Dr. Samuel McCune Lindsay of the Columbia Faculty and President of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, said the action of the trustees suited the Faculty generally. Dr. Lindsay was asked if he considered that the action of the trustees infringed on the right of free speech.

"In the circumstances," he replied, "I think that it did not. These are not normal times and we should look at things differently. I think that the action of the trustees finds the support of the Faculty of Columbia."

Frank D. Fackenthal, Secretary of the university, said that the matter was a closed incident, so far as the trustees were concerned. When asked if there had been any protests made to the university by other members of the Faculty or by any one else, he said:

"I have heard of none, and if there had been any they would probably have come to me."

WORKERS BEATEN TO DEATH

Hungry Men Taunted with Sight of Food—Even Comforts of Religion Denied.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 2.—The Belgian Government gives THE NEW YORK TIMES for publication an official report on the suffering of Belgians in camps of "hungerland," which has been called a secondary army zone behind the German battle front. The report runs:

"It can now be stated positively without exaggeration that deported Belgian 'workers' are overcome by starvation. Despite their utter weakness they are driven unsparingly to heavy work, such as unloading trucks, roadmending, and burying the dead until the moment when nature can stand no more and they are carted off to a hospital or sent home to die.

"All work is supervised by sentries armed with clubs which are used unsparingly on any poor wretch who sinks down sick or exhausted. Thus at Romage Camp a man named C—, suffering from fever and lung trouble, complained of his condition to the officer on duty. The latter seized C— by the shoulders and flung him against a wall, where he fell senseless.

"Another named S— was so sick he was hardly able to walk. A sentry struck him in the back with a rifle butt and the man has not left the hospital since. At Fontaine Camp a worker fell fainting and four of his companions carried him to the guardhouse to ask for his removal to a hospital. The sentry's reply was to beat the man literally to death before their eyes.

"At Villers a sentry decided that a worker named M—— was too slow in lighting a fire and clubbed him over the head. M—— now has a suppurating abscess in the ear and has become hopelessly imbecile. At Demblay an unfortunate named E—— found heart to laugh at a remark of one of his companions. To teach him a better state of mind a sentry struck him down with a rifle butt and he is still half paralyzed in a hospital.

"Of all these cases we possess full names, dates, and details, but for obvious reasons cannot publish them yet. Sunday was supposed to be a day of rest for workers. Lest they might feel over-favored soldiers, just 'for fun,' or even by official order, made them line up against a courtyard wall and stand half-naked for hours.

"Another piece of German 'fun' was at Demblay and Damvillers, to hold up bread or a bowl of soup to starving prisoners. The latter would spring forward, to be met with kicks and clubbing.

"What this 'pleasantry' means to prisoners may be imagined from the fact that they readily paid francs apiece for rats to ease pangs of hunger. Workers were housed in never-cleaned sheds reeking with filth and vermin. Never were they allowed to bathe, or even change their linen.

"Even the comforts of religion were forbidden. From Dec. 1 to May 5 only once was a priest allowed to say mass and give absolution at Romange Camp. At Montmedy only two masses were held between Nov. 2 and May 30, and everywhere the case is still the same or worse. Such are but a part of the sufferings of our unhappy population."

DR. CARSTENSEN OUT.

Officials of Riverdale Church Resented His Admitting Negro Orphans

The Rev. Dr. J. M. Carstensen, for fifteen years rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Riverdale, has resigned under circumstances which have aroused considerable feeling among a large part of his congregation in the town of Riverdale, where he is very popular.

Dr. Carstensen's resignation is said to be due to opposition to him by a small but influential part of his congregation, and particularly by one of the prominent Vestrymen. The original cause of the trouble was the permission given by the rector to the Superintendent of the Colored Orphan Asylum, which is near the church, to have a small number of the children of the asylum attend the services at Christ Church and occupy a corner of the church. This was resented by most of the Vestrymen, and the managers of the institution were informed that the children were not wanted. The rector protested, and his friends assert that his protest has been the source of the discord which has now ended in his resignation.

The rector declined yesterday to discuss the causes of his resignation or his future plans. It is said, however, he has under consideration overtures from a parish in the Northwest, and this fact has resulted in a movement among those associated with his work in Riverdale to interest Bishop Greer to keep him in the neighborhood of his present activities.

Dr. Carstensen is well past middle life, and the greater part of his career has been spent in New York. He returned form service in the Spanish-American war to take a pulpit in this city, and has been active in many varied fields of usefulness here since. He is President of the Churchmen's Association, is a Sergeant in the Home Defense League in Riverdale, and Associate Chaplain of a National Guard regiment. It is his friends in these bodies and some former parishioners who are discussing sending the petition to Bishop Greer.

BUSY WITH WAR TOBACCO.

Revenue Employes Work Overtime to Keep Soldiers Supplied.

Collector William H. Edwards, in charge of the Second, or Wall Street, Internal Revenue District, said yesterday that the large shipments of cigars and cigarettes now being sent to American soldiers in France and England was responsible for a great deal of extra work for the employes of his office.

"Many of the employes of the Internal Revenue service are working overtime these days in order that shipments of cigars, cigarettes, and tobacco for the American soldiers in France may not be delayed," the Collector said. "Every case of such goods exported must have a Government export stamp affixed, and, as these stamps must be filled in with certain data in long hand, the extra work entailed is considerable.

"At the large tobacco factories in the district rush orders from individuals and organizations are being filled as rapidly as possible, and requisitions for export stamps have almost swamped the Internal Revenue officers whose duty it is to prepare them. This has often necessitated their working late into the night. There have been no complaints on account of the extra work, as the men feel that in a way they are thus doing their 'bit' in war time."

Collector Edwards said that another feature in connection with the exportation of "smokes" for the expeditionary forces was that it entailed additional work on the part of Deputy Collectors, because the Government provides rebating duty on all tobacco sent to the American troops.

ADMIRAL TAKESHITA BETTER

Japanese Mission Will Probably Visit Roosevelt Today.

Vice Admiral Isamu Takeshita of the Japanese Commission, who has been ill at the home of Elbert H. Gary, was reported improved last night, and the commission probably will leave for Oyster Bay at 10:30 o'clock this morning for the postponed visit with Colonel Roosevelt. Viscount Ishii, head of the Japanese Commission, has been suffering with a sore throat, but was also said to be much improved.

With the exception of a short motor trip the members of the commission remained indoors yesterday, resting up after the succession of dinners and receptions.

EULOGIES OF LIFE OF I. N. SELIGMAN

A Loyal American, Who Set Interests of Country Above Creed and Party, Says Dr. Adler.

THRONG AT BANKER'S BIER

Prominent Men the Pallbearers for Patron of Many Charities — Rev. Dr. Enelo Pays Tribute at Grave.

The esteem that had been commanded by Isaac Newton Seligman as a member of the banking house of J. & W. Seligman & Co., as a patron of many charities and as one of the city's leading citizens, was reflected by the great gathering at his funeral yesterday at his home, 36 West Fifty-fourth Street. Although attendance at the service had been restricted to members of the family, relatives and close business and social friends, the rooms set aside for the mourners were full to overflowing, and the coffin was covered and surrounded by a great bower of floral pieces. Some of these pieces came from bankers, members of clubs and of the church to which Mr. Seligman belonged, but there were also many flowers there from the clerks of his banking house, and the employes of his town and country residences.

The body was placed in the family mausoleum at Salem Fields, Cypress Hills, L. I., the following being the honorary pallbearers: Fredrick Strauss, Mr. Seligman's partner; General Horace Porter, Oswald Garrison Villard, A. Barton Hepburn, Henry W. Taft, R. Fulton Cutting, Robert C. Cornell, Francis S. Bangs, Frank Outerbridge, Oscar S. Straus, Walter Beer, A. F. Southerland, Frank Damrosch, George C. Kobbe, Dr. Abram Jacobi, and George McAneny.

Both at the house and the cemetery the services were simple. Dr. Felix Adler, head of the Society for Ethical Culture, which Joseph Seligman, father of Isaac N. Seligman, had helped to found, preached the funeral sermon at the home. He delivered the sermon in the music room where rested the coffin surrounded by the following members of the family and relatives; Mrs. Isaac N. Seligman, Lieutenant and Mrs. Joseph L. Seligman, Miss Margaret V. Seligman, Professor and Mrs. Edwin R. A. Seligman, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Seligman, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Seligman, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob H. Schiff, Mr. and Mrs. Paul M. Warburg, and Mr. and Mrs. Felix M. Warburg.

Dr. Felix Adler's Eulogy

Dr. Adler reviewed in simple terms Mr. Seligman's many activities, his integrity in business, his loyalty to America, and his fidelity to his friends.

" A bracing, cordial word, stimulative of strength, is all that I can venture to speak at this moment, when the mystery of death has invaded our lives, filling us with solemn awe," he said in part. " There is a power in men to rise above their weaker selves, to face life anew, and in resolutely taking up the duties that remain to find comfort and strength.

"'It has been asked, by what shall a man be remembered after he is gone? The answer is, by the service he has rendered, by the love he has expended.

" The life of Isaac Seligman was one of manifold and varied service—service to the nation, State, and city. He was an ardent American, setting the interests of the country above those of creed and party. He was one to whom men went for counsel, sensible, fair-minded, and exercising a moderation and reconciling influence in controversies.

" The dying Emperor, when asked for the password, replied: ' Equanimity! '

" The gift of equanimity, of a mind ever equable in time of stress, Mr. Seligman possessed to a degree not commonly met with. And there was something else, a crowning charm—a love of human beings as such, a warm, sunny kindness which awakened similar feelings in return."

He added that in pursuing his charitable activities Mr. Seligman had never hesitated to make liberal contributions, and had always lent himself to the support of any movement that aimed at the betterment and happiness of his fellowmen.

Rev. Dr. Enelo's Address.

A brief address was delivered at the cemetery by the Rev. Dr. Enelo of Temple Emanu-El. He said in part:

" Mr. Isaac Seligman was both an ornament and an asset to the community. Heir to an honored name, he lived up to it with distinction and an unfailing sense of the responsibility of high position. His personal qualities were such as to make him deeply loved of his fellowmen. In him, gentleness and vigor were harmoniously blended. His qualities were not merely external, they were inward. Integrity not only of deed but of thought, kindness of spirit which expressed itself not in formal charity, but in tenderness and sympathy toward all, purity that pervaded his whole being, devotion to duty, enthusiasm for every good cause, ardent patriotism and lofty ideals of citizenship; such were the qualities that made him a force in a vast number of enterprises; that made his presence well known and welcome in every assemblage for the common good. When we think of his noble qualities and achievements and think of how he is taken from us, we cannot help realizing the truth of the ancient utterance, ' A good life hath but few days; but a good name shall endure forever.' "

APPEAL TEACHERS' PAY CASE

Highest Court to Pass Upon Rate of Deductions for Absence.

The Appellate Term of the Supreme Court yesterday heard an appeal by the Board of Education in a test case which, if affirmed by the higher courts, is expected to cost the Board of Education millions of dollars. The question hinges on the amount to be deducted from a teacher's pay because of absence on account of illness. In the case of Mary A. Broughton, plaintiff in the test suit, the board divided her annual salary by the number of school days in a year and deducted one part for each day absent. She contends that one-three hundred and sixty-fifth of her salary should have been deducted.

The action was tried before Municipal Justice Levy, who held that the teacher's contention was right. Arthur C. Mandel was engaged by the Allied Teachers' Association to conduct the litigation in their behalf. The case will eventually reach the Court of Appeals.

campaign, and several large bond distributing organizations have sent out letters and telegrams to their branch offices, instructing their representatives not to seek any new business of any kind, and to concentrate on the work of getting subscriptions to the Liberty Loan

An appeal has been made by the Liberty Loan Committee to every bank President in this district to canvass depositors for subscriptions. In a letter to the bank Presidents the committee points out that subscriptions to the first loan from men who ordinarily invest from $5,000 to $10,000 at a time were low in the aggregate, in sharp contrast to the generous investments of wage earners, corporations, and other large investors.

The department stores and hotels are being brought rapidly into line for the campaign. Hundreds of thousands of shoppers will in the next few days have their attention called to the Government loan by booths attractively decorated and attended by volunteer workers. In the lobbies of the hotels the same general plan is being carried out.

Educational System Enlisted.

The entire State educational system is co-operating in the Liberty Loan campaign. The general plan embraces meetings in each school, with addresses by teachers. Dr. John Huston Finley, Commissioner of Education, has written to 3,000 State students, asking their support, and pointing out that the present situation affords them an opportunity to render valuable services to the Government. About half of the men whose aid has been requested are attending the New York City institutions, while the other 1,500 are at Cornell, Rochester, Syracuse, Union, and the other colleges which receive scholarships from the State. To enable the 75,000 school teachers in this district to take effective part in the campaign, a textbook has been prepared by the United States Treasury Department. The books will be ready for distribution in a few days.

Addressing the teachers of the State, Dr. Finley says: " You are asked as a first service to the State to help finance the war by acting as agents for the second Liberty Loan."

The Bureau of Education of the Liberty Loan Committee is arranging for booths in 500 public libraries of the State, not including the school libraries.

Boy Scouts Ready for Drive.

The Boy Scouts of America, a quarter million or more of whom are scattered in 12,284 troops all over the country, have completed their preparations to take the same active and efficient part in the Second Liberty Loan campaign as they did in the drive last Spring. A series of camps are going to be set up by the boys in various parks and public squares, where Boy Scout buglers will call attention to the Liberty Loan posters and circulars which they are spreading broadcast. The actual house to house canvass by the boys is reserved for the closing days of the campaign.

With the object of raising a million-dollar subscription from members of the American colony in Cuba, Osgood Smith has left for Havana. The recent action of the United States Treasury in subscribing to one-half of the $30,000,000 issue of Cuban war bonds has tended to cement the financial relations of the two countries, and the Liberty Loan Committee has been assured of liberal subscriptions from Cuba.

" The best way to shorten the war is to see that the Liberty Loan is heavily oversubscribed," declared yesterday Thomas W. Lamont, member of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. " All Europe has been torn to pieces for three years. No end to the struggle seems yet to be in sight. Is there any way that we can avoid similar distress befalling America? Yes, by going at this task hammer and tongs; by providing promptly the wherewithal to enable our armies and those of our allies to push the conflict through speedily to victory; thus to shorten the war.

" Why has the war already run so long? One answer is because of inadequate preparations on the part of the Allies, because of lack of proper munitions during the first two years of the war. By vigorous and proper financial support America can overcome lack of preparedness, inadequacy of munitions. We can get over these handicaps by speeding up everywhere.

Says Everybody Must Aid.

" Where, then, are we going to get all this money? Congress has already provided a scheme of heavy taxation, but if taxes become too heavy industry and business are injured and all of us suffer. So we come back to the fact that the Government must borrow, and must borrow on an enormous scale, and must get its money promptly.

" Everybody must fall to in this work. It is not the task of the rich or of the moderately well-to-do, or of the poor. It is the task of every one. It is your duty and your business today. Every man, woman, and child should make the success of this loan his chief business. Everything else can wait. But the loan must be subscribed for without delay. If you take hold in this spirit you will save for yourselves and for your country much of the treasure, the blood, and the tears that are saddening the whole world today."

The Liberty Loan headquarters was in receipt yesterday of subscriptions from John F. Hylan, Democratic nominee, and William M. Bennett, Republican nominee for Mayor; Mayor Mitchel, the Fusion candidate, having signed his application on Monday.

M'ADOO SAYS DOLLARS MUST BACK OUR ARMY

Least That Can Be Done for Fighters is To Give Them Means of Defence.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—A warning that the United States was not in the war merely for altruistic purposes but was fighting for her sacred rights, her integrity as a nation, and her security for the future, was made before a large Chicago audience by Secretary McAdoo tonight in urging that generous support be given the second Liberty Loan.

Secretary McAdoo asserted that Germany, in actual fact, had been at war with the United States long before a state of war officially was recognized, and Germany's destroying American lives through sinking ships was in each case, he said, an act of war.

" We should have been at war long since with Germany," he said. " President Wilson, in his eagerness to save America from this colossal conflict went to the extreme of forbearance and patience in order to escape with peace and honor, postponed the conflict until it was no longer possible to avoid the issue."

Issues Made Clear in Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 2.—If by any possible chance a single loan offered by the United States Government to the American people should fail it would be a more fatal disaster and have worse effect than the loss of a great battle, said William G. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury, in a speech to a mass meeting today of persons interested in boosting the second Liberty Loan.

He made the statement concerning the effect of the failure of a loan after having told how the United States Treasury was the heart of the war machine, and felt the shock of everything done through the expenditure of money. The " gold pile " in the Treasury must be kept as plentifully supplied as the coal pile of a business, Mr. McAdoo said.

The least that can be done for Americans in the fighting forces, he said, was to give them the means of defending themselves, so that when they meet the Germans " every brave boy at the front will know that in his hands, put there by American love and American skill, is a weapon the best that possibly can be devised that will give him a possible superiority over his foe." He continued that he wanted the fighting forces to know that " every American dollar is back of them, and that lines of communication and supplies would be kept open. We must be just as willing to sacrifice all our money as they are willing to sacrifice their lives for us."

Mr. McAdoo also outlined to committeemen who will have charge of the bond sale in Indiana the plans.

OVERSUBSCRIBE ISSUE OF TREASURY BILLS

Held to Presage Success of Second Liberty Loan—Offering Is $400,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Liberty Loan financing was marked today by the oversubscription of the largest issue of short-time Treasury certificates of indebtedness yet put out by the Government, $400,000,000. The certificates bear 4 per cent. interest, mature Dec. 15, and may be redeemed sooner upon ten days' notice.

The amount of the oversubscription was not stated by the Treasury, but the taking of the entire issue, which is one-third greater than any previous offering, with a margin to spare, was regarded as presaging the success of the second Liberty bond issue.

Today's offering of certificates brings the total up to $1,250,000,000, or more than 40 per cent of the minimum set by Secretary McAdoo for the second Liberty Loan. With the proceeds of the latest certificate issue available, the Government will have anticipated the second Liberty Loan receipts to the extent of $1,250,000,000, and much of the money will have been paid out

The issuance of certificates of indebtedness in blocks of from $200,000,000 to $400,000,000 is highly regarded by Treasury officials as a method of obviating stress in the money markets which might result from the sudden withdrawal of a considerable proportion of a large loan

SAVINGS LOAN TO WAIT.

Vanderlip Will Press Campaign Only as Bond Drive Nears Conclusion.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—The project for floating the $2,000,000,000 of war savings certificates, under the direction of Frank Vanderlip, President of the National City Bank of New York, will not be pressed until the present campaign for the sale of Liberty Loan bonds is nearing a conclusion.

Mr. Vanderlip is at work in the Treasury Department on the task allotted to him, and expresses confidence in the outcome of the savings loan. The organization he is building up embraces committees of representative bankers and business men in every financial centre of the country, with an extended subordinate organization.

SUFFRAGIST OPPOSES LOAN.

Mrs. H. O. Havemeyer Urges Women Not to Subscribe.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 2.—Mrs. Henry O. Havemeyer of New York, member of the Advisory Council of the National Women's Party, in an address before a meeting of 150 suffragists here today appealed to the suffragists not to lift a finger in aid of the Liberty Loan. She declared she would not work for it, although she had served on the committee of women which toured the country for the first Liberty Loan.

" I haven't the nerve to ask money," she said, " for a battle for democracy when we who demand true democracy are thrown into jails for doing so."

The suffragists present greeted her with applause and most of them declared they were ready to follow her advice.

Mrs. Havemeyer said she had been asked by Frank A. Vanderlip, President of the National City Bank of New York, to take an active part in the women's work for the Liberty Loan, but told him she was ineligible because of the Government's attitude on the suffragist question.

Mrs. Abbey Scott Baker of Washington, an official of the National Women's Party, urged the women to boycott the loan. She said she had three sons in the service of the Government, but that made no difference.

Passengers from Havana and Colon.

CHAMPIONS SPLIT TWIN BILL WITH NEAREST RIVALS IN NATIONAL LEAGUE RACE

GIANTS BEAT PHILS IN TWELFTH INNING

Perritt Has Better of Rixey in Long Pitching Dispute in First Contest.

ALEXANDER WINS SECOND

Quaker Star Registers Thirtieth Victory of Season at Expense of New League Champions.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2.—The Giants broke even in today's double-header with the Phillies, the champions winning the first game, 5 to 2, in twelve innings, and losing the second, 8 to 2. The opening contest found Pol Perritt and Eppa Rixey waging a slab fight, in which the Phillies' big southpaw weakened in the twelfth.

In the second game Grover Cleveland Alexander registered his thirtieth victory of the season. Al Demaree opposed Alexander on the hill at the start, but after pitching four scoreless innings gave way to a pinch-hitter. Rube Benton replaced him and was pounded savagely by the locals.

Only for two unfortunate breaks in favor of the Phillies in the ninth inning the Giants would have won the first game then and there. They scored a run in the fourth on singles by Herzog and Kauff and Zimmerman's sacrifice fly, and in the seventh singles by Zimmerman and Fletcher and a sacrifice fly by Robertson netted another.

In the ninth the situation underwent a rapid change. Schulte opened with a double off the right field wall. Whitted fouled to McCarty and Luderus flied to Kauff. Dugey raised a pop fly back of third base, which either Fletcher or Zimmerman could have caught. Both ran for the ball and then stopped a yard apart. Fletcher finally made a desperate lunge for the ball, but it popped out of his hands, and Schulte scored. Dugey stole second and scored when Evers's bounder popped over Herzog's head and rolled into centre field. Evers died stealing, ending the inning.

Robertson Starts Winning Rally.

A double by Robertson started the Giants on the road to victory in the twelfth. Holke followed with an infield hit to Evers, and when Johny made a wild throw to first, Robertson scored. McCarty hit to Dugey, who made a wild throw to second to force Holke, and both men were safe. Perritt's out advanced Holke and McCarty and Burns's single to right scored both runners.

Evers singled with one out in the Phillies' half of the twelfth and was allowed to steal second without drawing a throw, but he got no further, as Pearce and Adams were easy victims.

The Giant regulars started the second game, but were gradually relieved as the contest progressed, so that Robertson was the only member of the regular infield or outfield still in the game when the ninth inning rolled around.

Alexander pitched a fine game, and though hit hard in spots was never in danger. He had easy sailing after the sixth inning, in which the Phillies scored six runs off Benton on a combination of six hits and two passes.

Young Pitcher Ill.

Adam Swigler, a young pitcher recruited by McGraw from the University of Pennsylvania, was stricken with appendicitis today, and was operated upon. His condition is said to be very grave. Swigler became ill in St. Louis last week, but the exact nature of his complaint could not be determined at that time, and he had apparently recovered.

PRICE OF TICKETS GOING UP.

Chicago Scalpers Ask Fabulous Sums for World's Series Seats.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—With the arrival tonight of the first out-of-town contingent for the World Series, the prices of tickets for the three Chicago games were sent skyward by scalpers, who insist they will be able to supply purchasers who failed to get seats through the regular channels.

Although the reserved seat tickets and the box seats will not be distributed to purchasers until Thursday, scalpers are accepting deposits on orders and are asking $50 for a five-dollar box seat for three games and $35 for stand seats, which sold for $1.50 each. What system the speculators are using in their attempt to obtain tickets is puzzling officials of the Chicago Americans, as all tickets are registered and numbered, and the applicants will be obliged to call personally for their allotments. A Chicagoan who balked at the prices demanded by scalpers inserted an advertisement in a newspaper today offering $30 for two stand seats for the first two games.

Samuel A. Ettelson, Corporation Counsel, joined the fight with President Comiskey of the Chicago Club against scalping. Ettelson will confer with Chief of Police Schuettler tomorrow for the purpose of enlisting the aid of the police.

Purchasers of the 12,000 bleacher and pavilion seats, which will be placed on sale Saturday, will be obliged to pass through a long wire cage entering the park immediately after buying tickets. There will be no turning back. The reason for this is to prevent purchasers [illegible]

PFEFFER IS PEPPERED.

Boston Braves Pound Him Hard and Win from Brooklyn, 6 to 2.

In this flood of talk about the world's series it is perhaps being overlooked by many that the Dodgers, who still flaunt the championship emblem of the National League, and the Braves, former holders of the bunting, are fighting valiantly to decide which shall drop into seventh place. Yesterday's clash, the first of the series which will determine this momentous question, was decided at Ebbets Field, and the Dodgers, with one of those "after you" smiles, tossed the game over to the Boston men with the score 6 to 2, and settled the seventh position argument for the day at any rate.

Pfeffer undertook the task of holding the visitors in check, but the rattle of Boston hits was so persistent in the third inning that five runs were sent across the plate, enough to win the game without more worry. Aside from this fatal lapse Pfeffer did very well. Just a handful of Brooklyn fans saw the homecoming Dodgers go to defeat, and even those few were so nearly frozen with the cold that they couldn't give an encouraging word or a handclap. In the ninth inning Powell, the Boston centre fielder, rapped a circuit drive to the flag pole for a home run, but even that went by with little or no attention.

Benz Pitches Well in Contest Against Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 2.—Chicago defeated Cleveland 8 to 5 today in the first of a series of two games to prepare the American League champions for the world series. Cleveland played listlessly in the field and Chicago's run-getting was made easy. Benz did the best work of the three pitchers used by the White Sox. A rally by Cleveland netted four runs in the ninth.

MISKE DEFEATS WEINERT.

St. Paul Boxer Has Big Margin Over New Jersey Rival.

Carrying the fight to his heavier opponent from the starting bell until the finish, Billy Miske, a St. Paul light-heavyweight, last night gained his second victory over Charlie Weinert, a Newark boxer, at the Broadway Sporting Club of Brooklyn. Starting slowly in the opening round, Miske took the aggressive with the second session, and from then until the finish he carried Weinert before him with a furious offensive which almost earned him a knockout victory.

Electing offensive in the second round, Miske completely surprised Weinert, and before the latter could evolve a style to combat the St. Paul boxer's aggressive Miske had Weinert staggering as a result of a hard left hook to the jaw. The St. Paul boxer, however, in his eagerness was wild and lost whatever chance he had to score a knockout.

RUEL BRINGS HOME YANKS' WINNING RUN

Young Catcher Helps Subdue Athletics as Season's Last Baseball Reel Is Started.

The last reel of the season's baseball movie was started at the Polo Grounds yesterday, when the Yankees trimmed the Athletics by a score of 3 to 2. The big fade-out comes this afternoon when the same talent will perpetrate a double-header. No matter what these two teams do, it will have no effect whatever on any one's peace of mind. They can go as far as they please and no one cares.

The crowd of 500 which sat around with overcoat collars turned up suddenly sat up and began to observe what was going on in the eighth inning when the Yanks started a rally which landed them in front. Up to that time Jingling Johnson had been pitching pretty fair ball and had held Donovan's men to three hits. The Athletics were in the lead by a score of 2 to 1 at this stage of the game and it was taken for granted that the struggle was over.

Sam Vick was the first batter up in the eighth and he poked a single to left. He went to second as Johnson was throwing Fewster out at first, and then Muddy Ruel made his first major league hit, a slamming single to centre, which pushed Vick home and tied the score. Ruel went to second on Strunk's toss home. Johnson whirled about and tried to catch Ruel napping off second and the Yank catcher sneaked to third. Terrible Tim Hendryx was shoved in to bat for King Brady, the Yankee recruit pitcher, and he hoisted a sacrifice fly to Witt in left and Ruel romped home with the winning run.

So King Brady starts his major league career with a victory. He pitched well enough, but his work was marred with passes which he issued most inopportunely. In the third inning Witt walked and went to second on Strunk's out at first. Wallie Schang, the catcher, who is now playing third base, punched a hit to right and sent Witt home.

The Yanks tied the score in their portion of the same round. Fewster singled to right and Ruel popped a foul fly to McAvoy and Brady popped one to Stuffy McInnis. Miller then smashed a hot grounder down the third base line, which Schang gobbled up and then made a strong-arm toss over McInnis's head. While the ball was taking its merry flight Fewster scored.

Sam Vick couldn't restrain an impulse to throw the ball around in the sixth inning, when with two gone McAvoy singled to right. Vick fielded the ball and wanted to make a smart play by throwing the runner out at first. The ball sailed over Pipp's head and McAvoy went to second.

Both clubs tried out a number of their recruits but no wonders were unearthed. Two years ago when Connie Mack had his general house cleaning, he announced that in a couple of seasons he would have another great team like the famous Athletics of 1911, but one season has gone by already and the Athletics yesterday appeared as if they had a record-breaking journey before they arrive at the standard set by the old world's champions.

RED SOX IN EVEN BREAK.

Divide Spoils of Double-Header, Losing to Senators and Then Winning.

BOSTON, Oct. 2.—Boston and Washington divided their double-header in the opening games of the final series of this season today. Washington won the first game 9 to 7 in ten innings by hitting Leonard freely.

In the second game Ayers and Mays, who are after bonus money, were the pitchers, and Boston won, 2 to 1. The game was called in the eighth inning on account of darkness. It was Bat and Ball Fund Day, and Manager Griffith of the Washington Club presented the several camps of the Department of the Northeast with baseball paraphernalia.

Killed in Football Practice.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 2.—The first fatality of the football season occurred here today when Francis Burns was killed during a practice game between teams made up of members of the Rindge Technical High School football squad. Burn's neck was broken when he tackled a player who was running back a punt.

FANS TO AID LIBERTY LOAN.

New Bond Issue to be on Sale at World's Series Games.

"Baseball Fans' Liberty Loan Day is scheduled for Oct. 9, the day of the opening world series game between the Giants and the Chicago White Sox in this city.

In order that the first championship contest here may not overshadow the $3,000,000,000 loan drive, Harry N. Hempstead, owner of the Giants, is making special efforts to gain the active support of every lover of the national game. He has promised the second Liberty Loan Committee that the Polo Grounds will be covered with banners to bring home forcefully the message of the loan to the 40,000 fans who are expected to jam their way into the big inclosure.

The players will have plenty of incentive to increase their batting averages by several prizes of $50 bonds which have been offered for the first home run.

The Giants were the first ball players to take up a part of the first loan, and several members of the team intend to invest in the new issue. Mr. Hempstead will also buy a liberal share of the certificates.

There will be several members of the Loan Committee present at the first game to receive subscriptions and answer questions of prospective investors.

COLUMBIA'S ELEVEN CHOSEN

Seven of Last Season's Players the Basis of 'Varsity Team.

Coach Metcalf has selected a tentative first team from the Columbia squad, which includes in addition to the four regulars of last year, Miller, Cochran, McCabe and Rosen, the three men on last year's freshman team who have returned. These are Healy, Eisfelder and Weinstein.

In the two practices of the week so far two divisions have been made, the backfield candidates in one and the ends in the other, as separated from the rest of the candidates. The ends have been given special training in tackling and the backs in running with the ball and bucking the line. The entire squad has been tried out daily in forward passes, tackling practice and work on the charging machines.

Captain Dal Cochran has shown up well in punting, his kicks traveling long distances and carrying up well in the wind. He and the other regulars have assisted in the coaching. From now on Tom Thorp will help Coach Metcalf as assistant.

FORDHAM LEARNS NEW PLAYS

Coaches Try Out Formations for Allentown Game Friday.

A long signal drill, in which several new formations for Friday's game with the Allentown ambulance eleven were practiced, occupied Fordham football players yesterday. A short dummy scrimmage was held to polish off the plays. Gulick got a trial at tackle as did Abbott at centre and Halligan at half-back. McDonough, a big tackle, and Halligan returned to the squad after a short absence.

A number of plays involving the forward pass were worked on. Fordham used only one pass last Saturday and that was intercepted. Coach McCaffery is still driving at the line. If the forwards can hold up under opposition the fast Maroon backs should be able to make good gains.

YALE PLANS DEVELOP.

Indications Are That Athletics Will Be More General.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 2.—Athletic plans at Yale are slowly taking form, with a chance for a more general participation by the student body as a whole than in any previous year. Instead of a university crew it has been decided to have four crews made up of the most available material from the three upper classes. These crews will row every other day and will be trained by Professor Abbott as Coach Nickalls will not return from Europe to instruct the oarsmen. No outside races are planned for the crews though there will be both Fall and Spring regattas.

A regular freshman crew will be picked from the best material, which will have races against Harvard, Cornell and Pennsylvania crews. Five or six university crew men who are back will assist in the coaching of both the freshmen and the four upper class eights.

As most of the men who answered the call for football last Saturday were freshmen, the athletic managers have asked the men of the upper classes to turn out for practice at football, with the intention of forming an eleven which will play informal games with outside teams if a fair squad to represent the university can be got together. Three days a week have been set aside for athletics, and students have been urged to come out for football as a military training asset, on which particular stress will be laid during the Fall term.

Concannon Still in Lead.

BUFFALO, Oct. 2.—Joseph Concannon of New York, challenger, continued to lead Frank Taberski of Schenectady, pocket billiard champion, in the second night of their 450-ball match for the championship. Concannon pocketed 150 balls tonight while Taberski was scoring 141, making the score for the night's play, Concannon, 300; Taberski, 173.

TOWN HALL LEADS FIELD OF JUMPERS

W. R. Coe's Youngster Outfoots Other Harbor Hill Candidates in Aqueduct Event.

Three-year-old jumpers, all candidates for the Harbor Hill Cup to be competed for Saturday at Piping Rock, provided the principal attraction at Aqueduct yesterday, and the regular racegoers were augmented by a large contingent of amateur sportsmen. The race over the two-mile course brought out ten starters, and though nearly all of the field performed cleverly the preliminary contest served to demonstrate the superiority of W. R. Coe's Town Hall, the only jumper of his age to gain winning brackets this season. Town Hall fenced well and was in hand all the way. Med Henderson, who rode him, appeared content with a length's advantage over J. E. Davis's Melodrama at the finish.

The surprising part of the exhibition was that not one of the young steeplechasers fell. Two were pulled up when the pace began to tell, but not one blundered seriously, a remarkable state of affairs considering that many of the competitors were making their first attempt through the field. Commodore Gaunt, which was one of those that failed to finish, was full of running at the start and set the pace in the diagonal run across the infield. He gave way to Russian Pinion, which showed the way to Sir Richard, Melodrama, and Town Hall for the greater part of the first lap.

Commencing the last turn Melodrama and Town Hall raced up to Russian Pinion, but it was not until the far turn that Melodrama took the lead. All through the race Henderson was going wide with Town Hall to keep him out of possible trouble in case any of the novice fencers fell, but with the issue narrowed down to three horses Town Hall was sent alongside Melodrama. Nicklaus drove Melodrama for all he was worth, while Henderson watched his nearest rival and kept Town Hall in hand. The pair took the last obstacle almost together, but once on the flat Town Hall drew away to win by a length.

In the final half mile the leading pair had drawn twenty lengths away from Russian Pinion. Crack o' Day and Sir Richard followed closely, the latter particularly being worthy of praise as it was his first outing over the jumps.

In the flat races the contestants ran closer to form than on any previous day of the meeting. Four favorites and two well-played second choices won. In the stake feature, the Sunnybrook Selling at a mile, Clarence Buxton's Sasin closed an odds-on choice, but a strong play on Harry Shaw enabled the supporter of the favorite to obtain even money early in the speculation. For more than half the distance it looked as if Harry Shaw might win as he raced in the lead with Harvest King, while Sasin was a distant trailer. Once in the stretch Sasin began to run in earnest and caught the field so quickly that he was in the lead at the eighth pole, continuing his great flight of speed to win by eight lengths. Brooklyn came from behind to challenge Harry Shaw for the place, but Harry finished gamely and earned the decision by a head.

The fifth race at a mile and a sixteenth brought out four good performers with F. D. Weir's Hendrie the top weight in the handicap. Hendrie was a strong favorite, but he never could shake off J. E. Widener's Chiclet. The pair raced close together well into the stretch where Keogh on Chiclet stole a march on Peak and obtained a lead of a length and a half. He kept this advantage until the last fifty yards when Peake woke up and nearly turned the tables with a Garrison finish that landed Hendrie only a nose behind Chiclet at the line.

THE REAL LADY WINS.

Captures Blue Ribbon of Trotting Turf in Straight Heats.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 2.—The Real Lady, driven by Murphy, won the $14,000 Kentucky Futurity, the "blue ribbon" of the trotting turf, in convincing style here today. Miss Bertha Dillon, the world's champion three-year-old filly, was a heavy favorite for the race, but was distanced in the second heat. In the third heat, The Real Lady reduced her record of 2:04¼ to 2:03¾, which is also the fastest third heat for a three-year-old filly and within a quarter of a second of the stake record.

The first heat was the closest of the meeting, in which the judges' eyes caught The Real Lady first a nose ahead of Miss Bertha Dillon.

Whitney Crack Fails to Carry Weight in Laurel Race.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 2.—Harry Payne Whitney's Borrow, which has not won a race since his memorable victory in the Brooklyn Handicap, met with defeat again today in the Oakwood Handicap. The distance of a mile was scarcely suited to the Whitney crack, and, though Loftus had him going great guns in the stretch, he failed to reach Grant Hugh Browne's Ed Cudihee, which was in receipt of twenty-two pounds from Borrow. Haynes, who rode Ed Cudihee, scored another victory in the last race with Wilfrid Viau's Airman.

Edward B. McLean's Japhet defeated more fancied candidates in the first race, for two-year-olds, and there was another surprise in the sixth race, when a strong finish by Jimmy Butwell landed C. F. Brant's Fairly a winner over Ella Ryan, another outsider. This was the second winner for Butwell, as he had previously scored easily with the Cleveland Stable's Dorcas.

OUIMET DEFEATS BRADY.

Wins Golf Match Announced as His Last Before Entering Army.

BELMONT, Mass., Oct. 2.—Francis Ouimet, Western amateur golf champion, defeated M. J. Brady, Massachusetts open champion, 5 up and 4 to play, in a thirty-six-hole match for the benefit of the American Red Cross, on the links of the Belmont Springs County Club today. It was announced as Ouimet's last match before he enters the national army.

Williams Is Wesleyan Captain.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Oct. 2.—The Wesleyan track team has elected Lawrence E. Williams of Geneva, N. Y., Captain for next Spring. Williams is a senior and has won his "W" in track each year he has been in college.

MISS WAGNER WINS IN STRAIGHT SETS

Teamed with Miss Moore, She Also Wins in Doubles at Women's Tennis Tourney.

Play in the women's open tennis tournament at the New York Lawn Tennis Club advanced to the semi-final round of the singles event as a result of yesterday's competition, and the doubles event progressed through the second round. In the singles the survivors are Miss Marie Wagner, national indoor champion; Miss Bessie Holden, Miss Helene Pollak, and Mrs. Samuel Waring. The first three of these won their brackets yesterday, while Mrs. Waring took her place as a result of her victories on Monday.

For the most part the winners earned their places yesterday without experiencing very spirited opposition, straight sets prevailing in every instance. Miss Wagner's deep driving and careful placing game was far too strong for Mrs. Percy Wilbourn to combat with success, and the indoor champion romped away with the match at 6—2, 6—2. Miss Holden and Miss Caroma Winn had a bit more spirited contest, Miss Holden winning at 6—4, 6—3. Miss Pollak disposed of Mrs. Ingo Hartman in a 6—2, 6—4 contest.

Five doubles matches were played. Miss Bessie Moore, former holder of the national singles title, was teamed with Miss Wagner, and these two won their first-round encounter against Miss Florence Crane and Miss Ethel MacArthur without being at all pressed to earn the decision. The score was 6—3, 6—0.

The summaries:

SINGLES.—First Round—Mrs. F. J. Strauss won from Mrs. C. C. Parsons by default. Second Round—Miss Marie Wagner defeated Mrs. Edward Lynch, 6—1, 6—2; Miss Caroma Winn defeated Mrs. F. J. Strauss, 6—3, 6—1. Third Round—Miss Marie Wagner defeated Mrs. Percy Wilbourn, 6—2, 6—2; Miss Bessie Holden defeated Miss Caroma Winn, 6—4, 6—3; Miss Helene Pollak defeated Mrs. Ingo Hartman, 6—2, 6—4.

DOUBLES.—First Round—Mrs. W. H. Pritchard and Mrs. F. C. Conklin defeated Mrs. L. Z. Murray and Mrs. W. H. Damrau, 6—1, 6—2; Miss Bessie Moore and Miss Marie Wagner defeated Miss Florence Crane and Miss Ethel MacArthur, 6—3, 6—0; Mrs. Albert Humphries and Miss Bessie Holden defeated Mrs. S. Waring and Mrs. Embree Henderson, 6—1, 6—4. Second Round—Miss Helen Bernhard and Miss Helene Pollak defeated Miss E. Sidenberg and Miss T. Blum, 6—2, 6—2; Mrs. Albert Stearns and Miss Ethel Bagg defeated Miss Marion Iler and Miss E. Kahn, 6—2, 6—1.

WOMEN REACH TENNIS FINAL

Miss White to Meet Mrs. Le Roy in West Side Match.

The women's championship at the West Side Tennis Club has narrowed down to a contest between Mrs. Robert Le Roy and Miss Edith White. These two players came through the semi-final round yesterday, the former by defeating Mrs. Theodore Cassebeer in a spirited three-set match, at 6—3, 4—6, 6—0, while Miss White defeated Mrs. De Forest Candee at 6—3, 6—8, 6—1, and thereby caused something of a surprise.

This match was sturdily fought during the first two sets, with brilliant rallies frequently interpolated. Miss White, after having been forced to relinquish the second set, rallied her strongest game to her command and won decisively.

The summaries:

Women's Championship Singles.—Semi-final Round—Mrs. Robert Le Roy defeated Mrs. Theodore C. Cassebeer, 6—3, 4—6, 6—0; Miss Edith White defeated Mrs. De Forest Candee, 6—3, 6—8, 6—1.

NEW EXPORT RULES GIVEN TO SHIPPERS

Director Richards of Federal Bureau of Licenses Explains Foreign Trade Measures.

AIM TO AID WAR'S WORK

2,000 Representative Bankers, Railroad and Steamship Men Attend Meeting and Get Information.

Nearly 2,000 representative bankers, shippers, railroad and steamship men gathered yesterday in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Astor to listen to an address by C. A. Richards, Director of the Federal Bureau of Export Licenses, who came to New York upon invitation of the Merchants Association to explain to merchants interested in foreign trade the procedure to be followed in procuring licenses. At the close of the address, the meeting resolved itself into a forum in which business men on the floor and in the galleries opened a rapid fire of questions designed to meet individual export license requirements.

So many were the queries propounded for the Government's representative to answer that at the expiration of two hours S. Christy Mead, Secretary of the Merchants Association, who presided, announced that further questioning of Mr. Richards would have to be deferred.

Mr. Richards emphasized that it was the intention of the Exports Administrative Council and the Licensing Board to be as liberal as possible in the granting of licenses. At the same time he reminded his hearers that the licensing regulation was a war measure and must be regarded in that spirit by loyal American exporters. The Director was unable to give assurances that delays in granting permits would not occur, and as an explanation told of the various departments of the Government at Washington which had to be consulted before the board was in a position to act upon a given application.

Mr. Richards set at rest rumors existing in local exporting circles that shipments of steel plates, upon which an embargo was placed, would be allowed to be sent to Japan. Licenses for steel plates and other material required for foreign shipbuilding, the Director said, would be granted only in exceptional cases. The same thing applied to tin. So-called British letters of assurance, the speaker said, would soon be a thing of the past. His statement that the powers of the New York Exports Licensing Bureau, which had been somewhat limited, would be enlarged from time to time evoked applause.

"You gentlemen," said Mr. Richards, "must keep in mind the fact that this entire business is a war measure. It is a war measure which has to consider three things in particular—conservation, consignor, and consignee. As an example of the first, I might instance the case of steel plates. Every one knows that through sinkings by submarines the tonnage of the world is short, and this country may need all the plates that can be rolled to enable the shipyards to produce steamers faster than the submarines can sink them, and to provide necessary transportation for our troops and for supplies to maintain them abroad. It is obvious, therefore, that licenses for shipments of plates would only be granted under very exceptional circumstances, if at all."

With reference to the treatment to be accorded tin plate during the period of the war Mr. Richards said:

"Tin plate, for example, which is on the conservation list, is being very carefully watched—first, because it is difficult to procure tin abroad; secondly, because we must conserve the tin plate manufactured in this country, to be sure that it is used for purposes which will directly or indirectly contribute to the success of the war. Applications for tin plate are therefore submitted to the special scrutiny not only of our own expert but to the Tin Plate Conservation Committee, which consists of representatives of various Government departments which are particularly interested in this product. Exporters would do wisely not to make sales for goods on the conservation list unless they first receive a license."

The Question of Coal and Fodder.

Mr. Richards next discussed the extent to which the American Government should permit fodder, sulphuric acid and other articles to be exported when they were to be put to uses which only indirectly contributed to the success of the war. It was a problem, he said, for the Exports Administrative Council to decide. He cited another example. If the board should decide that this Government did not wish fodder to go to a European neutral to feed cattle likely to be used by the enemy, to what extent should it grant bunker coal to a vessel flying the flag of its country which came here to take a cargo of general merchandise to South America, with the intention on arrival there of taking the same goods which she could not obtain here back to her own country?

"Every one knows we need all the coal we can produce," the Director said, "and we all know that no one desires to injure our trade with South America, but shall we permit neutral nations of Europe to have the privilege of buying the coal which we need so much here, in order to circumvent our refusals for fodder, even when by refusing these bunker licenses we may indirectly work a hardship on American trade?"

Mr. Richards discussed the rules to govern shipments of lumber, and called attention to the ruling whereby small quantities of food grains, flour, butter, and sugar destined for Canada, Newfoundland, and Mexico may be licensed by the indorsement of the Collector of Customs at the point of exit on the shipper's export declaration. If these concessions are abused, the Director warned, they will be withdrawn.

On the question of British letters of assurance, Mr. Richards said it was merely a waste of time for shippers to apply to the British Government for such letters. Possession of a British letter of assurance was not to be taken "as any indication that a license may be granted." Mr. Richards emphasized that, in order to facilitate the movement of troops, their supplies, and equipment to France, it was necessary for all exporters to do everything in their power to prevent any congestion on the railroads by deferring shipments to seaboard until they had first obtained their export licenses, and then by endeavoring to have ocean freighting arrangements made before the shipment leaves the interior, so as to secure prompt exportation of the goods upon their arrival at seaboard.

Make the World Safe for Business

This war is not only a war to make the world safe for democracy. It is a war to make the world safe for life and liberty. And it is a war to make the world safe for business. This world is not big enough for both business and war. One of them must go.

If more wars are going to come, if every nation is going to be turned into a vast armed camp; if we have to see bayonets on every street corner and guns on every merchant ship; if we must tax our people and our commerce to support a vast army and an immense navy and be prepared to throw the whole power of the nation into the battle line at 24 hours' notice--then business, as we in America understand it, cannot continue to exist. The burden will be too great.

If business is to prosper and legitimate commerce to continue unchecked and free from the blight of warfare, then war must end. Militarism and business cannot exist side by side.

This is more than a war for democracy, liberty, life, and business. It is a war to end war.

The only way this war can be ended with a peace that shall endure, is in victory for the United States and our allies.

To be victorious, the Second Liberty Loan of 1917 must be promptly and fully subscribed.

Every dollar you put into these bonds is a dollar subscribed to end war and provide the basis for an enduring peace.

The bonds are the best investment in the market—a direct obligation of the United States Government, bearing 4% interest, maturing in 25 years, free from the normal federal income tax and from local personal property taxes, readily marketable and readily available as collateral.

It is to your own best interests to go to your bank and subscribe—to-day.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Sag Lower of Their Own Weight—Rails Go to New Low Levels.

The stock market continues to sag, and not even the announcement of the formation of a money pool with a fund of more than $200,000,000 to be used in stabilizing rates served to dispel the depression that has settled again upon financial circles. Yesterday's decline was more pronounced in the railroads than on the other side of the list, but some of the industrials plainly reflected liquidation induced by the growing feeling of uneasiness engendered by the new war revenue measure.

Weakness in St. Paul was pronounced again yesterday, despite the long period of declines through which the company's shares have been passing. The common stock made a new low record at 50, closing at 51 with a net loss of 2 points, while the preferred dropped off 2½. Baltimore & Ohio went to 59¼, closing at 60½, off 1⅞; Norfolk & Western sold at 107⅞ and closed off 1, and Wisconsin Central declined 3¼. The weakness in the rails has not been due to any recent development, but represents the growing feeling of discouragement over the outlook for any upturn in their net revenues. There is a limit to the economies which the transportation companies can effect to stem the inroads of advancing costs, and there is little prospect of early relief of the only kind possible through a reopening of the rate question. The New England lines are going back to the commission with a plea for permission to advance interstate passenger fares, but with materials, coal, and labor rising at an unprecedented rate the small measure of help given in the recent advance has been more than offset before the new schedules have begun to show results. The situation is unpleasant for security holders, but it manifestly cannot go forever without being remedied, and the promise of the Interstate Commerce Commision to keep a close watch on the course of earnings must sooner or later bring about a reconsideration of the whole question of adequacy of rates established in normal times to cover abnormal operating expenses.

The excess profits section of the new War Revenue bill as it passed the House has so far baffled most of the experts who have been trying to apply it to concrete instances. There is a consensus of opinion that the measure is crudely framed and full of inequalities, but it begins to look as though Congress would enact it into law with little regard for the complaints that are being registered. The underlying feeling of depression that has found expression through the stock market has been due to fears that the law will seriously encroach upon the margin of earnings over and above fixed charges of many corporations.

The work of placing the new Liberty bonds is going ahead with gratifying results. The committees which are at work in the several reserve districts have made much better progress to date than was made in the initial campaign, largely because of the utilization of machinery provided to handle the $2,000,000,000 issue. Money loaned yesterday at 5 per cent. for renewals, with some offerings at 3 per cent. later in the day.

LONDON MARKET IMPROVES.

War Bond Prospectus Well Received on the Stock Exchange.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—The prospectus of the new war bonds was well received, and it is believed the issue will be supported liberally, as the terms are attractive. Business on the Stock Exchange was interrupted by air raid gossip, but the tone of the markets was good. There was an upward tendency in Argentine rails and a fair demand for gilt-edged securities. Grand Trunk shares were weak on the passing of the dividend. Speculative rubbers were easier. Russians weakened owing to the uncertain situation.

Money was in better supply. Discounts were steady.

Trading Quiet on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, Oct. 2.—Trading was quiet on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 60 francs 20 centimes for cash. Exchange on London, 27 francs 18 centimes. Five per cent. loan, 88 francs 30 centimes.

Payment in Milliken Dissolution.

Milliken Brothers, the old Staten Island steel fabricating company, is in process of dissolution. The plant and uncompleted contracts were turned over last July to Wallace Downey, who has organized the Downey Shipbuilding Company on the Milliken site on the Kill von Kull. Holders of the preferred stock will receive $10 per share on Oct. 25 and a second payment is expected within sixty days. A substantial amount of assets still remain to be disposed of.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

"Money Pool" Helps.

Announcement of the formation of a "money pool," with $200,000,000 immediately available, had a salutary effect on the money market yesterday. Rates for call loans eased off, most transactions being put through at 5, compared with 6 per cent. on Monday. It is understood that the banks intend making free use of the rediscounting facilities of the Federal Reserve Bank, and it was said yesterday that the banks had more eligible commercial paper on hand than was generally supposed, the campaign of education designed to have business men issue paper maturing in not more than ninety days having proved effective. In addition to commercial paper, the banks may borrow from the Reserve Bank on their own note, secured by United States Treasury certificates of indebtedness.

Last Day for Certificates.

Today is the last day that banks and individuals desiring to subscribe to the latest issue of $400,000,000 of 4 per cent. certificates of indebtedness offered by Secretary McAdoo on Sept. 24 may make their payments to the Federal Reserve Banks. Some institutions have already made investments, while others have been holding off until the last day. It is not necessary for a bank subscriber to forward a check or currency, but it may effect the payment by notifying the Reserve Bank that it has made a transfer credit on its books, retaining its subscription as a Government deposit.

Sale of British Treasury Bills.

J. P. Morgan & Co. announced yesterday that the rate for the $15,000,000 of British Treasury ninety-day bills, offered this week, had been fixed at 5½ per cent., the same as during the last two previous weeks. Payments for subscriptions to the issue will be made tomorrow. The bills mature on Jan. 2. The bankers are not pushing the sale of the British Treasury bills, and are not offering more than $15,000,000 any one week. Those who desire to make investments are supplied, but special pains are taken to avoid the possibility of the British bills hurting the sale of United States 4 per cent. Treasury certificates of indebtedness. The two issues are quite different in character.

A Discouraged Party.

The bull party in stocks has reached the stage where it is merely hoping against hope. Yesterday's decline caused particular discouragement in some quarters where it had been thought the news of the Money Committee's definite steps to safeguard the money market would promote a better feeling for stocks. The liquidation of railroad shares proceeded at a rapid rate, particularly in St. Paul, New York Central and Baltimore & Ohio, and the late recoveries failed to stimulate sentiment in their favor. Readjustment processes in the rails have been evident for a long time, and signs have been lacking so far this week that they were passing through the final stage.

A Poor Cotton Crop.

It has been a long time since the cotton market has been so unpleasantly surprised by a Government crop report as it was yesterday. As a rule, the last condition report of the year is fairly accurately discounted by the various private estimates which are published a few days before it, and although the day the Government report is published sees considerable fluctuation due to adjustment, its effect on the ultimate status of the market is not often considerable. Yesterday's report, however, was more than 2 per cent. below even bullish expectations, and such a surprise, indeed, that it took an hour or so really to sink in. Then the market began to move rapidly.

Anaconda's Production Cut.

The Anaconda Copper Mining Company reports a production of 2,800,000 pounds in September, a decline of 75 per cent. from the output in August. This is a startling showing, but the seriousness of the situation is lessened by news that the miners are gradually returning to work. In September last year the company turned out 29,400,000 pounds, and last May, before strike troubles appeared, the output was 28,400,000. The biggest month this year was March, with 31,300,000 pounds. As all the companies affected by the strike suffered a heavy decline in production in July, August and September, the shortage of supplies of refined metal bids fair to be emphasized in the last two months of the year.

The Ship Chartering Committee.

Welding Ring, Chairman of the Chartering Committee of the United States Shipping Board, yesterday obtained at least temporary office-room in the Customs House, and set to work with J. B. Smull, the third member of his committee, getting ready for duty. Both Mr. Ring and Mr. Smull, apparently, have not abandoned hope of persuading Daniel Bacon of the West India Steamship Company, to reconsider his refusal to act as second member of the committee. The general sentiment in shipping circles was in accord with them in this. The good impression made by Mr. Ring's appointment has been strengthened by the names of his associates. Practically every shipping man yesterday declared that the committee, with Mr. Ring, Mr. Bacon and Mr. Smull, was as strong as any the Shipping Board could have picked, and would command the entire confidence of the industry, and that it would be a great pity if Mr. Bacon could not see his way, in spite of his duties on the Board of Appraisal of the Navy Department, to remain on the committee, if only for the strength which his name would give it.

Herbert C. Hoover's Double.

Jacob B. Smull, of James H. Winchester & Co., newly-appointed third member of the Shipping Board Chartering Committee, is the dead image, unless Mr. Hoover's pictures belie him, of Herbert C. Hoover, United States Food Administrator. Mr. Smull has had to endure considerable good-natured joking from his friends on the resemblance, but now that he, like Mr. Hoover, is in the Government service, they are declaring the resemblance goes deeper than the skin. One highly valuable quality Mr. Smull shares with Mr. Hoover—both men are reported to be gluttons for work.

Slack Business in Copper.

Inquiries in the copper market show that little, if any, business in substantial amounts has been done at the fixed price of 23½ cents a pound. Under the agreement with the Government, the producers are obligated to sell their supplies at this quotation, and as their output is subject first to Federal demands, they are not desirous of entering into contracts with private consumers until the extent of probable Federal consumption for the next three months is known. There are plenty of bids in the market at 23½ cents, with offerings coming from "second hands" at prices ranging from 26 to 27 cents. There are said to be only meagre supplies of the metal available at the higher levels, as consumption has kept closely abreast of production of marketable copper from all sources for many months.

Government Steel Costs.

The Federal Trade Commission's examination into production and prices in the steel industry brought forth the estimate of about 43,000,000 tons of ingots as the country's probable output this year. From this tonnage slightly more than 32,000,000 tons of rolled products would be turned out. The Government's steel experts have figured that the steel already ordered in war preparations and for the shipping program aggregates approximately 6,000,000 tons of rolled material, and it is expected that fully 1,000,000 tons more will be asked for in the near future. The prices recently established show that a fair average for the major items sought by the Government will be 3 cents a pound, indicating a total outlay of $400,000,000 and more for the steel thus far ordered. The figures indicate that producers may count upon the Government taking around 20 per cent. of the nation's output in the twelve months begun July 1, provided the mills continue to operate on the current basis. Of plates the percentage is likely to be much higher. On top of this comes the orders for the allied Governments, whose total may not yet be estimated.

How Will the Cost of the War Be Met?

The colossal sums required to carry on the war must be paid by the people. The Government has no other source from which to secure the money.

There are two ways by which the Government can get this money from the people. One is by taxation; the other is by the sale of bonds.

When you are taxed, your money is gone. You never see it again. When you buy a Government bond you get all your money back, and interest besides.

So, you see, it is much more to your interest to buy Liberty Bonds than it is to be taxed.

But there is another reason why you should buy Liberty Bonds--a bigger, better reason -a more unselfish and patriotic reason.

You love your country. You know it is the finest country in the world to live in. You love your country's flag. It is the symbol of liberty, justice and equality. It protects your life and your property.

Hundreds of thousands of your fellow Americans are going abroad to fight for your country and your flag.

They are ready to lay down their lives, if need be, to make sure that no invader's foot shall desecrate American ground; that your family, your home, your property, your liberty, are not destroyed or violated.

These gallant young Americans must have food, clothing, arms and ammunition, Otherwise they are lost, and the war is lost.

That is the purpose to which the money you pay for Liberty Bonds will be put. That is the reason why you should buy Liberty Bonds.

Do it now. Buy all you can.

An Ideal Investment for Your Funds

As a matter of sound business judgment and foresight, every corporation, partnership, and firm, should invest a goodly portion of its surplus in the Second Liberty Loan of 1917.

1. Their absolute safety.
2. Their quick marketability.
3. Their immediate availability as collateral.
4. Their stability in value.
5. Their attractive interest rate.
6. Their freedom from local personal property taxes.

We suggest to American corporations, partnerships, and firms of all kinds and characters, that they immediately invest such a portion of their surplus in Liberty Bonds as may be advisable, and make further purchases as additional sums are set aside for surplus.

Moreover, every American business man must remember that this is a war to make the world safe for business, as well as safe for democracy. It is a war to end war.

Unless we are victorious and achieve a just and permanent peace, we must look forward to an age of militarism and of renewed warfare, and a colossal burden of taxation. To do your part in averting these evils, subscribe to the Second Liberty Loan and help toward victory and lasting peace.

A subscription to the Second Liberty Loan is a patriotic act and an act of good business judgment.

Your bank will handle the details of your subscription and aid you with its advice.

WEATHER CONDITIONS BAD

Storms, Boll Worms, and Weevils and a Lack of Potash Figured in the Deterioration.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Deterioration during September over almost the entire cotton belt caused a loss of 452,000 bales in the prospective production of cotton and left the 1917 crop at 12,047,000 equivalent 500-pound bales. The Department of Agriculture in its final condition report of the season, today announced a decline of 7.4 points in cotton's condition during the month, caused principally by boll worms and weevils. Cool weather, drought, shedding, wilt, blight, lack of potash in fertilizer and in the extreme Eastern belt, storm damage, also caused loss.

Picking of cotton was general and was being pushed except in the northern part of the belt, the department reported. There is complaint of a scarcity of pickers in many districts.

A final estimate of production will be made in December.

Virginia 69, North Carolina 63, South Carolina 67, Georgia 62, Florida 61, Alabama 55, Mississippi 63, Louisiana 69, Texas 53, Arkansas 68, Tennessee 65, Missouri 76, Oklahoma 62, California 80, Arizona 87

The production, forecast from conditions on Sept. 25 and allowing 1 per cent. from the planted acreage for abandonment, compares with a forecast of 12,499,000 bales made on the Aug. 25 condition; 11,949,000 bales, made on the July 25 condition, and 11,633,000 bales, made on the June 25 condition. The area planted this year was 34,600,000 acres.

Last year's production was 11,449,930 bales on an area of 35,239,000 acres, and a final condition of 56.3 per cent. of a normal; the 1915 production was 11,192,000 bales on an area of 31,412,000 acres and a final condition of 60.8 per cent. of a normal, and the 1914 production was 16,135,000 bales (the record crop) on an area of 36,332,000 acres with a final condition of 73.5 per cent. of a normal. The ten-year average of condition on Sept. 25 is 65.7 per cent. of a normal, and the ten-year average change in condition from Aug. 25 to Sept. 25 is 5.2 points.

The Census Bureau's second cotton ginning report of the season, announcing the amount of cotton ginned from the growth of 1917, prior to Sept. 25, compares with 4,081,989 bales, counting round as half bales, ginned prior to that date last year, and 2,903,829 bales in 1915. Sea Island cotton included in last year's ginning amounted to 31,261 bales and in 1915 they were 19,091.

Corrected statistics for the quantity ginned prior to Sept. 1 were announced today as 615,597 bales. Ginnings by States were as follows: Alabama, 94,857; Arizona, 35; Arkansas, 48,343; California, 1,515; Florida, 13,752; Georgia, 581,288; Louisiana, 153,145; Mississippi, 115,499; Missouri, 225; North Carolina, 28,614; Oklahoma, 47,678; South Carolina, 233,930; Tennessee, 35; Texas, 1,179,406; Virginia, 1; all other States, 8.

PIERRE JAY REPORTS BUSINESS GOOD HERE

Enormous Buying By the Government Is Felt in Most Staple Lines.

Pierre Jay, Chairman of the Board of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, in his monthly review of business conditions in this Federal Reserve district, finds the general situation good, with chief emphasis continuing upon the enormous buying of the Government, whose influence is predominant in most staple lines.

"Conservatism in buying continues and has had desirable effects," the report says, "notable among them being a pause in the upward movement of commodity prices and the maintenance of generally satisfactory collections. The general report is that payments are being made with a promptness gratifying in view of increased investments necessary to carry on business under present conditions, and of the firm money rates. The volume of business, including Government orders, as measured in dollars, is above that of recent months and of last year. Certain industries which experienced depression report distinct revival of business, the automobile industry being a notable example.

"Manufacturers of machinery are busy principally on orders for the Government or for machinery to be used on Government work, and have their output engaged for some months ahead. Little new business is coming in, however, as deliveries to purchasers other than the Government are subject to delay. A similar condition obtains in the iron and steel industries."

The copper price fixed by the Government, it is remarked, is expected to have good effects. In the rubber tire industry the price of cotton, instead of the price of rubber, now governs, and is so high as to have forced price advances on the finished tires. The building industry in the city is light, but building supplies are in demand, notably materials for rapid construction work.

The Food Administration, Mr. Jay finds, is generally expected to bring about lower prices of flour and sugar, and the Government buying methods have been carefully designed to disturb the market as little as possible. The clothing trades are in general experiencing higher prices but no relatively great change in volume of business done. The Government's demand for shoes is placed at 2 per cent. of the total demand, and is offset somewhat by decreases in other demand. The consumption of luxuries, however, shows no decrease under war conditions.

Rail transportation conditions have shown some improvement. Ocean rates seem to have reached top notch, and owing to delays in getting cargo, both because of embargo restrictions and delayed arrivals, steamship lines are having more difficulty in completing their cargoes on time, with the result that space is offered more frequently at cut rates for filling up. Reports from banks and business houses indicate that the demand for money during the coming months will be heavy.

FORM NEW CARBIDE CONCERN

Company to Have Capital of 3,000,000 Shares Without Stated Value.

The Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation has been organized under laws of this State with a capital of 3,000,000 shares without stated par value. The new organization proposes to absorb the Union Carbide Company, the National Carbon Company, the Prest-O-lite Company, and the Linde Air Products Company.

Stockowners of the Union Carbide Company are offered two and one-half shares of the corporation for each share of their present holdings, while two shares of new stock will be given for each Prest-O-lite share, and three and one-quarter shares for each Linde Air Products share. Myron T. Herrick is to be Chairman of the corporation's Board of Directors and George O. Knapp, President of the Union Carbide Company, is to be President. The Directorate, beside these officers, will consist of C. K. G Billings, Charles A. Coffin, Jesse J. Ricks, Andrew Squire, Nicholas F. Brady, G. W. Davison, Conrad Hubert, James Parmelee, Roger C. Sullivan, F. C. Walcott, and James N. Wallace.

The companies to be united in the corporation are large producers of carbon, oxygen, and acetylene products. The Union Carbide Company has $12,600,000 preferred and common stock, the National Carbon Company $5,600,000 preferred and about 1,000,000 shares of common without par value, and the Prest-O-lite Company 100,000 nonpar shares.

THE COTTON MARKET

Prices Advance from 103 to 114 Points on Poor Government Crop Report.

A surprisingly poor Government crop report yesterday and a proportionately low ginning report sent the entire list up more than a cent a pound on the cotton market yesterday, and although the highest figures reached were not sustained under late realizing, the closing bell found the market barely steady, with symptoms of further advances liberally manifesting themselves. Cotton is now selling on an average of between 5 and 6 cents a pound higher than its price of only a month ago, and several months passed the 25-cent level at the top of the market.

December contracts, which were nearest the average of the market, sold up to 25.06c, an advance of 122 points over Monday's closing price, and closed at 24.92c. The net advance for the general list ran from 103 to 114 points.

The trade had been prepared for small ginning figures owing to the lateness of the season and the light movement into sight, but it hardly looked for returns as small as shown by the census report. This accounted for an opening advance of 22 to 26 points, and as soon as the Government's crop figures were issued the buying became general and excited. In addition to Wall Street and Western buying there was an active demand from both foreign and domestic trade interests which sent prices rapidly higher in spite of realizing and increased Southern hedging. Active months sold 118 to 126 points above last night's closing figures, closing a few points off from the best under realizing.

Early ginning returns are not considered a safe guide to the crop, but yesterday's report, indicating only 2,498,381 bales ginned prior to Sept. 25, emphasized the lateness of the season and consequently the dangers of a possible early frost. The trade had expected a condition in the neighborhood of 62.2, which would have meant only a slight change in the crop indication. The condition of 60.4 officially reported pointed to a yield of 12,047,000 bales, compared with the indication of 12,499,000 last month, excluding linters. This reduction in crop figures, combined with recent free exports, evidently created a very strong bullish feeling around the ring, and even after the advance there was talk of materially higher prices.

The buying movement was slowed down somewhat during the afternoon by reports of an easier spot basis in the Southwest. This was attributed to the rapidity of the advance in futures, and local bulls felt that the effect of today's reports would show in the attitude of Southern holders. Reports from New Orleans said the Cotton Growers' Conference in session there had voted to fix the price at 45 cents a pound.

Exports for the day were 49,235 bales, making 842,141 so far this season, against 926,721 last year. Southern spot markets as officially reported were unchanged to a cent higher.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

The movement at Western points continues to be the principal factor of interest in the wheat market. Receipts were slightly under last week, although for two days the movement shows an increase of about 100,000 bushels from two days last week, but is about 1,750,000 bushels under last year. RYE—Market easier. No. 2 Western, $1.97, cost, insurance, and freight, New York.

CORN.

The corn market again displayed its ability to rally from depressions. Early prices declined about a cent a bushel under scattered liquidation prompted by very optimistic views of the crop outlook. The price of old cash corn was also lower, and there seemed to be little on which to base bullish expectations. When shorts attempted to cover, however, they again found offers withdrawn and prices hardened, and closed firm, with gains of about 2 cents a bushel from the bottom and ⅝@1c from the previous close. Meantime the market for old corn is coming down steadily, and in the local market, No. 2 yellow was quoted at $2.10 and No. 2 mixed at $2.05, cost, insurance, and freight, New York.

OATS.

There was comparatively little feature to the oats market and prices moved largely in sympathy with the action of corn. Offers from the country are not oppressive, and while exporters are doing little at present the cash position shows considerable firmness. Stocks of oats on the farms are believed to be large, but farmers are not selling freely, and many believe that oats are worth more money as a feeding proposition and in comparison with other commodities. The local cash market was steadier; standard quoted at 66@66½c; No. 2 white, 66¼c; No. 3 white, 65½@66c; No. 4 white, 65@65½c; fancy clipped white, 67½@69½c; ordinary clipped white, 65½@67½c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The market for hog products was easier early owing to a decline in the market for live hogs and on a feeling of hesitation about taking an aggressive stand on the buying side. Offers were small, however, and when a little more active buying appeared prices rallied and closed firm at the top. Packing of hogs continues to run far behind last year, and some authorities maintain that there is little probability of heavy pressure until there is some accumulation of stocks. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 8,000; estimated for today, 16,000. Kansas City received 9,000 and Omaha 3,900.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The market for cottonseed oil was nervous owing to a communication to the trade from the Vice President of the Produce Exchange warning traders against purely speculative operations. Prices yesterday were strong, however, closing with net gains of 10@30 points on buying, based on the bullish Government report on cotton, and the pronounced strength in the crude position. ### COFFEE.

There was further liquidation in the market for coffee futures yesterday. The selling was not particularly heavy, but it seemed to be for both domestic and foreign account, while demand was limited except for some scattered covering, as prices made new low ground for the movement. Closing prices were 4 to 9 points lower. Sales were reported of 35,500 bags. The local spot market was quiet and unchanged at 8¼c for Rio 7s and 9¾c for Santos 4s. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

The general acute situation here may be somewhat relieved by the reported purchase by Great Britain of 150,000 tons of Java sugar, October-December shipment, at 8c, free on board Java. Heretofore it has been a question of getting sugar from the Far East to England, but it is now believed that Great Britain is counting on American ships to be placed in the European trade, allowing British tonnage to be sent to the East. Refined sugar here was unchanged at 8.35@8.50c, with a moderate demand in evidence. Warner bought 15,000 bags Cuban raw sugar, prompt shipment, at 5⅝c, cost and freight, and there was a rumored sale of Cubas, prompt shipment to Canadian interests, at the same price level. Canadian interests are very active on the buying side and would take more sugars in the prompt positions if available. Spot prices follow: Centrifugal 6.90c; molasses, 6.02c; cost and freight, 5⅝c.

EGGS.—Receipts yesterday, 14,093 cases. Trade was generally reported quieter; it is affected somewhat by the Jewish holiday. Most receivers report still a fair demand for strictly fancy qualities, but the tone of the market as a whole is barely steady and outside quotations are still extreme. A large part of the Western stock here and arriving has no selling value above a range of 38@40c; some undergrades ranging downward. Storage eggs are dull, and, in the absence of important trading, values are almost nominal at the moment; tone is weak. Nearby white eggs of strictly fancy quality continue scarce and prices for such are sustained. Very few of the receipts, however, show quality to reach top quotations, mixed and irregular qualities offering at a wide range of unimproved prices. Fresh gathered, extras, per dozen, 45@46c; extra firsts, 42@44c; firsts, 39@41c; seconds, 37@38c; thirds and poorer, 35@36½c; fresh gathered dirties, No. 1, 36@36½c; No. 2 and poorer, 32@35½c; fresh gathered checks, good to choice, dry, 33@34c; undergrades, 30@32c; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, storage and insurance paid, 38½@39c; firsts, storage and insurance paid, 37@38c; seconds, storage and insurance paid, 35½@36½c; lower grades, storage and insurance paid, 34@35c; refrigerator, State whites, 41@43c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 58@62c; ordinary to good, 45@57c; gathered whites, good to fine, 42@58c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 42@48c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 48@60c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby gathered browns and mixed colors, [illegible]

for lasting peace.

Sons, brothers, husbands are now preparing to give their lives for the cause which enlists the dollars of those who subscribe to the Liberty Loan.

That cause met with a wide and emphatic response in the First Loan. It has now become even clearer and dearer. To the lives now pledged is owing the unstinted support of those whose security and freedom they go to defend.

This Company therefore places its services at the disposal of purchasers of the new Liberty Bonds, in the conviction that the Second Liberty Loan demands with a new and greater urgency a ringing answer, an answer from everyone capable of saving, an answer worthy of and mightier than that given by millions of the people to the First Loan.

We shall be glad to attend to the details of your subscription, without charge or commission.

SEEK TO PROTECT CITY RAILWAY BONDS

Owners of 5 Per Cent. Securities Ask Right to Intervene Against Service Board.

A Bondholders' Committee consisting of Frank L. Hall, Charles P. Howland, and George B. Leighton, representing the owners of $6,000,000 of 5 per cent. gold income bonds of the New York City Railways Company, filed a petition in the Supreme Court yesterday, to be heard by Justice Whitaker today, asking permission to intervene in an action brought by the company against the Public Service Commission.

The plaintiffs says that the bonds were issued in 1911 under the scheme of reorganization of the old Metropolitan Street Railway system, but for the five years ended June 30 last the bondholders have received only a total of 16.60 per cent. and got nothing at all on June 30 last. They say this condition is due to the fact that by an order of the Public Service Commission made in 1911 the railroad company is required to set aside 20 per cent. each year from the gross income from operation for depreciation and maintenance of the property, the unexpended balance being required to be added to the amortization fund.

The Bondholders' Committee states that the railroad company started proceedings for a court review of this order, but never carried it to a hearing, for the reason that 90 per cent. of the New York City Railways' capital stock is owned by the Interborough Consolidated Corporation, successor to the Interborough-Metropolitan Company, "which has much larger interests in other transportation companies competing with the New York Street Railways Company and with interests at times adverse to that company."

The bondholders allege that the management of the company whose bonds they hold is disinclined to have the Public Service Commission order set aside, and "is in fact delaying the hearing upon said writ in order to accumulate a large fund which would otherwise be payable to the holders of said income bonds as interest, and are viewing with complacency a delay which is month by month storing up a fund for the benefit of the stock which they represent." This fund now amounts to $3,127,000.

If the petition of the bondholders is granted they will be in a position to demand an immediate hearing on the proceedings to review the Public Service Commission order.

GROWTH OF BANK CLEARINGS

New York Report Shows Increase of $34,000,000,000 in Year.

The tremendous growth during the last twelve months in the volume of business handled by New York City banks was indicated yesterday in the annual report of the New York Clearing House, which placed the year's clearings at $181,534,000,000, an increase of more than $34,000,000,000 compared with the previous year and more than double the total for the year ended Sept. 30, 1915.

The report shows that the total transactions of the last year aggregated $193,681,000,000, and mention is made of the fact that the largest daily transactions in the sixty-four years that the Clearing House has been in existence were recorded on Feb. 6, 1917, when the total was $1,265,758,049. The largest daily balance on record, $133,761,391, was reported on Aug. 29, 1917. The unusual increase in the volume of business handled by the Clearing House in the last year has been due to operations in connection with Government financing.

The average daily clearing the last year amounted to $601,000,000, compared with $484,000,000 in 1916 and $300,000,000 in 1915. Ten years ago the average clearings amounted to $313,000,000, and twenty years ago they totaled $103,000,000.

At the annual meeting of the Clearing House Association, held yesterday, Gates W. McGarrah, President of the Mechanics and Metals National Bank, was elected President, succeeding Frank A. Vanderlip, President of the National City Bank. Walter E. Frew, President of the Corn Exchange Bank, was elected Chairman of the Clearing House Committee, an office just vacated by Mr. McGarrah. Theodore Hetzler, President of the Fifth Avenue Bank, was elected Secretary and William J. Gilpin and Clarence E. Bacon were re-elected Manager and Assistant Manager, respectively. Charles A. Hanna continues as Examiner.

The Clearing House Committee now consists of Mr. Frew, Seward Prosser, President of the Bankers Trust Company; Albert H. Wiggin, President of the Chase National Bank; Francis L. Hine, President of the First National Bank, and Lewis E. Pierson, Chairman of the Irving National Bank.

At yesterday's meeting an amendment to the constitution was adopted which provides for a meeting of bank representatives every afternoon, for the purpose of exchanging and settling for "return items." When this new clearing will begin has not yet been determined. The object of having all the banks send their "return items" to the Clearing House is to obviate the present necessity of the banks sending messengers all over the city for the collection of these items. Under the proposed plan all these items will be turned in at once, and the settlements will be effected through the next morning's regular exchanges.

Rubber Company Doubles Profits.

The Intercontinental Rubber Company earned a net profit of $1,195,895 in the year ended July 31, against $581,903 the year before. The year's surplus was $1,055,174, more than double that of 1916, and the total surplus on July 31 amounted to $4,005,596, compared with $2,950,422. G. H. Carnahan, President, said in the annual report yesterday that the Mexican properties had not been worked during the year, but that steps had been taken to reopen the factory at Torreon early this month.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The Jamestown, Westfield & Northwestern Railroad has applied to the New York Public Service Commission, Second District, for permission to execute a mortgage of $5,000,000 and to issue thereunder $1,000,000 of 5 per cent. 30-year gold bonds.

The Bankers Trust Company has issued a booklet briefly summarizing the Income and War Profits Taxes of the new Revenue Bill.

Ross Young, formerly Vice President of the Loton H. Slawson Company has become associated with Charles W. Hill.

At the annual meeting of the California Railway & Power Company the retiring Directors were re-elected. Lyman T. Hammon of Bonbright & Co., was also elected a Director, thus increasing the board membership to twelve.

At the annual meeting of Granby Consolidated Mining, Smelting & Power Company, Ltd., the board was reduced from thirteen to eleven, and retiring Directors were re-elected.

The retiring Directors of the Chicago, Great Western Railroad; Chicago & Alton Railroad, the Crex Carpet Company, and the Midvale Steel & Ordnance Company were re-elected at the respective annual meetings of these companies.

GRANBY SALES $11,975,430.

Copper Mining Company Reports Annual Gain of $2,661,102.

The Granby Consolidated Mining Company reports gross sales of metals amounting to $11,975,430 in the year ended June 30, a gain of $2,661,102 over the preceding year. The net income, including dividends on investments, was $5,025,251, a gain of $1,403,181, and the balance for dividends amounted to $5,452,796, of which $230,320 came from miscellaneous operations. The net earnings were equal to 36.35 per cent. on the outstanding stock. The company produced 41,878,568 pounds of copper, which was sold at an average price of 27.4 cents a pound.

Costs rose rapidly, being 11.5 cents a pound for one mine, against 10.09 cents the year before, and 20.8 cents at the other property, compared with 14.25 cents in 1916. E. P. Earle, Vice President, said in his report to stockholders that the Canadian war tax had not been settled. The Government, he said, was negotiating with company officials, and the latest proposition allowed for 7 per cent. interest on the money invested and 10 per cent. for depletion of ore reserves, in addition to a reasonable charge for depreciation, before taking either 25 per cent. of the excess profits or, as an alternative, 4 per cent. of the net earnings.

MUNITIONS STOCKS

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

The market on the Consolidated Exchange opened strong, but an early advance was checked by offering the rails, steels, and coppers. Railroad earnings reports came out at intervals during the day and created unfavorable impressions. The market lapsed into dullness for a time, but late in the day further drives were made against the important issues, but little stock was brought out and in attempt to cover short contracts, carried prices back rapidly so that closing figures were materially above the earlier low levels.

NOTICE.

To the Stockholders of the E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company:

In the suit of Philip F. duPont and others against Pierre S. duPont and others, No. 340 in Equity, in the District Court of the United States for the District of Delaware, the Court has filed a decree, a copy of which is enclosed, finding that the purchase on their own behalf from T. Coleman duPont of the 63,314 shares of common stock and the 14,599 shares of preferred stock of the E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company, by Pierre S. duPont and his associates, Irenee duPont, Lammot duPont, A. Felix duPont, John J. Raskob, Robert Ruliph Morgan Carpenter, Harry G. Haskell, Harry F. Brown, William Coyne, John P. Laffey and duPont Securities Company, some of whom participated at the time of the purchase and others became afterwards interested in the purchase, was in violation of the duties which they owed to the Powder Company, and in fraud of the rights of said corporation; that duPont Securities Company, which was organized by Pierre S. duPont and his associates for the purpose of financing the purchase of said stock, acquired the same subject to the rights of the Powder Company thereto; that the act of Pierre S. duPont and his associates in acquiring said stock on their own behalf has never been ratified or condoned in such a manner as to vitiate the rights of the E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company, and that at the time of the purchase of the stock by Pierre S. duPont and his associates and at all times subsequent thereto, the Powder Company was authorized to purchase all of the said stock and had on hand funds sufficient to enable it legally to make such a purchase.

The Court also found that the stockholders of E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company have the right to determine whether the said E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company shall acquire and receive the 63,314 shares of the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company purchased by the defendants from T. Coleman duPont, carrying with the same the 126,628 shares of the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company received as a dividend thereon, together with all other cash, stock and bond dividends or the proceeds or value of such other stock and bond dividends with interest or income thereon, paid to or realized by the defendants on the 63,314 shares of the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company, and the 126,628 shares of the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company, less such sums of money with interest as were paid by the defendants for the purchase from T. Coleman duPont of the 63,314 shares of the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company and the 14,599 shares of preferred stock of said Company, after crediting on the amounts so paid by them such amounts as may have been received by the defendants from a sale of said preferred stock purchased as aforesaid from T. Coleman duPont, or the proceeds thereof, with interest, the exact figures, together with the proper calculations of interest thereon to be ascertained by an accounting to be taken under the direction of the Court, and less any sums for expenses connected with said purchase which may be allowed by the Court on such accounting.

By statements filed by the defendants in this cause, it appears that there was purchased from T. Coleman duPont 63,314 shares of the common stock and 14,599 shares of the preferred stock of the E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company, at the price of ......................$13,903,715.00

That interest on the amount paid for said stocks, at six per cent. from the time said stocks were paid for to May 1, 1917, amounts to the sum of 1,805,165.66

Total of principal and interest, as of May 1, 1917...........$15,708,880.66

It further appears that there has been received by the defendants since the purchase of the stocks aforesaid, as a dividend on the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company purchased from T. Coleman duPont, 126,628 shares of the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company, and certain preferred stock of the Atlas Powder Company.

It further appears, from said statements, that the defendants have received since the purchase of the common and preferred stock from T. Coleman duPont aforesaid, in cash from dividends upon the 63,314 shares of the common stock and 14,599 shares of preferred stock of the E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company; from dividends upon the 126,628 shares of common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company; from the sale of the preferred stock of the Atlas Powder Company; from sales of the 14,599 shares of preferred stock of the E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company, and from the sale of certain Anglo-French bonds received as dividends on the 126,628 shares of the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company, sums in cash, with interest thereon to May 1, 1917, in the aggregate largely in excess of the purchase price paid by the defendants for the 63,314 shares of common stock and 14,599 shares of preferred stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company.

The question, therefore, upon which the stockholders of the E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company must pass at the special meeting of stockholders now called, is as follows:

Do the stockholders now desire to acquire for the Company the 63,314 shares of the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company formerly held by T. Coleman duPont, with the right to require the defendants to turn over to the company the 126,628 shares of the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company; and further to require the defendants to account for the cash which they have received in excess of the amount paid by them, with interest, as the purchase price for the said 63,314 shares of the common stock and 14,599 shares of the preferred stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company, and further to require the defendants to account for the Anglo-French bonds received by them as dividends and which have not been converted into cash.

For the information of the stockholders, it is proper to state that from the statements filed in this cause by the defendants, it appears that if the stockholders desire to exercise the right to acquire said stocks, and to require the defendants to account for the excess in cash, and the Anglo-French bonds not converted into cash, received by them as aforesaid, it will not be necessary for the Company to pay anything to the defendants, for they have been repaid in cash more than the amount paid by them, with interest, for said stocks purchased from T. Coleman duPont.

Notice is hereby given that the Special Meeting of the stockholders of the E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company, in pursuance of the decree of the District Court of the United States for the District of Delaware, in the cause of Philip F. duPont et al. v. Pierre S. duPont et al., No. 340, in Equity, will be held on the Tenth day of October, 1917, at twelve o'clock noon, at the principal office of the Company, at Wilmington, Delaware, for the purpose of voting upon the following resolution to be submitted to said meeting under the decree of the Court aforesaid:

"RESOLVED, that the stockholders of E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company hereby determine that said corporation shall acquire and receive the 63,314 shares of the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company purchased by the defendants from T. Coleman duPont, carrying with the same the 126,628 shares of the common stock of the E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company received as a dividend thereon, together with all other cash, stock and bond dividends, or the proceeds or value of such other stock and bond dividends, with interest or income thereon, paid to or realized by the defendants on the 63,314 shares of the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company, and the 126,628 shares of the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company, less such sums of money, with interest, as were paid by the defendants for the purchase from T. Coleman duPont of the 63,314 shares of the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company, and the 14,599 shares of preferred stock of said Company, after crediting on the amounts so paid by them such amounts as may have been received by defendants from a sale of said preferred stock purchased as aforesaid from T. Coleman duPont, or the proceeds thereof, with interest, the exact figures, together with the proper calculations of interest thereon to be ascertained by an accounting to be taken under the direction of the Court, and less any sums for expenses connected with said purchases which may be allowed by the Court on such accounting."

The voting shall be by ballot, and the polls will remain open to receive the votes of the stockholders from 12 o'clock noon to 6 P. M. on the said Tenth day of October, 1917.

DANIEL O. HASTINGS,
Special Master.

Dated the Eighth day of September, 1917.

Situations Wanted.

LIVE WIRE desires connection with large, reliable house that caters to cloak, suit, and dress trade; has been formerly connected with one of the largest pile fabric manufacturers. G 158 Times.

SALESMAN wants side line of army equipment for the road. N 6 Times.

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Monday .........5¼@5¾% " " "
The quotations are for six months' paper.

Rubber Buyers Are Marking Time.

Rubber buyers are marking time so far as the local market for the crude material is concerned, and prices are gradually slipping off. The relapse seems to be more marked in the plantation varieties at the present than in the Brazilians. Yesterday, up-river fine was quoted at 66½ cents for spot and nearby positions, while for similar deliveries 46 cents was asked for up-river coarse, and 40¼@41 cents for upper Caucho Ball. In the plantations, 66 cents was quoted on first latex for all positions up to April, 1918, and the corresponding price on smoked sheets was 65 cents.

Fancy Undergarments Well Taken.

According to a number of local retailers, there is a strong demand for fancy undergarments of the higher grades. A noticable development of the Fall season is the reported preference for white charmeuse instead of georgette or washable satin. It is combined with real "val" and filet tops for the envelope chemise. The rapid movement of these goods over the counter is said to be causing constant calls on the manufacturers for more merchandise, with the result that deliveries in many instances are falling behind.

Help Situation Improves.

"The help situation," says the head of one of the local department stores, "is showing some little signs of improvement. There is less shifting from one store to another and from one industry to another than there was earlier in the year. It is not as difficult now to keep our help, and during the last week we got more response to our advertising than we have gotten for some time. There still is, however, a great shortage, and we look forward to the holiday rush with no little apprehension.

Wool Question Unsettles Trade.

Clothing manufactureers of this city, both of men's and women's wear, are said to be holding up placing of their Spring requirements for woolen fabrics pending the outcome of the discussions at Washington on the subject of wool conservation. The many proposals put forth suggesting manipulated fabrics, Government regulation of woolen prices, and the like are causing no end of unsettlement in the trade. As one manufacturer put it, "we can't set our course for the coming Spring season until we know something about which way the wind is going to blow."

Low-Priced Suit Not Dead Yet.

The volume of business done in popular-priced suits during the last few weeks is pointed to by local manufacturers as the best refutation of statements emanating from certain quarters to the effect that low-priced suits will ultimately have to give way to coats and dresses. "As long as there are low-priced suits," says one authority in the trade, "there is an overwhelming number of women who are going to buy them. The rush of business we are having now would indicate to me that a lot of women, finding their last year's coat still good for another season, are buying suits this Fall who have not bought them before. I don't see any signs of the suit business 'dropping out.'"

Printcloth Buying Grows Larger.

The sharp upturn in cotton yesterday, following the issuance of the Government crop report, had a stimulating effect on printcloth buying here and also added to the firmness of prices. Sales of 38½-inch 64-60s were reported at 9¾ cents for deliveries running up to March of next year; the same goods also were reported sold at 10 cents for shipment through the rest of 1917. Business was done as well on 38½-inch 60-48s at 8½ cents for deliveries running to March next, while for this year 39-inch 56-44s moved at 8 cents. In the wide, high-count cloths sales of 39-inch 68-72s were put through for this year at 11¼ cents. For 38½-inch 64-56s 9¾ cents was asked in certain quarters, but business was done in others at 9½. Other constructions also sold more or less freely, and it is predicted that, unless an unexpected break in cotton comes, another era of high prices will develop. Spot printcloths averaged this way at the close:

RAISE ASSESSMENTS ON MANY BUILDINGS

SOME MORE THAN DOUBLED

One Telephone Building Advanced from $320,000 to $910,000—Only a Few Reduced.

Large increases in the assessments on some of New York's well-known office buildings were disclosed when the tax books were opened yesterday. Four million five hundred thousand dollars was added to the valuation of the Equitable Building, 120 Broadway, raising the assessment from $20,500,000 to $25,000,000. The New York Telephone Company Building at 102 to 108 Broad Street was advanced from $320,000 to $910,000, and the American Express Company Building at 63 to 65 Broadway from $1,975,000 to $3,800,000. While these are some of the larger increases, and while in some instances assessements were reduced, the general level for all the buildings in the city is higher than in the last year.

There were a few reductions of some of the more prominent hotels, one of the fortunate ones being the Knickerbocker, which had its assessment reduced $100,000. The assessments on some of the theatres were advanced, as they were also on some of the banks and Fifth Avenue business buildings. One of the well-known residences in Fifth Avenue, that of George W. Vanderbilt, at 640 Fifth Avenue, was advanced from $2,300,000 to $2,450,000.

Here are some of the assessments for the more important office buildings, hotels, theatres, residences, and business houses:

Education Notes.

With the opening of the Women's Art School and the first year Engineering Classes Cooper Union begins its work in all departments. While the registration in the Day Technical School is lowered by the war conditions, the enrollment in the evening classes, both technical and art, is nearly as large as last year, numbering 2,520. The slackening of building operations has had considerable effect in reducing the number of applicants for architectural drawing, but the demand for mechanical drawing has increased, and additional classes have been opened. New Classes in concrete construction, steam and gas engine practice will be opened shortly, and it is hoped to open a laboratory for the study of the construction and operation of motor vehicles this year. Every new student admitted to the classes of the union this Fall has been required to sign a pledge of loyalty to the Government.

The New York University has opened a military training course to the general public. It will be held at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory, Thursday evenings, beginning Oct. 4. Captain John Wesley Lyon, a veteran in the National Guard and army service, one of the first instructors of the New York State Cadets, under the Slater act, will be in charge. Additional instruction and lectures will be given by officers returned from the war. The course will be practical and theoretical.

Apartment house janitors and superintendents, operating engineers, foremen, public school engineers, and library janitors will receive instruction in the City College this year in boiler and fuel economy. The course will begin this Thursday night, at 7:30 o'clock, and will be given by J. Balm, efficiency engineer. During the coming Winter there will be a cry louder than ever for conservation of coal and efficiency in its use, and in hardly any other place will the need of savings to be so great as in coal. Men who have had no technical training, but who are interested in the subject should apply for further information to Dr. F. B. Robinson, director, Main Building, City College. Another new, practical course, entitled Textiles, is intended for sales people and others engaged in silk, cotton, wool, and the retail and wholesale dry goods trades. Dr. I. M. Rubinow will give two new courses, one social insurance, outlining workmen's insurance schemes, and another treating of the economic relations between America and Russia. To meet the demand for a knowledge of Russian life and conditions new courses in the Russian language and literature have been added to the curriculum.

In his report to the Board of Education, District Superintendent Taylor says that children in The Bronx public schools, under the Gary plan, have made higher averages in examinations than those taught in the other schools.

The Brooklyn Teachers' Association has begun an investigation of the salary refunds allowed to public school teachers for excused absences. It is claimed that the allowance made by the Board of Superintendents is too small.

The annual meeting of the Interborough Association of Women Teachers will be held at 4:15 P. M., on Oct. 5, at the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria.

IMAGINE a lamp which can be affixed in a second to the back of your chair—to the head-board of your bed—to the frame of your mirror—to a hook on the wall—to the edge of a shelf—to the side of a door.

A lamp that can be set on your desk—on the table—on the window sill—on the sewing machine—on the ironing board—on the dressing table—on the telephone stand—on the book-case.

A lamp which can be tilted in any desired position. A lamp which gives you all the light there is in the bulb—by concentrating the light just where you want it—not scattering it all over the room.

A lamp, furthermore, which can be folded up into a space not much bigger than an orange, tucked into your grip and carried with you when traveling.

Wherever there is electric current, the handiness of this lamp comes in. Nearly half a million are used today in homes, in offices, in restaurants, in hotels, in actors' dressing rooms. Valued by business men, by housewives, travelers, professional people.

WHAT IS THE WALLACE LAMP?

It is an ingeniously built solid brass stand in which is concealed a spiral spring for use in clamping. To this stand is attached a push-button socket, connected, by eight feet of flexible cord, to a patent plug. A hemispherical brass shade fits firmly over any bulb of ordinary size, in any position desired. The lamp "stays put" anywhere. Clamps or stands wherever you want it. Adjusts to any angle.

Take home a Wallace Lamp today. You'll find a dozen handy uses the very first thing. For dressing—for reading—for writing—for reaching dark nooks. It will save your eyesight. It will save your temper.

Examine it at your favorite store. The Wallace is sold everywhere, by most of the good Hardware, Electrical, Sporting Goods, Drug and Department Stores.

HANDSOME BOOKLET: If unable to inspect the Wallace Lamp itself, write for free booklet showing its uses in colored pictures
